

Women Suffrage Ratified in New Jersey. Other Legislative Notes

Woman Suffrage was ratified by New Jersey at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning when the House concurred in the Senate resolution to ratify by a vote of 34 to 24. Announcement of the result was followed by a storm of applause from the galleries, which, despite the lateness of the hour, were still filled with enthusiastic suffragists.

Opponents of ratification held up action in the House from 9 o'clock Monday night. After a series of conferences and attempts to gain more time, the foes finally resorted to filibustering, but toward morning those in favor of the measure gained enough votes to force the resolution through.

Introduction of a resolution by Senator Mackay, of Bergen, in the Senate authorizing the president to appoint a committee of three to consider and report on all salary raising bills in both houses, provoked the only debate in the upper branch Monday night. Senator Simpson, Democrat, of Hudson, in opposing the measure, argued that the legislation would give the committee monopolistic control. The resolution was adopted.

AGENCY FOR THE FAMOUS FORD COMES TO TUCKERTON

Walter Atkinson Has Agency Held by W. S. Cranmer For Past Several Years.

Walter Atkinson has taken the agency for the Ford Automobile, the agreements and contracts being completed in Philadelphia yesterday. The headquarters will be at Atkinson's Tuckerton Garage.

It is said that the contract calls for a show room to be furnished by the agent and Mr. Atkinson will probably have some of these cars on exhibition in the near future.

The Ford agency in this section has been held by W. S. Cranmer, at Cedar Run, for several years and the territory that he held will be covered by Mr. Atkinson.

BILLS INTRODUCED TO HAVE STATE BUY UP TOLL BRIDGES

Senator Hagaman introduced a bill in the Senate to have the state buy toll bridges, such as those across Barnegat and Manahawkin bays in this county.

As assemblyman Cranmer is ill and has not been able to be in Trenton for the past two weeks, Senator Hagaman also had one of the Assemblyman's colleagues introduce in the House a duplicate measure, with the idea that it might expedite the passage, if it should be held up in the rush hours of a closing session.

Another bill introduced by the Senator would allow landowners along the line of the state canal from Bay Head to Manasquan river, to dredge out basins on their own land and to connect up with the canal, by cutting through the forty foot right of way which the state has acquired on either side of the canal.

Daylight-Saving Under Discussion

Agriculturists and city dwellers participated in a lively debate on the question of daylight saving at a legislative hearing Monday on Senator Mackay's bill, which provides that clocks be turned forward an hour the last Sunday in March and back the last Sunday in October.

Another daylight saving measure, that by Assemblyman Eldredge of Union County, patterned after the old federal law, was also given a hearing.

Walter L. Minch, of Bridgeton; Walter H. Havens, of Cranbury; Henry Loveland, of Bridgeton; Chas. Repp, of Glassboro; John H. Barclay, of Cranbury, and Howard B. Hancock and Leslie A. Platts, of the Cumberland County Grange, represented the farmers in opposition to the two bills. The main objection advanced by them was that on the farm nothing can be accomplished during the extra hour in the morning and that about all the daylight saving plan amounts to is to provide an additional hour each day for recreation for persons who do not work on farms.

Roger F. Murray, of Plainfield, and H. H. Heyden, of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, were the main speakers for the bills, urging that they be passed because exper-

OUTLOOK FOR IMPROVED COUNTY HIGHWAY BRIGHT

The Road Will Cost in the Neighborhood of $200,000, the State Reimbursing the County in 1922 for its Outlay—Ocean County's First Attempt at Concrete Roads.

The Ocean County Board of Freeholders in session in their office in the Court House, Toms River, last Tuesday, passed a resolution requesting the consent of the State Highway Commission to survey and construct five miles of improved highway, on what is known as Route No. 4. This route is part of the proposed state highway system which, better known as the concrete road system. The road when built will begin at Madison avenue, Lakewood and continue thru Lakewood, down Ocean avenue to the Laurelton Poultry Farms, a distance of five miles.

It is supposed the road will cost in the neighborhood of $200,000, the state reimbursing the county in 1922 for its outlay in building the road.

This stretch of road will be the first concrete road that Ocean county has ever attempted to construct, and will probably begin an era of concrete road building in the county.

At this meeting bids were received for three small road scrapers, one large scraper and one caterpillar tractor. The board rejected all the bids. There were only two bids for the scrapers and one for the tractor. They decided to re-advertise for bids. It was found after the bids had been opened that the tractor that had been bid upon, was not large enough to do the work required by the county; and that the scrapers bid on were just not what was wanted, therefore the Board thought it best to ask for the new bids.

Cranmer and Parker were paid $746.08 for work on the Lakewood-VanHiseville road; E. H. Carson, $1,249.10 on the Long Beach Boulevard, 2nd division; C. W. Mathis & Co., $1,611.28 on the 1st section, Long Beach Boulevard. The County Engineer was instructed to jack up the contractors on the Long Beach Boulevard and tell them they must have the work completed on both sections in time for the summer traffic.

These orders were issued because several complaints have been received by the Board from residents in Long Beach Township, who stated that work was not being pushed on the boulevard as rapidly as possible, and that unless the work was completed before August, the road would be of no value to the township this summer. The contract calls for the completion of the road by June 1st.

The Board fixed the salary of the Clerk at $1200 per year, and also defined his duties. He is instructed among other things to have the office of the board open every day from 9 A. M. to 4 P. M.; Saturdays from 9 to 12.

The salary of the superintendent of the Court House was fixed at $1,000 a year, but the Board did not say how long the Superintendent should be on the job to earn his salary. Superintendent Brown now gets on the job at 6 A. M. and stays on duty until 9 P. M. Both salaries go into effect as from January 1st. It is presumed that both Clerk D. O. Parker and Superintendent A. W. Brown, Sr., are to be retained in their respective offices, but nothing was said about it in the resolution fixing salaries.

Frank Hewitt of Seaside Park appeared before the Board asking that the Board make an appropriation toward a block advertising scheme to give additional publicity to Ocean County. The scheme is being pushed in the County by Kroh & Castle of Asbury Park, who appeared before the Board at a previous meeting.

Mr. Hewitt said that Seaside Park was spending $100,000 this year in improvements in that borough and did not feel that it should put much in advertising. However, he said the Borough was ready to put in $300 with other Boros of the county, provided the county put up $1,000, making a total of $3,100. The matter was laid over until other boros and municipalities make requests for assistance the Board making the stand that they would not put any money into the scheme unless the majority of the Boros requested it.

The Board will meet again on Feb. 17.

GOOD FOR CHEVROLET!

The Chevrolet Sedan, owned by Dr. J. L. Lane and purchased of the agent, M. L. Cranmer, when overhauled at Atkinson's Garage by Conrad Kauffman, machinist, this week after running 20,000 miles, was declared to be in the best condition of any car he had taken down after running that distance. This speaks well for the Chevrolet.

KEEP ON GOING IF YOU SEE A TIRE LYING IN THE ROAD

If you are spinning along at night at a comfortable rate of speed and see before you on the road a brand new tire that has apparently dropped off the rear of another car don't let the high cost of motoring affect you too strongly and stop and pick it up. It is mighty hard indeed to pass by sixty or seventy dollars worth of perfectly good tire casing, but to succumb is a dangerous thing on a lonely road. You are apt to lose the tire, your pocket book, all that's in it and perhaps your car as well.

Your headlights spot the tire on the road, you stop your machine, get out and are introduced to the front end of an ugly looking gun. The man behind it does the rest.

That is the latest game of the modern highway robber, and it has been working well this winter along New Jersey roads and in other States. It is well not to flatter yourself about your knowledge of the country you are driving through. Don't take it for granted that because you are only a few miles from the enter of a congested area that the bandits won't take a chance. Just beyond the rim of the brightest lights is one of their favorite spots to work.

Grade VII and VIII—Percentage of attendance, 91.5; enrollment, 43; teacher, Maude Ireland. Honor Roll—Mathis Bishop, Harold Sprague, Lillian Blackman, Kathryn Frazier, Elizabeth Grant, Dorothy Gale, Ruth Jones, Winifred Kelley, Kathryn Kumpf, Eugenia Lane, Margaret Marshall, F. Elizabeth Marshall, Anna Marshall, Sadie Stevens, Ida Sprague, Hattie Smith, Mattie Allen.

Number of library books read above the 4th grade 154. Average per cent. of attendance for the grades, 81.8. Number of pupils neither absent nor tardy, 87. Number of tardy marks in the grades, 40.

Grade 9—Percentage of attendance, 83; enrollment, 17; teacher, Miss Abel. Honor Roll—Carlton Mathis, Milton Cox.

Grade 10—Percentage of attendance, 93; enrollment, 17; teacher, Miss Zimmerman. Honor Roll—Stella McCoy, Emily Hepburn, Clinton Cramer, Frances Mosher.

Grades XI and XII—Percentage of attendance, 90; enrollment, 22; teacher, Miss Lippincott. Honor Roll—Addie Merce, Minnie Honer, Hilda Cramer, Mary Cramer, French Loveland, Albert Honer, Albert Lane, Edward Hoffman, Edward Blackman.

Average per cent of attendance for High School, 89 per cent. Number of pupils neither absent nor tardy, 15. Number of tardy marks in High School, 22. Number of books read in High School, 91. Average per cent of attendance for School, 85.2. Total number of neither absent nor tardy, 52. Total number of tardy marks, 62.

This is by no means a pleasing report to render, but we wish the people to know the report as it really exists. The low percentage of attendance has been due, to a great extent, to the epidemic of chicken pox and bad weather. While this part of the report is not so satisfactory as we might wish, the school cannot help absences thru sickness, there is a phase of our report which we would like to correct thru the cooperation of the parents. If the parents will stop to consider the importance of training children to be punctual, the sleeping hours and home work of the children will be so arranged that the children will be able to get to school in time for the calling of sessions. So the school will appreciate the cooperation of the parents in helping to raise the percentage of attendance and in lowering the number of tardy marks for the coming months.

Report of Lunch Room for Fourth Week

The lunch room has been running for four weeks. The number of luncheons that were served the first week, 215; second week, 195; third week, 195; fourth week, 210, making a total of 823 for the month of January.

Lives in Peril and Enormous Damage Caused by Storm

Wind, Snow, Water and Ice Destroy Boats and Resort Buildings. Many Shore Sections Hard Hit.

SEVERAL BAYMEN HAD NARROW ESCAPE FROM BEING SWEEP AWAY. BUSY TIME FOR COAST GUARDS

Shore resorts and inland Jersey towns are slowly recovering from the heavy gale that swept over the lower part of the state Wednesday night and Thursday morning of last week. The lull Thursday was only temporary and by Friday night another heavy snowfall was on, and while the wind was not heavy any attempts at repairing shattered homes and places of business had to be abandoned.

The storm, one of the worst in years, coming on the full of the moon, with an easterly gale that plucked away for 48 hours, made abnormally high tides on the coast and did a great deal of damage. Railroad trains were delayed; wires were down in many places; roads were blocked and made impassable for teams or cars; the top was taken off the P. R. R. bridge across Manahawken Bay for about 400 feet, stopping all travel to Long Beach by train.

This bridge is very low. It is assumed that the heavy ice, frozen to the bridge, when lifted by the high tides, also lifted the top off the bridge and carried it away from the stringers up. The part damaged is at what is known as Hilliard's on the main shore end of the bridge.

The automobile bridge across Manahawkin Bay and near the railroad bridge, was little damaged and is passable and it is hoped that the wrecking crew now working on the bridge will have the railroad service to Beach Haven on regular schedule by next Sunday. This will depend on weather conditions.

This storm was more destructive than any of recent years from the fact that the bays were covered with heavy ice. When the extreme high tides raised this ice above the shores the heavy wind started it moving, taking almost everything before it and wide paths of destruction are the results.

While trains were delayed, they were not seriously behind. Even the flyover, however was stalled this time; as all the roads were impassable.

Many Boats Destroyed

Numerous boats have been carried away and are either crushed in the ice or carried to sea. Among these are several house-boats. Fourteen boats of various kinds are reported missing from Parkertown.

Highest Known Tide

Covers Meadow Tracks

The highest known storm tide in the history of the Atlantic City section, came in on Thursday last. The water on the meadows was several inches above the tracks of the electric line, something never before known. Service upon both the Suburban and Shore Fast trolley lines was suspended both days, while electric trains to and from Atlantic City ran irregularly, pulled by locomotives. Water came well up into many houses on the east side of the Shore Road, damaging floor coverings and furniture. The Absecon boulevard was washed away in several places. Boats were used in many sections of Atlantic City and Ocean City. The hail and sleet weighted down wires upon the meadows and they are a complete wreck. The damage done will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

As the tides reluctantly subsided they bore with them to the sea the wrecked remains of hotels, bungalows, amusement resorts, and boardwalks, which had been pounded and ripped from points along the shore where they had intruded too daringly upon to domain of the ocean.

There was but little damage at Beach Haven and no serious loss of property has been reported and is

HUMOR HAS IT THAT HUGH JENNINGS IS READY TO QUIT AS LEADER OF TIGERS

MANAGER HUGH JENNINGS JACK COOMBS Manager Hugh Jennings and Jack Coombs, Who Has Been Engaged to Coach the Detroit Pitchers.

It would not be a surprise if Detroit's signing Jack Coombs as assistant manager to Hugh Jennings proves a step toward making the man from Maine manager of the Tigers in another year.

Jennings has been active as a ball player and manager for 20 years or more, and it is rumored he plans to purchase a substantial block of the stock of the Detroit club now held by the William Yawkey estate and become an official of the club, probably vice president, writes Henry P. Edmunds in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In that case, he would merely supervise the campaign of the team about as Comiskey does at Chicago.

BOXING ON BROADER LINES AT OLD YALE

Undergraduates Are to Don Gloves in Competition.

Plan Discussed for Two or Three Round Bouts as Intermission Events—Moose King Will Have Charge of Classes.

The popularity which boxing enjoyed in both the army and the navy during the world war has led to decision by the Yale faculty to allow the organization of the sport along broader lines than heretofore. A boxing association will be formed and bouts will be held by the undergraduates at the different weights.

It is uncertain whether matches with representatives of other colleges will be allowed or not, as the sport is not organized among the Eastern universities, but a plan which has been discussed is that of having two or three-round bouts as intermission events during the winter season. For instance, if a Yale-Princeton basketball game is scheduled, it has been suggested that, during the intermission, a three-round bout might be held between boxers of the two universities.

Moose King, the former Connecticut lightweight champion, will have charge of the boxing classes as well as the individual instruction. He has been boxing instructor at Yale for nearly 20 years, but no undergraduate championships have been held before, and no bouts with other colleges have been permitted. King was instructor of boxing at Camp Devens during the world war, and also had charge of the mitt instruction of Yale undergraduates as members of the Reserve Officers Training corps.

Herman P. Olcott, the Yale all-around Freshman coach, was athletic director at the Great Lakes naval station, and regards boxing as a fine training for football and other major sports.

Eddie Eagan, winner of the middle-weight boxing tournament, which was held at Paris, of the American expeditionary force this spring, will probably be chosen head of the proposed boxing association. He played half-back on the Yale eleven last fall and will be on the track team next spring. He headed the Yale delegation to the student volunteer congress in Des Moines, Iowa, during the holiday recess.

HIS TIP.

Mrs. Styles—I want money for a new hat, dear.

Mr. Styles—Why don't you take a chance like me?

"What, and wear my old one a year longer?"

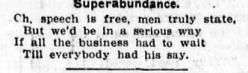

"Oh, no; but bet a new bonnet with some lady friend on the weather tomorrow."

ONCE BITTEN, ETC.

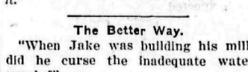

"Why did that 'brilliant' woman marry such a stupid man?"

"Because her first husband was a genius."

SUPERABUNDANCE.

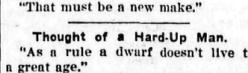

Ch. speech is free, men truly state, But we'd be in a serious way If all the business had to wait Till everybody had his say.

THAT DEPENDS.

"You don't intend to have the hot polloi at supper, do you Mrs. Come up?"

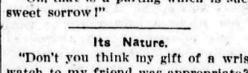

"Why, of course, it we can get hold of a cook that knows how to make it."

THE BETTER WAY.

"When Jake was building his mill, did he curse the inadequate water supply?"

"No; he dammed the pond."

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

"Glady and her husband have started for their honeymoon in a veritable ecstasy."

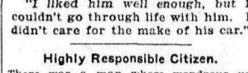

"That must be a new make."

THOUGHT OF A HARD-UP MAN.

"As a rule a dwarf doesn't live to a great age."

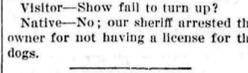

"Well, what's the use in living if you've got to be short all your life?"

JUST ITS CASE.

"I understand we will have to part with our candy feast."

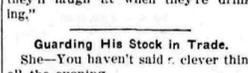

"Oh, that is a parting which is such sweet sorrow!"

ITS NATURE.

"Don't you think my gift of a wrist watch to my friend was appropriate?"

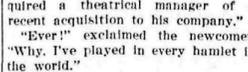

"I must say I think it was timely."

THE BROKEN ENGAGEMENT.

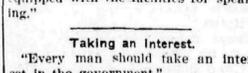

"Why did you pass him up, Ethel? I thought you liked him?"

"I liked him well enough, but I couldn't go through life with him. I didn't care for the make of his car."

DRY WIT.

"Pa what is dry wit?"

"Dry wit, my son, is the clever stuff men demand from others when they're sober. It's infinitely harder to think of than the stuff they'll laugh at when they're drinking."

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Get less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder both.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

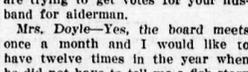

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

No Doubt About It.

Lawyer—As a matter of fact, you were scared half to death, and don't know whether it was a motor car or something resembling a motor car that hit you.

Victim—It resembled one, all right. I was forcibly struck by the resemblance.

NOT A POLITICAL REASON.

Mrs. Hoyle—I understand that you are trying to get votes for your husband for alderman.

Mrs. Doyle—Yes, the board meets once a month and I would like to have twelve times in the year when he did not have to tell me a fish story regarding where he had spent the evening.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as no many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents. Also mention the paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Mammoth American Spring.

Where is the largest spring in the world? Florida has one which must be near the head of the list. This is called Wakulla spring. It is 400 feet across, is 80 feet deep and flows at the rate of 120,000 gallons of water every minute. It gives rise to a river 250 feet wide at its source. This mammoth spring is situated about 15 miles from Tallahassee.—The Outlook.

WHAT TO DO FOR GRIP

By J. Madison Taylor, A. B., M. D.
Professor of Applied Therapeutics,
Temple University, Medical Department

Certain simple measures have proved so helpful in relieving the distresses and contributing to cure, which may be called accessory or supplemental, that they seem to me "worth putting in the papers." I have been employing them since the epidemic of 1889 with good effect. Many physicians adopt similar ones, but some rely mainly on medicine. Whatever assists the particular medication employed deserves consideration.

In this epidemic certain features are more prominent than in others, tho they usually occur. They are chills, pains in the head, in the back, a sense of "breaking bones," also now a pain in the right side, low down, which is ascribed to the liver, or, as it seems to me, more often an involvement of the diaphragm and attachments and the pleura. The temperature runs higher now, even when there is no pneumonia. In most of the cases I meet the fever subsides on the third or fourth day, unless broncho-pneumonia follows.

My routine is to use a hot foot bath for ten minutes as often as the headache and back pains increase, the legs hanging over the side of the bed, the body lying flat all the time; next an enema of warm water, one quart, salt and bicarbonate of soda, each a tablespoonful, run slowly in from a height of three or four feet, stopping when a pain in the stomach occurs, then continuing. Use a bedpan if the bowels move, but the object is to retain the saline solution for absorption and to wash out the blood vessels. If the temperature be very high, this can be used as cool; if low, it can be used hot, so as to equalize the temperature in the abdominal vessels.

After that let the patient lie on the breast, apply a damp blanket or piece of woolen cloth to the whole back and pass a warm flatiron up and down for five minutes, lifting away if it burns, and then drop again and proceed. This relieves the back and side pain and headache, and can be repeated with great satisfaction whenever it relieves; it also induces comfortable sweating.

Whenever the temperature rises above 103 degrees it is also well to sponge with tepid water, as in typhoid or other fever. This induces rest and always restlessness. In pneumonia these combined measures seem to reduce the cough, too. It is well to use no foods whatsoever for three days, except fruit juice, orange or lemon juice. To all drinking water add a teaspoonful of salt to the pint, so as to supply the immense loss of sodium chloride which occurs and to encourage the drinking of water thus fortified by the salt. To this may be added fruit juice or grape juice, or other agreeable fluid. After the third day, and not before, some food may be taken, preferably buttermilk, but not meat soups, because animal broths contain much that the body is already striving to get rid of. This starvation seems to help the liver to empty out its contents, and to give it and the whole group of digestive organs, a rest.

It is well to repeat the saline enema every day for four or five days. Of course, absolute rest, flat on the back or side, must be enforced; no sitting up in bed, even for examination of chest or back. During convalescence this rest is also imperative. Fatalities occur in proportion as exertion is made or failure to relieve the distresses, such as the cough and dyspnoea.

JERSEY URGES NATION-WIDE FIGHT ON MOSQUITOES

Big Increase in Value of Farm Lands Cited if Pest is Wiped Out—Plans Renewed to Get $150,000 a Year From State.

Jersey Mosquito exterminators in the seventh annual convention of the state association at Atlantic City Friday, launched a drive to nationalize the movement to indict the mosquito as a menace to public health. It is expected that the campaign will have the energetic support of the federal public health service, and that virtually every state where malaria is a problem will be persuaded to provide liberally for the abolition of the pest.

The state association voted also to press once more for legislative action at Trenton for the appropriation of $150,000 annually for five years to extend and speed up the efforts to rid New Jersey of all its mosquito-breeding areas.

can be increased $100,000,000. Suppressing of the mosquito by the removal of stagnant water on the coastal marshes will open the way for the conversion of 140,000 acres of waste ocean-front lands into $200,000,000 of assets. Large as is the present valuation of the seashore resort industry, it has not yet realized more than 10 per cent of its possibilities.

There is talk of holding the next convention in Trenton in order that the legislators might be invited to attend the discussions on the work. Another resolution asked that the various county commissions prepare reports of their operations for municipal governing bodies, with the view of obtaining greater financial support.

DISCOVERS NEW STEEL

Inventor of Vanadium Steel Perfects New Process.

New Product Far in Advance of Any High Speed Steel Hitherto Made.

London.—The invention of a new steel, far in advance of any high speed steel hitherto made, is ascribed by the Daily Mail to John Oliver Arnold, professor of metallurgy at Sheffield university. Professor Arnold, who is said to have been the discoverer of vanadium steel, claims, according to the Daily Mail, that the new steel possesses far more commercial possibilities, that it is unrivaled in hardness, that in tool form it will remove a greater weight than any other steel, and that it possesses comparatively longer life.

The Daily Mail indicates that Professor Arnold uses molybdenum instead of tungsten, and says: "If large quantities of molybdenum (a hard silver white metallic element) can be found and the price reduced, tungsten will take a back seat, because 6 per cent molybdenum will achieve more than 13 per cent tungsten."

LOST GOLD MINE IS FOUND

Object of Twenty Years' Fruitless Search at Last Has Been Rediscovered.

Spokane, Wash.—The "lost" gold mine of the upper Salmon river district of Idaho, source for years of mysterious wealth for its original discoverers and cause of the death of one of them, and the object of a 20 years' fruitless search by their "legatee," has been rediscovered, according to a report reaching here.

For many years two prospectors, Hughes and Swan, went every spring on a mysterious journey into the hills of central Idaho, and every fall returned with quantities of raw gold, which made them the envy of every miner to whose ears word of their great good fortune had come. Then one fall Hughes fell sick and Swan, his partner, was waylaid and robbed of his summer's toil in the hidden mine and murdered. Hughes died at length in poverty in this city. The mine has been located, according to a report from Lewistown, Idaho, by two Jonson brothers of that city. It is declared to be on a tributary canyon of Ramsey creek in the upper Salmon river district of central Idaho. The ledge proper is declared to be from four to six feet wide, with a rich streak of quartz, in which the gold is easily visible to the naked eye, four to six inches in width.

REBUILD NOTED GLASS PLANT

French Start Work on Solssons Factory for Champagne Containers—Destroyed in War.

Solssons.—Structural steel is rising out of the ruins at Cuffies, just outside of Solssons, where the Wauxsot champagne bottle works employed 1,200 workers before the war.

The frame work for the first three units is up and by September, the owners say, the production of champagne bottles will begin again. A year later a second furnace is expected to be fired and in another year a third will be operating.

There was nothing else at Cuffies besides the glass works. There remain of the old construction only a few foundations and here and there a bit of solid masonry. The walls of the plant were pierced and tunnels leading to the German trenches blasted through the foundations and huge melting pots by the Germans. The loss is estimated by the owners at from 20,000,000 to 24,000,000 francs.

Eight to nine million champagne bottles more than a tenth of the French production were made at Cuffies. It was the second largest factory of its kind in France. There were ten in all, and eight of these were destroyed. This destruction contributed to the increase of the price of champagne bottles from 6 to 24 cents during the war.

Prehistoric Tree Trunk Found in Iron Mine

St. Paul, Minn.—Discovery has just been made in the Holman iron mine, near Taconite, Itasca county, Minnesota, not far from the source of the Mississippi river, of the trunk and branches of a prehistoric pine tree in an excellent state of preservation and with pine cones about it. The tree is not petrified. The wood is as sound in the main as though it had been felled only a few years ago and the pine cones are still pliable. The wood with exposure to air has not softened or crumbled, and the find is the first of its kind on record so far as geologists of the great iron ranges can learn.

at the 1920-1921 session of the Legislature to place mosquito eradication work on a permanent and state-wide basis, William B. Becker, chief of this section, declared in his address this afternoon.

Alfred Gaskill, director of the department of conservation and development of New Jersey, made an appeal for a larger measure of state aid. "If mosquito control is as closely related to state welfare as we believe it to be, must it not be brought into closer touch with the state as distinguished from local interests?" Director Gaskill said. "In a word, it must become a vital part of the state's road, school, industrial and food program."

Commenting on the work in Greater New York, Eugene Winship, sanitary engineer of the Department of Health of New York City, reported that the

SON OF JERSEY MAY BE PRESIDENT

Nicholas Murray Butler, Born in Elizabeth, Is Regarded as State's Favorite Son.

WIDE POLITICAL EXPERIENCE. His Life and Training Such That Both His Candidacy and Service Would Be Able and Insure Prosperity to Nation.

Nicholas Murray Butler, who has been proposed by his friends throughout the nation as the best fitted of all the candidates for the Republican nomination for President, is a son of New Jersey, having been born in the city of Elizabeth in 1883. Shortly after his birth his parents removed to Paterson, N. J., where he grew up and remained until some years after reaching his majority.

Paterson is rightly called a "beehive of industry." Everybody worked in Paterson when Butler was a boy there. During the two first vacations after he had reached big boy estate he began the normal life of his environment by working in his father's mill, getting wages just as other boys did, no more and not a penny less.

It was in an atmosphere of work that he grew up—an atmosphere in which work was the chief object of his life. "I am not likely ever to forget the precious things that I heard Nicholas Murray Butler in his childhood say. This youngster had a man's wit in a child's body, and it was impossible to get the better of him. One day I heard a clergyman trying to joke him by saying, 'Nick,' said he, 'can you tell me what the earth's axis is?'" "Yes, sir," answered Nick. "It is an imaginary line passing from one pole to the other, and on it the earth revolves."

"Very good," said the minister. Then he winked at the rest of us. "And I suppose, Nick," he went on, "that you could hang a wash out on the imaginary line?" "The minister looked blank at that. It was not the kind of an answer he had expected.

"Oh, you could, could you?" he asked. "What kind of a wash?" "An imaginary wash," young Nick replied.

Political Office Pursued Him. Later, after he became a resident of New York state, the political office continued to pursue him, and he continued to resist temptation. Three times he was urged to become the Republican candidate for mayor of New York, and on one of these occasions a Republican was elected to the office. Twice he was urged to run for governor of New York state—in 1904, when the nomination was equivalent to election, and in 1912, when the situation was more dubious. All these proffered opportunities he refused.

During the nearly 10 years while Theodore Roosevelt was governor of New York state and President of the nation Nicholas Murray Butler was his most intimate unofficial counselor. They were in daily contact throughout this long and intensely important period, either by correspondence or personal association, and Mr. Butler shared to an extent which even his close friends did not dream, until after Roosevelt's death, in shaping the policies which made the great Rough Rider the idol of the nation.

In American political life he has played an important role. Probably he has refused more cabinet positions than any other man alive. Roosevelt wanted him and really wanted him very much. But Mr. Butler could not see his way to the acceptance of the proffered honor.

Indeed, every president since Benjamin Harrison has asked him to take a cabinet or diplomatic post except Grover Cleveland, who, although of opposite political faith, asked him to become a member of the National Civil Service Commission. He has been a delegate at four Republican national conventions—those of 1888, 1904, 1912 and 1916—and received the Republican electoral vote for vice-president of the United States in 1913. He has become famous in the party as the author of critical and difficult platform planks. During 1912 he acted as chairman of the New York State Republican Committee. He has been aptly termed "the wheel horse of the Republican Party."

Early Entered Politics. Nicholas Murray Butler's early political experience was full of satisfaction for so young a man, although it was marked by the refusal of rather than by election to public office. A purely political career was suggested to him by a Republican no less distinguished and important than Garrett A. Hobart, later vice president of the nation and at that time one of the most powerful Republican leaders in New Jersey and the nation.

The Butlers and the Hobarts were neighbors, and when Nicholas Murray Butler left college it was Garrett A. Hobart's own suggestion that he become a candidate for the New Jersey assembly.

The thought was tempting, but there had grown in young Butler another and greater desire the satisfaction of which conflicted with the possible gratification of this. Even as long ago as that he quite understood that the nations of the world were interdependent and that a fully equipped American must know, preferably at first hand, many things about other countries. The young man went abroad and there laid the foundations for his extraordinary friendships with men of the first importance in European affairs, friendships which he never has abandoned and which have been of great value to all concerned. He came back much benefited, and Mr. Hobart saw it instantly. Again the older man suggested to the youth a political career, but at the time to follow the suggestion was impossible, for young Butler never believed that politics should not be regarded as the means to a financial end, holding the view that they may be legitimately so regarded to be perhaps the greatest peril threat advantages derived from this work have been enormous. "The latent menace from the mosquito has been so far removed that it has been reduced to a minimum. Home sites are now available heretofore impossible, due to the mosquito. The original cost and maintenance of the work are small in comparison with the increased revenue derived from taxes and other valuations of marketable value."

Mr. Rider was elected president of the association. Other officers are: First vice president, Charles Lee Myers, of Jersey City; second vice president, W. A. Manchoe, of Newark; secretary-treasurer, Thomas J. Headlee, of New Brunswick; members of the executive committee, Joseph Camp, of Pierce; Reid Howell, of Rutherford; Edward W. Jackson, of Newark; William E. Darnell, of Atlantic City; H. H. Brinckerhoff, of Jersey City; Robert F. Engle, of Beach Haven; and Walter R. Hudson, of Paterson.

Beliefs That Center About Pearls. Many superstitious beliefs prevail in the East concerning pearls, those gems of the ocean deeps. For instance, it is a common practice (only among the rich, needless to say) to powder a pearl and swallow it either as a tonic for falling vigor or to ward off impending disease or ill luck; or a maiden may rub her eyes with a pearl and thereafter, by merely gazing at a man, she may make him her slave!

"Cures" for Rheumatism. Rheumatism is perhaps a disease which affects more people on this earth than any other complaint, and the writer agrees that a sample is ample! But the number of recommended "cures" embracing the common Glander's salts and the costliest drug, still seem to leave some sufferers to the annoying ache, a writer in London Answers states.

No More Fit of Anger. Anna, brooding very angry, bit her smaller sister. Her mother, hearing the little child cry, went to see what was the trouble. WHO'S WHO in the WORLD

YOUNG MEN AND GOVERNMENT JOBS

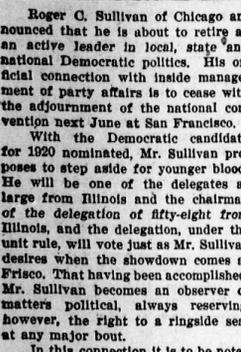

Senator Smoot of Utah, in an address in the senate on the joint resolution for the reclassification of salaries, had this to say, among other things:

"In my opinion those employees were most unfortunate when they landed in positions in the departments of our government. They ought to have entered into affairs of everyday life and business to battle for positions with their fellow men; but they came here and entered one of the departments, thinking that the government was at least a safe and sure paymaster and would be as long as they remained. A man is not in the government service for many years, however, before he becomes an absolute machine; he loses confidence in himself; he is fearful that if he loses his job in Washington he can not make a living for himself or his family elsewhere.

"It would be a godsend to every young man who has accepted a position under the government with a view of remaining here and making government service a life vocation if he were forcibly separated from the government service and compelled to use his energy and talents in battling with the outside world.

"Any man who stands at the head of a bureau or department of the government who will kick a young man out of the government service and force him into the active business life of this country, unless he is here for the purpose of acquiring an education, will confer upon the employee the greatest favor that he could possibly render him."

ROGER SULLIVAN TO QUIT IN JUNE

Roger C. Sullivan of Chicago announced that he is about to retire as an active leader in local, state and national Democratic politics. His official connection with inside management of party affairs is to cease with the adjournment of the national convention next June at San Francisco.

With the Democratic candidate for 1920 nominated, Mr. Sullivan proposes to step aside for younger blood. He will be one of the delegates at large from Illinois and the chairman of the delegation of fifty-eight from Illinois, and the delegation, under the unit rule, will vote just as Mr. Sullivan desires when the showdown comes at Frisco. That having been accomplished, Mr. Sullivan becomes an observer of matters political, always reserving, however, the right to a ringside seat at any major bout.

In this connection it is to be noted that Mr. Sullivan and former Mayor Carter H. Harrison entered the meeting of the Democratic national committee arm in arm. Mr. Sullivan and William Jennings Bryan have traveled together, ratified a peace treaty and settled all past differences. Terms have been signed up whereby there can be no Democratic primary fight in Chicago or Illinois during 1920, and the Sullivan organization takes unquestioned control of party affairs for four years.

NOSKE MUST KEEP BERLIN QUIET

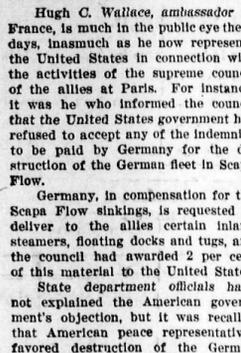

Rioting in Berlin and other cities of Germany directs attention to Gustav Noske, German minister of defense. Martial law, which had been done away with, was again declared and Noske was appointed commander in chief for the greater Berlin district and Brandenburg province. Noske is generally regarded as a strong man for whom drastic measures and bloodshed have no terrors.

The first rioting, which resulted in the death of forty-two persons and the wounding of 105, resulted from an attempt to start a general revolution. The uprising was led by radical government officials, it is officially declared. Developments indicate that President Ebert and Premier Bauer invited the trouble by the raising of the state of siege which had been hanging over Berlin since spring and in otherwise moderating the regulations calculated to restrain the independent and Communist agitators.

The government is apparently supported by all factions except the extreme radicals. The Social Democratic party has issued an appeal asking whether the workers will permit national representation to be placed under terrorism, and telling them that the German nation can be saved from complete destruction only by work.

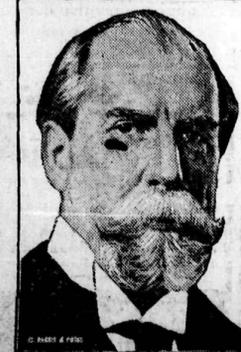

WALLACE ANSWERS FOR UNCLE SAM

Hugh C. Wallace, ambassador to France, is much in the public eye these days, inasmuch as he now represents the United States in connection with the activities of the supreme council of the allies at Paris. For instance, it was he who informed the council that the United States government has refused to accept any of the indemnity to be paid by Germany for the destruction of the German fleet in Scapa Flow.

Germany, in compensation for the Scapa Flow sinkings, is requested to deliver to the allies certain inland steamers, floating docks and tugs, and the council had awarded 2 per cent of this material to the United States. State department officials have not explained the American government's objection, but it was recalled that American peace representatives favored destruction of the German ships on the ground that their division among the other powers would make necessary for this country to greatly enlarge its naval building program.

WHAT RIGHTS HAS A SOCIALIST?

Charles E. Hughes of New York (portrait herewith) is a champion of the five suspended Socialist members of the New York assembly. The bar association of New York city adopted a resolution by a vote of 174 to 117 condemning the action of the New York assembly in temporarily denying seats to its five Socialist members. The resolution was proposed by Charles E. Hughes and was supported by George W. Wickesham, Charles S. Whitman, Henry L. Stimson, Morgan O'Brien and several other leaders of the New York bar.

In the New York assembly Mr. Hughes was denounced, by inference, as "pro-German" and "disloyal" by a Tammany assemblyman.

This case is different from the case of the Socialist, Berger, who was denied a seat in congress.

Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, in a public address, said Berger had been unseated for a specific act for which he had been tried, convicted and sentenced to prison. Senator Lenroot said he could not see any justification for the ousting of five Socialist members of the New York state assembly.

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS
Author of "Tarzan of the Apes" "Son of Tarzan"

"ALL NIGHT I SHALL TORTURE HIM."

Synopsis—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captives in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave raider, who spares his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke), and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Froucoit, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He learns his host is in financial straits and is planning an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar. Spying on Tarzan, Werper sees him load his blacks with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun Worshipers. A convulsion of Nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety Werper is seized by priests of the Flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be offered up as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion. Believing Tarzan dead his black followers return home with the lion. Achmet Zek, acting on Werper's information, has attacked the Greystoke home, burned it, and carried off Lady Greystoke. Mugambi, Tarzan's lieutenant, is severely wounded but recovers and follows the raiders. Lord Greystoke recovers consciousness, but the priest has destroyed his memory and he is again Tarzan of the Apes. He finds himself in the jewel room of Opar. He fills his pouch with "pretty pebbles"—cut diamonds of great value. He reaches the sacrificial chamber just as the lion halts the sacrifice of Werper by La. He is recognized by La, high priestess, whom he had known in previous years. He slays the lion and releases Werper. Tarzan and Werper watch the former's party return and bury the gold. Tarzan has no memory of the place. Werper steals the diamonds and escapes. Achmet Zek tells the Arab of the gold, but not of the diamonds. Achmet discovers Werper has the jewels, and the Belgian, fearing for his life, escapes with them. Tarzan misses Werper but does not discover the theft of the jewels. He resumes the life of a wild man.

For several hours Tarzan lolled upon his swaying, leafy couch until once again hunger and thirst suggested an excursion. Stretching lazily he dropped to the ground and moved slowly toward the river. Tarzan had almost reached the point where the trail debouched upon the open river bottom when he saw a family of lions approaching along the path from the direction of the river. The ape-man counted seven males and two lionesses, full grown, and four young lions as large as some of the formidable as their parents. Tarzan halted, growling, and the lions paused, the great male in the lead baring his fangs and rumbling forth a warning roar. In his hand the ape-man held his heavy spear; but he had no intention of pitting his puny weapon against seven lions; yet he stood there growling and roaring and the lions did likewise. It was purely an exhibition of jungle bluff. Each was trying to frighten the other. Neither wished to turn back and give way, nor did either at first desire to precipitate an encounter. The lions were fed up sufficiently so as not to be goaded by pangs of hunger and as for Tarzan he seldom ate the meat of the carnisores; but a point of ethics was at stake, neither side wished to back down. So they stood there facing one another, making all sorts of hideous noises the while they buried jungle invective back and forth.

There came an interruption which put an end to the deadlock and it came from Tarzan's rear. He and the lions had been making so much noise that neither could hear anything above their concerted bedlam, and so it was that Tarzan did not hear the great bulk bearing down from behind until an instant before it was upon him, and then he turned to see Buto, the rhinoceros, his little pig eyes blazing, charging madly toward him and already so close that escape seemed impossible; yet so perfectly were mind and muscles co-ordinated in this unspooled, primitive man that almost simultaneously with the sense-perception of the threatened danger he wheeled and hurled his spear at Buto's chest. It was a heavy spear shot with iron, and behind it were the giant muscles of the ape-man, while coming to meet it was the enormous weight of Buto and the momentum of his rapid rush. All that happened in the instant that Tarzan turned to meet the charge of the irascible rhinoceros might take long to tell, and yet would have taxed the swiftest lens to record. As his spear left his hand the ape-man was looking down at the mighty horse lowered to lose him, so close was Buto to him. The spear entered the rhinoceros' neck at its junction with the left shoulder and passed almost entirely through the beast's body, and at the instant that he launched it, Tarzan leaped straight into the air, alighting upon Buto's back, but escaping the mighty horn.

Then Buto espied the lions and bore madly down upon them while Tarzan of the Apes leaped nimbly into the tangled creepers at one side of the trail. The first lion met Buto's charge and was tossed high over the back of the maddened brute, torn and dying, and then the six remaining lions were upon the rhinoceros, rending and tearing the while they were being gored or trampled. From the safety of his perch Tarzan watched the battle royal with the keenest interest. For a time it seemed that Buto, the rhinoceros, would prove victor in the gory battle. Already had he accounted for four of the seven lions and badly wounded the three remaining when, in a temporary lull in the encounter, he sank limply to his knees and rolled over upon his side. Tarzan's spear had pierced the great lungs, and Buto, with victory almost in sight, succumbed to internal hemorrhage.

Then Tarzan came down from his sanctuary and as the wounded lions, growling, dragged themselves away, the ape-man cut his spear from the body of Buto, hacked off a steak and vanished into the jungle. The episode was over. It had been all in the day's work—something which you and I might talk about for a lifetime. Tarzan dismissed from his mind the moment that the scene passed from his sight.

Swinging back through the jungle in a wide circle the ape-man came to the river at another point, drank and took to the trees again and while he hunted, all oblivious of his past and careless of his future, there came through the dark jungles and the open, park-like places and across the wide meadows, where grazed the countless herbivora of the mysterious continent, a weird and terrible caravan in search of him. There were fifty frightful men with hairy bodies and garbled and crooked legs. They were armed with knives and great bludgeons and at their head marched an almost naked woman, beautiful beyond compare. It was La of Opar, High Priestess of the Flaming God, and fifty of her black priests, searching for the purloiner of the sacred sacrificial knife.

Never before had La passed beyond the crumbling outer walls of Opar; but never before had need been so insistent. The sacred knife was gone! Handed down through countless ages it had come to her as a heritage and looked down with loathing and contempt upon the mishapen creatures amongst which cruel fate had thrown her and to some extent vented upon them her dissatisfaction and her thwarted love. She made them build her a strong protection and shelter each night and keep a great fire burning before it from dusk to dawn. When she tired of walking they were forced to carry her upon an improvised litter, nor did one dare to question her authority or her right to such services.

For many days they marched, the apes following the trail easily and going a little distance ahead of the body of the caravan that they might warn the others of impending danger. It was during a noonday halt while all were lying resting after a tiresome march that one of the apes rose suddenly and sniffed the breeze. In a low guttural he cautioned the others to silence and a moment later was swinging quietly up wind into the jungle. La and the priests gathered silently together, the hideous little men fingering their knives and bludgeons, and awaited the return of the shaggy anthropoid.

Nor had they long to wait before they saw him emerge from a leafy thicket and approach them. Straight to La he came and in the language of the great apes, which was also the language of decadent Opar, he addressed her.

"The great Tarmangal lies asleep there," he said, pointing in the direction from which he had just come. "Come and we can kill him."

"Do not kill him," commanded La in cold tones. "The great Tarmangal is to live and unhurt. The vengeance is La's. Go; but make no sound!" and she waved her hands to include all her followers.

Cautiously the weird party crept through the jungle in the wake of the great ape until at last he halted them with a raised hand and pointed upward a little ahead. There they saw the giant form of the ape-man stretched along a low bough and even in sleep one hand grasped a stout limb and one strong, brown leg reached out and overlapped another. At ease lay Tarzan of the Apes, sleeping heavily upon a full stomach and dreaming of Numa, the lion, and Horatia, the boar, and other creatures of the jungle. No scene and no sound became the dormant faculties of the ape-man—he saw no crouching hairy figures upon the ground beneath him nor the three apes that swung quietly into the tree beside him.

The first intimation of danger that came to Tarzan was the impact of three bodies as the three apes leaped upon him and hurled him to the ground, where he alighted half stunned beneath their combined weight, and was immediately set upon by the fifty hairy men or as many of them as could swarm upon his person. In- stantly the ape-man became the center of a whirling, striking, biting maelstrom of horror. He fought nobly, but the odds against him were too great. Slowly they overcame him, though there was scarce one of them did not feel the weight of his mighty fist or the reading of his fangs.

CHAPTER X.

Condemned to Torture and Death.

La had followed her company and when she saw them clawing and biting at Tarzan she raised her voice and cautioned them not to kill him. She saw that he was weakening and that soon the greater numbers would prevail over him, nor had she long to wait before the mighty jungle creature lay helpless and bound at her feet.

"Bring him to the place at which we stopped," she commanded, and they carried Tarzan back to the little clearing and threw him down beneath a tree.

"Build me a shelter!" ordered La. "We shall stop here tonight and tomorrow in the face of the Flaming God La will offer up the heart of this defiler of the temple. Where is the sacred knife? Who took it from him?"

But no one had seen it and each was positive in his assurance that the sacred weapon had not been upon Tarzan's person when they captured him. The ape-man looked upon the menacing creatures which surrounded him and snarled his defiance. He looked upon La and smiled. In the face of death he was unafraid.

Wisdom in Judge's Charge

Irish Jurist Warned "Good Men and True" Against Being "Obfuscated" by the Lawyers.

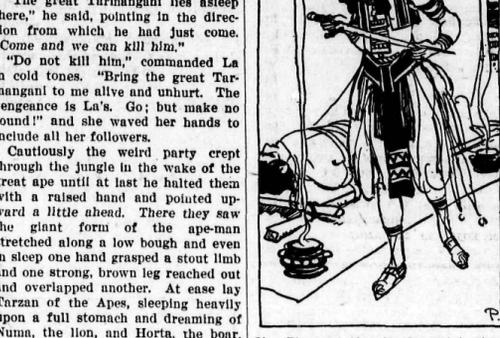

Round the library fire in the Four Courts Dublin, Irish barristers long have gathered to spin yarns of their profession while waiting for briefs. One of these stories was of a novel charge to a jury given by a Gaelic judge, which is recalled by a writer in the Irish World, as follows:

"Gentlemen of the jury," a judge began when counsel for the defense had concluded an eloquent and elaborate address. "Gentlemen of the jury, there are two courses, do you observe, to be adopted by counsel. The first is simple enough. If he has a middling case he endeavors to convince the jury. But if he has no case at all, if the evidence is as plain as day, do you see, as the nose on his face, and no one but a fool or a juror could be asked to have a doubt about it, then counsel endeavors to obfuscate the jury! For counsel seems to think that when intelligent men come into a jury box they hang up their common sense with their hats and coats on the pegs behind them."

Insisted on Their Silk.

So enamored of silk were our own colonial dames that the colonial fathers found it necessary to frown on the "indulgences." Accordingly, they passed a law that "no silk stuffs in garments or in pieces (except for hoods and scarfs) should be imported."

Another case of feminine instinct versus man's law—the women would have their silken underwear. And not only did they risk their immortal souls for silk, but for pink silk! These frivolous garments were mentioned in their wills and bequeathed as important legacies to their nearest and dearest friends.

She Fingered Her Knife and Looked Down Upon Her Captive.

strands that bound his wrists and ankles, for he had strained often but ineffectually for release. He had no hope of outside help and only enemies surrounded him within the camp, and yet he smiled at La as she paced nervously back and forth the length of the shelter.

And La? She fingered her knife and looked down upon her captive. She glared and muttered but she did not strike. "Tonight," she thought. "Tonight, when it is dark I will torture him." She looked upon his perfect, godlike figure and upon his handsome, smiling face and then she steeled her heart again by thoughts of her love spurned; by religious thoughts that damned the infidel who had desecrated the holy of holies; who had taken from the blood-stained altar of Opar the offering to the Flaming God—and not once but thrice. Three times had Tarzan cheated the god of her fathers. At the thought La paused and knelt at his side. In her hand was a sharp knife. She placed its point against the ape-man's side and pressed upon the hilt; but Tarzan only smiled and shrugged his shoulders.

Tantor to the Rescue

The Sea-Wolf.

Of all the inhabitants of the ocean few are more destructive to the seal-wolf, kind of Dolphin which attains, when full grown, a length of 14 feet and a weight of 3,000 pounds. When a mother walrus perceives a sea-wolf it endeavors to throw its cub on an iceberg, if one is near. Falling in this, it gets the cub on top of its head and swims with it above the water. But this is vain. Diving far below, the fish of prey comes with tremendous force, striking the frantic mother a terrific blow and jolting the cub off its head into the water. Here it falls an easy victim to the assault and is soon devoured.

Possible Cause of Fever.

The Medical Journal asks if "all fever, or at least a large proportion of it, may not be due to some change in the fluids of the body which prevents water from being available as perspiration which by its evaporation serves to keep the body cool."

It may be that the practice of making a fever patient perspire freely has another purpose than the washing out of impurities from the blood, this being an actual cooling by evaporation. "An abundance of water has been found beneficial in fevers, and there are many clinicians who are decidedly of the opinion that cold-water baths have much more than merely a direct and mechanical refrigerating purpose, for they are followed by rather free diuresis and often also by perspiration. Indeed, one of the great indications for bath in fever is that the skin is dry and hot, for it is under these circumstances that the bath will do much good."

Blame Nightmare on Demon.

In some portions of the continent of Europe nightmare is believed to be a spectral creature that comes and takes a seat on the breast of the unconscious sleeper, half smothering him and not permitting him to move. As those who have suffered therefrom say they cannot so much as bend the little finger during those moments of anguish, it is not surprising that the superstitious explained the condition as a malicious demon crushing his victim.

Optimist.

Growler—Yes, in the end, we all get six feet of earth.

Cheerup—What would you do if they discovered all on your plot before you died?

An Imitation Takes For Its Pattern the Real Article

There was never an imitation made of an imitation. Imitators always counterfeit the genuine article. The genuine is what you ask for, because genuine articles are the advertised ones. Imitations are not advertised, but depend for their business on the ability of the dealer to sell you something claimed to be "just as good" when you ask for the genuine, because he makes more profit on the imitation. Why accept imitations when you can get the genuine by insisting?

Refuse Imitations. Get What You Ask For!

If Your Business Isn't Worth Advertising

One of the strangest things in advertising or in printing is that a man will start out with the intention of having the best that he can get. He will find, let us say, that it is going to cost $100, but that by skimping a little bit he can get it for $10. Taking that 90% of the price and out of quality is just like taking the edge of a knife. You can cut some things with a dull knife, but there are some things you can't cut with it, and you can't cut anything as quickly, smoothly, cleanly and thoroughly as you can with a sharp knife. Advertising ought to have a razor edge, even if it does cost a little bit for grinding. It ought to be keen enough to enter the brain of greatest resistance.

It is the last few dollars that are spent on advertising that give it value. It is the last pound of power that lifts a weight. If it takes a strain of 1900 pounds to break a weight, 999 pounds wouldn't do and good. You can spend 999 pounds on it, and leave it just where it is, and you can spend one more pound and add the other pound to it after all.

It would have been better to have used 1000 pounds at the start. It is better to spend $100 for a thoroughly effective booklet than to spend $100 for one that is inefficient.—Shoe and Leather Trade.

RED CROSS LAYS PLANS FOR 1920

Substantial Sum is to be Kept in Reserve in Case of Sudden Disaster

Out of a fund of $30,000,000 available for its work this year, the American Red Cross has set aside $15,000,000 for European relief, $13,750,000 for use at home and $1,250,000 for completing its program in Siberia.

In making public plans for carrying forward peace time activities, Dr. Farrand, head of the organization, declared that a considerable reserve must be held for emergency calls "incident to such possible events as the opening of Russia to intercourse with the United States." This determination, Dr. Farrand said, was reached after long and full consideration with government representatives in this country and Europe.

With appeals infinitely beyond its resources, and unable to count on additions to its total fund during the year, the executive committee, Dr. Farrand said, found it "both wise and necessary to consider the application of its funds so that the soundest possible sense of proportion might prevail."

All obligations to soldiers, sailors and their families must be provided for, Dr. Farrand reported, while the Red Cross must be ready at the same time to meet relief demands due to disasters.

"We are pledged," he added, "to the establishment of a peace-time program in America for which $13,750,000 will be made available. In considering this item it must be kept clearly in mind that while expenditures in this country arising directly out of the war remain high they should rapidly diminish, and while our work for establishment of peace-time undertakings will increase in some measure, this increase will be inconsiderable as compared with the reduction of war items."

THE EGYPTIAN LOTUS

(In an artificial pond.)
Proud, languid lily of the sacred Nile,
'Tis strange to see thee on our western wave,
Far from those sandy shores, that mile on mile,
Papyrus-plumed, stretch silent as the grave.

O'er dark, mysterious pool and sheltered bay,
And round deep dreaming isles thy leaves expand,
Where Alexandrian barges plow their way,
Full freighted, to the ancient Theban land.

On Karnak's lofty columns thou wert seen,
And spandrels Luxor's temple-palace walls,
Each royal Pharaoh's emerald queen
Chose thee to deck her glittering banquet halls;

Yet thou art blossoming on this fair lake
As regally, amidst these common things,
As on the shores where Nile's soft ripples break,
As in the halls of old Egyptian kings.

Thy grace charms, day by day, men's curious eyes,
But he whose outer senses thought hath probed,
Looking at thee, sees stately temples rise
About him, and the long lines of priests, white-robed,

That chant strange music as they slowly pace
Dim-columned aisles; hears, trembling, overhead,
Echoes that lose themselves in that vast space,
Of Egypt's solemn ritual for the dead.

Aye, deeper thoughts than these, though undefined,
Wake in the quickened soul at sight of thee,
For this majestic orient faith enshrined
Man's yearning hope for immortality.

And thou wert Egypt's symbol of the power
That under all decaying form lies hid:
The old world worshipped thee, O Lotus flower,
Then carved its sphinx and reared its pyramid.
—Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton.

DECIDING ON THE BREED OF FOWL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A small flock of hens can be kept with profit by many city dwellers who have a back yard. Even as few as eight or ten hens should produce eggs enough, when used economically, for a family of four or five persons throughout the year, except the molting period of the fall and early winter.

Householders usually desire not only eggs for the table and for cooking, but also an occasional chicken to eat. For this reason one of the general-purpose breeds, such as Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Rhode Island Red, or Orpington, is preferable to the smaller egg breeds, such as the Leghorns. Not only do the mature fowls of these breeds, because of their large size, make better table fowls than the Leghorns, but the young chickens for the same reason make better fryers and roasters, whereas chickens of the egg breeds are suitable only for the smaller broilers.

The general-purpose breeds are also "broody" breeds, the hens making good sitters and mothers, which is a decided advantage when it is desired to hatch and raise chickens, since the hens of the egg breeds seldom go broody and are in any event rather unreliable sitters and mothers. If, however, the production of eggs outweighs the desire for an occasional table fowl, the lighter egg breeds undoubtedly will be found better, because they lay as many eggs and do so on less feed, with the result that they produce the eggs more cheaply. It is by all means advisable to keep some pure breed or variety. Where this is done, sales at a profitable figure can often be made of breeding stock intended for market, or of eggs for hatching.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

There are no points of the compass on the chart of true patriotism.
All good ends can be worked out by good means. Those that can not be had, and may be counted so at once and left alone.

While we walk through the valley of youth, its beauty, its variety, its pleasant greenward and dancing lights and shadows make us forget that it lies low. As we climb into middle age the road is steep, but we know that each step takes us nearer the sun.

Must Have Good Tools.

As long ago as the time of the cave dweller, prehistoric man learned that the best arrow or spear was tipped with the best piece of flint. In brief, to do good work you must have good tools. In the terms of today, this means that the expert or specialist must be preferred to the untrained.—William Roscoe Thayer.

Old Bach (dolefully)—
Yes, but some of us have very poor voices.

A Sad Materialist.
"Your favorite musical instrument is the ukulele?"
"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox. "It doesn't make much noise at best; and when you get tired of listening to it you can demolish it without anything like the expense that would attach to smashing a grand piano or a good violin."

Eider Ducks Pluck the Down; Later Gathered for Export

Eider ducks breed in thousands on some of the smaller islands off the coast of Iceland. The birds are so tame that they will allow anyone to stroke their feathers or lift them from their nests. This is because they are protected for the down, which is a large item of export from Iceland. The birds pluck the down from their breasts to line their nests. When these are well lined the owner of the land takes the down from the nests. The ducks take more down from their breasts, and again it is removed from the nests. For the third time the ducks pluck down from their breasts, and this time they are not disturbed till the eggs are hatched, then the remaining down is taken.—The Girls' World.

Each Chinese Syllable Has an Average of 105 Meanings

The Chinese language, before the attempt was made to give China a national writing in what is now known as the Chu Yin Tzu-Mu, was entirely made up of monosyllables, there being 420 in all in the official Pekingese dialect. The imperial dictionary, still the standard, although it is two centuries old, contains 44,449 words. Each Chinese syllable has an average of 105 meanings. They are distinguished by the slight difference of pronunciation and by the association of one word with the one next to it. Each of the 105 variations of the same monosyllable is an entirely distinct word to the Chinese. Each has an ideograph which bears no suggestion of the 104.

Cliff Dwellers of Mesa Verde Were Small People But Not of Pygmy Type

The Mesa Verde National park, in Colorado, was created for the preservation of its wonderful prehistoric cliff houses. The bureau of American ethnology, in co-operation with the department of the interior, has increased their educational importance by the excavation and repair of these monuments.

There are many known mummies of the cliff dwellers of the Mesa Verde in American museums, and while they show that the cliff dwellers were a small people, they were not pygmies. The widespread belief that they were pygmies very naturally arose from the small size of the doorways and rooms of cliff dwellers. Prehistoric buildings in the region mentioned, made of huge stones called megaliths, were built before the builders had developed the skill shown in the later constructions. Evidences are

Scout Naturalist Advises Boys Not to Limit Walks to Roads and Beaten Paths

"Do not limit your winter walks to the roads and the beaten paths," advises Edward F. Bigelow, the scout naturalist in Boys' Life. "What may be necessary in the marshland of the summer, but when the freezing weather has been prolonged take to the swamps. But be careful. Even the coldest weather sometimes leaves treacherous places in the underbrush and in other sheltered spots. Sometimes the frost is only superficial even when ice on the open ponds is thick. A little good, plain common sense will discover the riches and avoid the danger. One never can see the best parts of a brook bank from the opposite bank. They must be seen from the middle of the stream. I never thoroughly realized that until I started out with camera and rubber boots so that I could safely go into water about a foot and a half or two feet in depth. The ice fringed the ornate palaces, the wondrous recesses, the strings of jewels, the fairyland caves are all beyond our most vivid dreams. I cannot sufficiently emphasize this, because I know that there are scouts who will not believe, no matter how often I reiterate, I did not believe it myself until I tried it, and the trial was almost by chance. But when I discover this foreign fairyland, I hold it in my possession and frequently explore it. There are many puzzles in that icy region. One cannot even imagine how some of those formations could have been made, but some of them may be puzzled out, and solving the problem is always entertaining and more so than finding the answer to word puzzles. Things are more interesting than words."

Minister Was Inventor of First Percussion Lock for Fire Arms; First Used 1825

The first percussion lock for fire arms was invented and patented in 1807 by the Rev. Alexander J. Forsyth, a Scottish clergyman, who was born Dec. 28, 1768. Firearms were first made in Italy in the fourteenth century, and were employed in war by the Burgundians at Arras in 1414. These first small arms were really small cannons, and were borne by two men. In 1471 Edward IV. had 3000 Flemings armed with hand-guns in his army, and a little later the Swiss armed 10,000 men with arquebuses. The musket was employed in the army of Emperor Charles V. early in the sixteenth century. These rude firearms were at first discharged by the application of a flaming torch. About 1517 the wheel-lock method came into use, and afterward the flint was used, from 1602 until the Scottish clergyman invented the percussion principle of igniting gun powder in muskets, by means of detonating powder. The flint-lock guns were used by all the European armies during the early period of the Napoleonic wars, and only a few guns embodying Forsyth's invention were in use a century ago. Percussion caps were first generally used about 1825.

Achilles' Shield.
In early days some armor must have been very beautiful. Homer, describes the famous shield of Achilles, made for him, so the story goes, by Hephaestus, the smith of the mythical inhabitants of Olympus. It was covered with pictures of cities and the people therein, soldiers lurking in a vineyard, farmers working in their fields, and wild animals. If the shield itself was nearly as beautiful as Homer's description of it, it must have been a wondrous work of art.

THE WHIPPOORWILLS.
"I never believe in hurrying," said Mrs. Whippoorwill. "Now, there are so many mother birds who hurry up and have the eggs all hatched out in the spring. But I wait until it is summer. Yes, it has to be June before I so much as lay the eggs. Then there are some fathers who do too much; they fuss over too many eggs."
"I only lay two, but they are beautiful! Ah, such lovely, creamy-looking eggs, with little spots of brown and gray and lavender. And I just lay the eggs on the ground, in the weeds, where it is cool and lonely."
"There are some creatures who are so fussy about the sort of home they have. Now, I am only fussy about the neighborhood."
"That is where we agree so perfectly," said Mr. Whippoorwill. "It is the neighborhood that I am fussy about. All the whippoorwills have been the same way. The family has always cared for the neighborhood."
"You remember our old relative, who was taken to the zoo, don't you?"
"I don't believe I do," said Mrs. Whippoorwill; "and I am not quite sure that I know what a zoo is."
"I will tell you," said Mr. Whippoorwill. "A zoo is a place where there are animals and birds and snakes and peacocks, and all sorts of creatures. They're by themselves—that is, families are together."
"I am glad to hear that," said Mrs. Whippoorwill. "I couldn't quite imagine how a lion and giraffe would sit down together and have a chat, any more than a bird would chirp to a snake, who would answer in hisses!"
"They're separated," said Mr. Whippoorwill. "Then children and grown-ups come to see the animals and study them and their ways, and it's really a most interesting place."
"But it wouldn't suit our family. We, as I said, and as you said, are fussy about the neighborhood. We do not like the neighborhood of the zoo."
"We don't care to be where there are lots and lots of animals all around and where we have to stay in just a

THE DANIELS—"THE DISTINGUISHED CAR"

MATHIS MOTOR COMPANY WILL HANDLE "DISTINGUISHED CAR" IN ADDITION TO TEMPLAR

In addition to the Templar Car, which has made such a favorable impression in Trenton and Philadelphia, the Mathis Motor Company, of 19 South Montgomery street, Trenton, has announced that Ralph C. Spackman will also be the representative of the Daniels Eight, the Distinguished Car, which is being built by the Daniels Motor Car Company, of Reading, Pa.

The Daniels has many features that are sure to attract the purchaser, who is noted for its individuality as well as its speed, for the motor is capable of developing 90 horsepower.

The bodies of the car are made in five, six and seven-passenger touring four-passenger, close coupled touring, three-passenger roadster, limousine, suburban limousine, brougham, laudau brougham, collapsible winter roadsters or bodies may be made to order. The coach work is unsurpassed, it is claimed, and the colors may be selected by the purchaser. Every car also carries full equipment.

The Daniels was first shown at the Philadelphia show and a similar model will be on exhibition at the coming Trenton Auto Show.

The Mathis Motor Co., is headed by former Senator Thomas A. Mathis, who is well known here. The main office is at 674 North Broad street, Philadelphia. The Senator, up to the first of the year, handled the Marmon but gave up that agency in order to take on the Daniels and his choice was excellent.

A Daniels demonstrating car will be in Trenton shortly so that prospective owners may get a true line on its merits. The Mathis Company, at the present time has a full line of Templars as a carload was received last week.

The Moon and the Horizon.

According to astronomers it is owing to the atmosphere and the fact that lying low in the line of the earth it is unconsciously compared with other objects, that makes the moon look larger. Just as soon as the moon rises in the heavens and we look up to it without intervening or surrounding objects, it diminishes in apparent size.

COUNTY BOARD OF AGRICULTURE PLANS WORK FOR 1920

Work for 1920 in boosting Ocean county as a farm county was planned on Tuesday at a meeting of the County Board of Agriculture at the courthouse. It was the general opinion of those present that much better farming and much more farming could and should be done in Ocean county, and that it is the province of the board to bring about this desired change. The work of the County Farm Demonstrator was planned out for the year 1920.

It was said by all present to be the most enthusiastic and hopeful meeting yet held by the county board. Reports were received from the secretary, and the treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $277.80. County Agent Waite made his report for the year 1919, and also gave his recommendations for the present year. It was decided that the County Agent's work should be along these lines of development: Soil improvement, poultry management, corn variety tests, hog cholera inoculation, orchard management, sweet potato growing. Demonstrations will be made in all of these lines and data collected as to results.

Ezra Parker, of Barnegat, called attention of the board to the fact that seed corn did not develop properly in the south end of the county last fall and that farmers were saying there is no seed corn for the spring planting in all that section. It was decided to ask Mr. Salvador, the county club leader, to add seed corn testing as the work to be done by boys in the home-making contest in the public schools. The board will also urge all farmers to have their seed corn thus tested.

Depredations to crops on the part of deer came in for a long discussion. John T. Grey, of West Creek, and James E. Otis, of Tuckerton, were named a committee to see if some relief could be obtained for the farmer.

The following executive committee was appointed: Charles N. Warner, president, Toms River; D. W. Reid, vice-president, Laurelton; H. B. Scammell, secretary, Toms River; Charles S. Greene, treasurer, Lakewood; H. H. Ober and W. E. Holbrook, Lakewood; George Hartshorn, New Egypt; Fred Poppe, Webbville; John T. Grey, West Creek; F. H. Boucher, Toms River; James E. Otis, Tuckerton.

Brooks Asmus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Asmus, died at Rahway on Saturday night last with pneumonia. He was 22 years old. The body was brought here on Monday night. On Wednesday the family accompanied the body to Philadelphia where it was put in its final resting place in the family plot. Brooks will be missed very much here although he has been away for some time, making frequent trips home to see his parents.

Mrs. Eva Abbott is spending a few days in Philadelphia. William Lowery, of Philadelphia, was home for over Sunday.

The Pennsylvania R. R. work train and crew are in this locality repairing the long bridge across the bay so the trains can resume running. There has not been any train service from the beach since last Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary McNeil, of Erma, N. J., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lena Crane.

Several of the Coast Guard men have walked off from Barnegat City and reported the damage done by the storm in that place.

Warren Sprague and Miss Mertie Elberson spent Monday in Perth Amboy with the latter's brother.

There are rumors that the Standard Oil Company would like to buy more land here and put up another tank.

Mrs. Fannie Inman has been visiting her parents in Parkertown.

T. S. Sprague has opened a meat market in his store near the depot and has a nice line of meats on hand at all times.

Mrs. Exel Holmes is entertaining her mother from New York. Ralph Smith and Raymond Cranmer were home from the C. G. S., for a day this week.

Exel Holmes has rented Fred Shaf-t's garage and has started in business up there.

Mrs. Mary Crane is reported on the sick list. Mrs. Schroeder and daughter are spending the winter in New York City. On account of the severe weather, there has been no moving pictures the past week. Miss Edith Hezelton has returned to her work in Philadelphia, after spending a few days at home with her parents. Edward Inman is firing on the work train. Chester Shutes was home with his family for a few days this week. Mrs. Ruth Salmons is very ill at this writing.

"Broken Blossoms," the big motion picture sensation will be shown in the Manahawkin Amusement Hall on Friday and Saturday evenings, February 13th and 14th.

THE "TEMPLAR"

The Modern Funeral

NOT infrequently the funeral director is called upon to suggest or decide the style of casket to be used. In this case as in other details of the funeral arrangement the judgment of the experienced mortician is important and oftentimes saves the family embarrassment.

The style and character of the burial receptacle should be expressive of the habits and tastes of the person for whom it is intended.

Not only the casket but the furnishings—the handles and plate and interior linings should harmonize with that environment in which the departed moved and had his being.

New Fish and Game Legislation and Trenton Notes

SOME VIEWS OF A GUNNER ON GAME QUESTIONS. SEVERAL GAME BILLS INTRODUCED

New Fish and Game Bills
Five additional fish and game bills were introduced in the Assembly at Trenton last week. They are:

House 68, Mr. Gaede, which would provide fine of $5 on person harboring a cat caught killing or injuring birds or game.

House 76, Mr. Bowen, to prohibit liberation of foxes.

House 96, Mr. Baldwin, would exempt war veterans from fishing and hunting license law.

House 98, Mr. Bowen, has to do with location of sink boxes used by wild fowl hunters.

House 132, Mr. Roberts, authorizes the Fish and Game Commission to establish what would be in effect subsidiary game farms in various counties and to spend thereon not more than $2,500 annually.

Last year Mr. Gaede introduced a measure identical to House 68. It passed second reading in the Assembly, but did not come up again before adjournment. The enactment of either it or Senator Simpson's Audobon bill, Senate 50, would be welcomed by those sportsmen and other conservationists who know what terrible damage a marauding cat can inflict on wild life.

In 1912 a law was passed permitting clubs, hunting with horses and hounds to liberate foxes caught in this state. It is said that one such club freed 75 or more foxes last year. At the same time counties were paying substantial bounties for the killing of foxes, recognizing their menace to game and even to domestic fowls. If it were certain that all of the liberated foxes would be destroyed by the club hunters the situation would be different, but there is no question that more than a few of them escape to kill and to breed other killers. Hence House 76.

Sink-Boxes Urged in New Duck Bill
That wild-fowl gunning on New Jersey coastal bays may be made more popular is the aim of a bill to be introduced in the Legislature, permitting the shooting of such game from sink-boxes, anchored in deep water off-shore. The present law confines the hunters to shooting from blinds on the meadow shores. As virtually all of the good points have been purchased by native or non-resident gunners, thousands of sportsmen have become disgusted with the hunting conditions during recent years, when compelled to watch the millions of birds pass and settle with rarely a chance shot.

The new bill would permit the anchoring of the sink boxes or one-man batteries in the deep water where the birds now settle out of gun shot from shore. They would be far enough away not to interfere with shore-shooting, and many natives believe the mid-bay shooting would tend to improve the shore shooting by driving the ducks and geese to settling nearer the shore strands. The law would prohibit the anchoring of sink-boxes near natural feeding grounds or in channels or sluices.

The new bill will have the indorsement, it is understood, of the State Fish and Game Commission, whose members believe the increase in wild fowl as a result of the elimination of spring shooting by federal enactment warrants the taking of one of this type of game. The commission is also anxious to provide for sportsmen not so fortunate as to be members of clubs owning the pick of the gunning points an opportunity to enjoy the wild fowl hunting. The use of the batteries would be permitted only two days a week, Friday and Saturday, thruout the season, which would eliminate any danger of the birds being frightened permanently out of the bays.

A Gunner's Views on Game Questions
Mr. Henry L. Hazelton, a gunner, of Manahawkin, has written some interesting letters to the New Jersey Courier on game questions and we herewith pass them along for the benefit of the gunners. They follow with the comments of Editor Fischer:

Where is a Gunning License Good?
Where is a gunning license good? Perhaps some of our readers can answer this.

If I own a piece of property and the state or federal government wishes it for governmental use, the government would have to condemn that property and pay me for it, if I did not care to sell. I cite this to show that the highest authority in the land does not claim rights on private property.

A gunning license from the very necessity of the case is only a license to gun on somebody's land. The state has no land for the gunner, though it issues him a license. The only value of the license is to trespass on somebody else's property; and to trespass is to break the law.

Whether you gun on the upland or for wildfowl you trespass, unless you own the land you gun from: for in wildfowl shooting you must lie along the bank, and all the meadows are private property.

We are forced by the logic of the case to say that a gunner's license is of value only if the holder is a trespasser, unless he happens to own land where game can be had.

H. L. Hazelton.
Manahawkin, Jan. 24, 1290.

The above letter opens up a side of the gunning controversy that is seldom mentioned. It is entirely within the range of possibility that in time to come owners of lands will keep off trespassers and let their lands for the gunning season, as the habit is in Europe, and as is growing in this country. If that habit should become universal, what then?

It looks like a double-edged sword, one that cuts both ways. At present and for years past, the city dwellers, who own no hunting lands, have been making the game laws, and then using the lands of the men they oppose when they want to hunt.

Another Game Question
Why does the state protect me against my neighbor's stock, and refuse to let me protect myself against my own?

We acknowledge that the state replenishes the game from time to time in this state, but after having liberated said game it does not support it or make any claim on it. Therefore it must belong to the landowner from whose land it derives its living. Yet, if this game becomes so thick that it destroys the landowner's crops, the law says he must wait until a certain date, and between that and some other date, he may kill off the destroyers of his crops.

If your neighbor's stock destroys your vegetables, you can recover damages as soon as you have it appraised; but if wild game destroys your crops, and you wait until the date set by law, your crops are wasted and spoiled, someone else gets the game, and you cannot recover damages against the state.

Now if the state owns the game, should it not be responsible for the damage game may do, just as I am responsible if my cows or pigs should get in my neighbor's clover or corn?

On the other hand, if the game belongs to the land owner on whose land it subsists—who has fed it and raised it, even if unwillingly, and without any recompense from the state for his crops that the game fed upon, doesn't it seem logical and right and the only right, regardless of seasons or dates, to protect his crops against this game in the most effective way. And if he doesn't own the game, who does? How did they get title to it and when and where? And if they have title, why are they not responsible to the landowners for the crops destroyed by the game?

Manahawkin, February 2, 1920.
Henry L. Hazelton.

Mr. Hazelton has a way of asking pointed questions. Maybe you can answer him. I confess that in some respects he is pretty hard to contradict.

Another Query From H. L. H.
Can anyone tell me what the law forbidding the sale of wildfowl was intended to do, or why such a law was passed? We fail to see the good it does or could do if strictly lived up to. We already had a law limiting the gunner to a certain number of fowl he might kill in a day. We all agree this is a very good law and should have been put in force years ago. Now, after a man has stopped at the limit, does it not seem reasonable that the fowl he has killed belongs to him, and he has as much right to them and should be allowed to dispose of them the same as his potatoes and corn or any other crop he has raised? Why make him a criminal and a violator of a law that seems to have no real purpose or value?

I do not believe that this law has resulted in one less goose or duck being shot—I had almost said one less being sold. Wouldn't it be just as well to let the hunter sell his game as to put in the position of giving the fowl away and carrying the price of the birds for picking them? I fail to see the value of passing such laws that are useless and that are not observed. It weakens respect for all law in the minds of many.

Henry L. Hazelton.
Manahawkin, Feb. 8, 1920.

Highway Ouster Bill is Reported Out by Committee
The administration measure to abolish the present State Highway Commission, introduced in the House by Assemblyman Barrett, of Essex, was formally reported Monday night with committee amendments. The bill would abolish the present highway commission of eight members, substituting a board of three members, receiving salaries of $10,000 each. It provides for a state highway engineer at a salary of $10,000, and an assistant engineer receiving $5000. It would legislate out of office the present state engineer, Wm. G. Thompson, by requiring that the incumbent of that office shall have been a resident of New Jersey for at least five years. Mr. Thompson came to this state less than three years ago. The committee amendments do not affect the essential features of the measure, relating only to some changes in the provisions relating to finances.

The fight to reform the system of public utilities regulation in New Jersey will probably center around the bill introduced by Assemblyman Rowland of Camden, providing for an elective commission of three members. The Rowland bill was favorably reported by the House committee on revision of laws Monday night. The action of the committee in selecting the Rowland bill for favorable action is believed to reflect the judgment of a considerable number of the assemblymen, though there is scarcely a chance of its passage without a hard fight.

An interesting bit of gossip accompanying the committee report was to the effect that should an elective utility commission be authorized Senator William N. Runyon would be a candidate for one of the places.

Food Administrator Urged
Mr. Shields introduced a bill providing for the appointment by the governor of a state food administrator and appropriates $100,000 to cover the initial cost of administration. The measure gives the proposed food administrator power to control and distribute the food products of the state and adjacent waters. It also gives the administrator the necessary power to appoint an administrator in every county.

Another measure by Mr. Shields aimed at the high cost of living seeks to prevent profiteering in rents. It provides a penalty of a fine not exceeding $200 or imprisonment for not more than sixty days or both for any person who shall charge a rental in excess of 1 per cent of the tax value of the property as last assessed.

A bill to amend the weights and measures act by providing that 2240 pounds shall constitute a ton instead of 2000 pounds, was put in by Mr. Blair.

Mr. Gaede introduced a measure which would permit a landlord to terminate a lease where gambling is carried on.

Increase in the salaries of game protectors and game wardens is provided in a bill put in by Mr. Dater. It would give the protector an increase of $400 a year, assistant protector $600 a year and warden a boost of $600 per annum.

A bill by Mr. George would grant power to municipalities bordering on navigable rivers to establish docks, warehouses, ferries, tunnels and shipping and industrial facilities.

By a rising vote of 26 to 25 the House decided against a session next Monday, which will be the legal holiday for the observance of Washington's Birthday. Before the vote was taken it was announced that the Senate had decided to meet next Monday night.

Mr. Blair, of Atlantic City, informed the House that to give the convenience of a number of members his trip of the Legislature to Atlantic City, planned for February 28, had been postponed until March 6.

Soldier Bonus Advanced
Plans for the payment of a bonus to honorably discharged soldiers and sailors was advanced a step Monday night when the bill by Mr. Wallworth, of Camden, was favorably reported in

As the work could not go on while the animals were there the farmer and his men got together and managed to kill them all. A fur dealer gave $66 for the pelts, which sum Griggs divided among the men, each getting $11. All concluded that the money was well earned.

In spite of the blizzard, real estate men on the beaches are renting up summer homes for the season of 1920. Rentals are said to be ahead of the normal year, and point to another good season like that of last year.

Not many sleighs have been seen around town since the big snowfall. Some years ago sleighing as good as it has been would have brought them out by the score. No doubt there are but few persons owning a good sleigh in these days, as the ubiquitous automobile has apparently superseded every other known vehicle for pleasure and business. There is, however, a certain fascination about an old-fashioned sleigh-ride which to many cannot be equaled by any modern mode of conveyance.
