DR. JOSHUA HILLIARD, JURY COMMISSIONER, SUCCEEDING F. S. ELLIS

The N. J. Courier says: Chancellor Edwin Robert Walker flung Ocean County a surprise on Thursday last, when he certified to County Clerk Ernst his appointment of Dr. Joshua Hilliard of Manahawkin as Jury Commissioner to succeed "Sheriff" Frank S. Ellis of Toms River, who had held that place for the past five years, and who most folks thought would end his days there. Dr. Hilliard is one of the most influential men in Ocean county, and especially so in the lower half. He was one of the original members of the Ocean County Board of Taxation, being appointed by Governor Stokes when the Tax Board was first created. He has led forlorn hopes for the Democratic party on several occasions, being the candidate three years ago last fall for Senator against Senator David G. Conrad, of Barnegat. His father, the late Dr. P. K. Hilliard, took an active part in politics and all public matters, and the son has followed in his footsteps. Dr. Hilliard is a cousin to Under Sheriff A. W. Brown, Jr.

The Achievement Club has improved the appearance of the lunch room by placing curtains at each of the windows.

The Board of Education has shown its appreciation of the efforts that are being put into the lunch room by paying for the lumber necessary to make the counter and shelves for the equipment.

The work on the counter, and the four burner gas-stove have been paid for by the receipts of the lunch room.

The members of the Cooking Club wish to thank the donors for the many donations which they have received, as well as the Ladies Aid Society the permission to use their dishes. It is the aim of the Club to buy a line of dishes as soon as the necessary funds are available.

Thrift Stamp Campaign

The subject of thrift has been added to the regular school curricula. Some of the rooms have entered into the saying with the kind of spirit that is commendable. Others are rather reluctant to save their pennies. We believe that if the parents understood the motive of the Thrift movement, they would be willing to have their children cultivate the habit of saving.

The Thrift movement does not mean that the children shall not buy candy nor that they shall not attend moving picture shows, but that they shall save a portion of their earnings or their allowances and invest them in Thrift Stamps. The money will come back to them with interest in addition to the amount invested. It is not a question of making a sacrifice to help the government, or making a donation to the government, when the government pays an interest on the investment. On the other hand it is a valuable lesson to the child to practice habits of economy and thrift. One of the main duties thrust upon our schools in the present day is the preparation of children for citizenship. When we get down to the final analysis what habit can we cultivate in children that is more essential to good citizenship than honest thrift?

This movement means additional cares for the teacher but she is always willing to do a piece of work that bears good results. So we are asking the parents to give us their co-operation by encouraging the children to save. We do not ask you to give them money with which to buy stamps, but to encourage them to save some of the pennies that they earn running errands, or from their allowance.

These small savings may mean a great deal to their future life. In fact it may be the possibility of their college education. Remember that Dr. Conwell started the structure of his present church on the penny contributions of a small Sunday School class and Dr. Hinkley started the Good Will Farm with a similar fund.

Each room in the school has a dollar thermometer and after this week we shall try to keep you informed where the earnings stand.

Parents and patrons, do not forget that this is the week that was set aside by the Commissioner for visiting the school. We shall be pleased to see you.

ST. JOHN'S NIGHT CELEBRATION POSTPONED

Tuckerton Lodge, No. 4, F. & A. M. has postponed the celebration of St. John's night which, was to have been held this evening, to some future date to be announced later.

This was done on account of the bad roads making it almost impossible for out of town members to be present.

REPUBLICAN CLUB DINNER

Bad roads, caused by the snow of last week, have compelled the postponing of the Republican club dinner, which had been booked for February 26 at the Ocean House, Toms River. These dinners are attended by the faithful from all parts of the county. At present indications, if the snow should be gone, the roads are likely to be soft and impassable, and it has been thought better to put the dinner off till March 11.

New Gretna

A surprise party was tendered Carlton Mathis on Saturday evening February 14th, by his High School chums in honor of his 14th birthday. The evening was spent in playing games, singing and various forms of amusement, after which the guests were escorted to the dining room, which was beautifully decorated, in accord with the Valentine season.

Among those present were: Misses Addie Merce, Minnie Mathis, Jennie Broome, Elizabeth French, Thelma Downs, Esther Sooy, Elizabeth Hickman, Marie Sears, Messrs. Alston Adams and Carlton Mathis. The grown ups consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Z. Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Mathis, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gerew, Miss Rae Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mathis.

Eugene Mathis, of Brigantine, spent Monday here with his family.

Joseph McNeil has returned home after spending a week away.

Mrs. Mary E. Loveland received word on Tuesday, of her daughter's death in Baltimore. The family have the sympathy of the community.

Mr. Gibbs, of Philadelphia, was detained at home last week because of the serious illness of his wife. We are glad to not that she is better at this time.

Mrs. Arthur Loveland has been entertaining her father, Mr. Cobb, of Mayetta.

Robert Maxwell, of Seabright, spent the week end here with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gerew are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

The Presbyterian Church was closed last Sunday while the interior was being painted.

Arthur Allen, of Jersey City, came home on Tuesday last, with his hands seriously burned. He was treated in the hospital before leaving Jersey City.

Miss Annie Bogan died at her home here on Tuesday morning. Miss Bogan has been suffering with cancer for a long time. We extend our sympathy to the family.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Mathis died at her home in New Brunswick, February 12, 1920. She was the widow of the late Shreve Mathis and was the only daughter of the late Henry and Anne King. She was born in Tuckerton, July 16, 1844; moved from here several years ago. She united with the Baptist Church early in life and was a regular attendant as long as health permitted. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Charles B. Johnson, Mrs. George E. Ireland and Miss Flora E. Mathis, of New Brunswick, to mourn her loss. The body was brought to Tuckerton for burial on Tuesday.

Attire for the Party and Ball

This season the debutante and the subdebutante are coming into their own. After two years of utter neglect the debt piled up is to be paid, and paid in full with all past interest due, observed a leading fashion correspondent.

Parties, dinners and dances galore are on the program, one crowding the other so closely that two years' reserve strength would seem a necessity. It seems too, as if everything had been designed in frocks with an eye to the requirements of the debutante—short skirts, short sleeves, oceans of ruffles and foolish little trimmings—and the matron will have to find something suitable as best she may.

Now, it is a well known fact that seldom does the very young woman wear the type of dress that her elders would choose for her. The adorable youthful models hold no particular charm for the adobeable youthful girl, but all this has been cleverly attended to by some one who understands these matters well. The vamp and the baby vamp are out of the running to a great extent, but it is a bit too soon to expect a direct change, so in spite of soft colors and multitudes of ruffles there is frequently a touch of sophistication.

If the very young woman is a bit determined she will finally win, for back in the corners here and there are some deliciously subtle frocks, even to those of black chintilly lace, which no one could possibly call suitable for the debutante unless one should see the modifications as shown in the models.

Colors Fresher and Clearer.
As to colors, the matron again is in for a very hard time if she is to continue in the height of fashion. Be it admitted that the colors are fresher and clearer than ever, they are a trifle difficult for any but the very youthful to wear.

One is struck immediately with the difference in the shades shown for the debutante and those in the regular department. Most of the colors are intensified, and the pastel shades the matron is supposed to wear are slightly more than that when shown for the younger woman. Jade color is one of the season's most approved shades and orchid, with a splash of mauve, is also liked.

Tafteta is quite evidently the material best adapted to the present modes in all the afternoon frocks; whether in light colors or dark blues and browns for the street, it asserts itself in the bulging skirts. For afternoon one finds further crispness added by combining organdie with the tafteta. Nets of the finest possible mesh are amazingly embroidered in eyelet. The last thing one would expect to see used on net and a thing that would be impossible if the net were not almost as fine as voile.

A combination of three materials proves a success in a linen dress, with so well that one is hardly aware there is any difference of color except that the effect is delicious. The bouffant skirt stands out at the sides as a result of the cordings set in a deep band about the hips. This in the overskirt, for there is a slightly narrower underskirt beneath.

The short sleeves are finished with a bit of the embroidered organdie and the front of the bodice has a vest of the organdie ending in a round table apron below the girde.

Afternoon Gown for Young Girl.

An afternoon gown that the very young girl will just do on is of black chintilly lace, trimmed with soft French blue ribbons that should bring it within "mamma's approval," for they give the dress exactly the air of youth in spite of the matron's black lace of which it is made. At the hips the lace is wired so that it stands out properly, and over this in the front an apron of the lace falls so that it partially obscures the ribbon, which follows the curved line of the apron with a bow here and there.

The sleeves are short, with a deep ruffle of the chintilly, and the bodice is nothing much but a wide ruffle of it about the neck and down the sides of the front.

Ribbon, as every one knows, is a very important item in the list of trimmings this season, and if not watched carefully will be apt to get a bit tiresome. One very new way to use this form of embellishment is seen on a dress of orange-colored chiffon—rather a pale shade of orange or orange color goes, but by no means faded looking. The ribbon was applied like the crimped edge of an expert caterer's ple. It was simply crimped or tufted and laid about the neck and sleeves of the gown and also in strips down the sides of the skirt. The ribbon is in the same shade as the chiffon.

The White Crepe Frock.
A white crepe silk frock is trimmed with grosgrain all in white in another and attractive manner. Beginning with the skirt, which is in every model the most important point at the present time, we find interesting extensions on the skirt at the sides, which are further supported in the effort to increase the width by the apron of the material covering the entire front of the frock and furnished with loops of the ribbon extended at the sides.

The extensions of the material are merely strips doubled and inset into the sides of the skirt so that they extend like fins on the sides. The smartest of the frocks have no collars, or, at least, the frocks intended for smart occasions have no collars, and this is followed following this lead has only a tiny row of the loops about the neck.

Figured materials are among the most difficult to treat, but some particularly smart little frocks, with real dash, are seen in reds and blues in very conventional patterns. That the patterned material is not combined with plain probably adds to the smartness. Even the ruffles about the neck and sleeves, fine plaitings of the material, give the frock distinction.

The material of these particular frocks is indestructible voile and the pattern in a white dot, not too large, and set so closely on the ground of red or blue that there is more white than color. The skirt is caught up under, harem fashion, and trimmed with perpendicular ruffles of the same fine plaiting that that used on the bodice.

Furnish Water Supply.
In these days of high-priced food supply it is necessary and economical to give stock of all kinds not only clean and abundant food, but clean and abundant water.

Feed Variety of Grain.
While corn is the best single grain to feed the poultry, it does not pay to feed any one grain exclusively, as a variety secures better results and is therefore cheaper.

Washing Will Injure Eggs.
Eggs should not be washed as this removes the gelatinous film of the shell that keeps out air and germs. The nests should be kept clean so that the eggs will have no chance to become soiled, as removing dirt by washing will allow molds and germs to enter the egg and hasten its spoiling.

Good Feed for Stock.
Stocks are good feed for all classes of live stock although they are not much used for horses.

CRIMSON CLOVER CROP IMPORTANT

Special Interest Attaches to Plowing Under Green Manure and Saving of Seed.

PREPARE WELL IN ADVANCE

Material Must Be Given Chance to Become at Least Partially Decomposed Before the Following Crop Is Planted.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

May is the month when a large part of the crimson clover crop in the Southeastern states may be harvested. Special interest attaches to the plowing under of the green manure crop and the saving of the seed, the first because of the high price of fertilizer and the second because of the high price of seed. Whichever use is to be made of the crop, preparation should be made well in advance of the harvest season, and especial thought should be given to the crop which is to follow the crimson clover.

Plow Crop Under.
Crimson clover, like any green manure crop, should be plowed under at least two weeks before the following crop is planted. If planting is made on the freshly turned mass of leaves and stems, the results are likely to be worse than if no green manure had been used. The green material must be given a chance to become at least partially decomposed, and the soil bacteria must have an opportunity to remove some of the injurious materials that are formed by organic decay. Usually it is inadvisable to follow a crimson-clover green manure crop with any early-planted crop like cotton or early potatoes unless the land can be plowed by the first week of May. Corn is the crop most commonly used after crimson clover, as it need not be planted until the first of June.

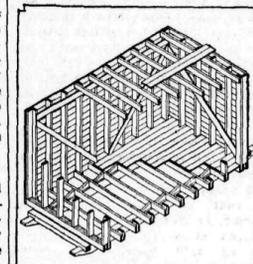

Save Supply of Seed.

There is every reason this year why farmers who are to grow crimson clover next year should save at least enough seed for their own use. Seed production is not a difficult matter and is, indeed, a common practice in many of the Southeastern states. The only equipment required is some form of seed stripper with which to remove the ripe heads. The seed need not be thrashed or hulled, as in the case of red clover and other clovers, but is often sown in the hull, just as it comes from the field. The seed should be gathered just as the first blossoms are beginning to wither, and harvesting must be completed within eight or nine days, as the seeds shatter badly when thoroughly ripe. Details of the construction of the seed strippers and other matters relating to seed production are discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 648, which farmers are urged to consult.

LIME BENEFITS MANY SOILS

Improves Texture and Makes Them More Retentive—Grains Are Made More Porous.

Lime benefits many soils by improving the texture. When applied to light, leachy soils it makes them more retentive. If applied to a clay soil it makes it flocculate. Very fine grains may be cemented together and made more porous.

HELPS APPEARANCE OF FARM

Paint Does Not Make Buildings, but Is Good Index to Efficiency of the Owner.

A coat of paint does not "make" farm buildings, no more than the clothes make the man, but neat appearance on the farm is generally an index to the efficiency of the owner.

Furnish Water Supply.

In these days of high-priced food supply it is necessary and economical to give stock of all kinds not only clean and abundant food, but clean and abundant water.

Feed Variety of Grain.

While corn is the best single grain to feed the poultry, it does not pay to feed any one grain exclusively, as a variety secures better results and is therefore cheaper.

WASHINGTONIANS AS PRODUCERS OF FOOD

Striking Example of What May Be Accomplished.

Three Hundred Families in District Supplied Tables With Fresh Vegetables During Summer and Stored Some for Winter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the most striking examples of what may be accomplished in food production is that of the Potomac Park home gardens, located in the District of Columbia almost within the shadow of the Washington monument. During the year just closed there were 300 gardens, supervised by the United States department of agriculture, each 40 feet by 100 feet in size, and occupying in all approximately 35 acres. According to reports recently received from the gardeners, and based on actual records, these gardens gave an average return of $84 a garden, or over $25,000 for the 300 gardens. This means that no less than 800 families living in the District of Columbia not only have supplied their tables with fresh vegetables throughout the summer, but stored a considerable supply of food for winter use. In addition, approximately 1,200 people enjoyed outdoor exercise and healthful recreation.

Some of Potatoes Grown by Washingtonians on Public Park Lands in National Capital.

This is but one instance where the city home garden has resulted both in the production of large quantities of food and in providing the people with outdoor life exercise. The need for home gardens will be just as great in 1920 as during the past season. Now is the time to perfect organizations and secure land on which to plant gardens next year.

STOCK NEEDS GOOD HOUSING

There Are Two Extremes Farmers Should Avoid—Crowded Sheds Are Injurious.

"Farmers should use a great deal of care in housing their animals at this time of the year," says Dr. K. W. Spaulder of the agricultural extension department of Iowa state college. "There are two extremes in housing that many farmers practice. One extreme is crowded and tight sheds or pens which have poor ventilation and are too warm at night. When the animals are turned out in the morning there is great danger that they will take pneumonia. The other extreme is poorly built buildings, and those built with open foundations high above the ground. The cold winds blow into and through such barns at night and cause pneumonia. Many farmers mistake pneumonia for influenza or cholera."

GIVE SHEEP GOOD ATTENTION

Pens Should Be Level and Dry, as Moist or Fermenting Manure Will Cause Trouble.

Keep the sheep pens level and dry—moist or fermenting manure is sure to cause smuffles and footrot. After the pens are cleaned, dust with plaster and spread down a thin coat of dry clean straw. Just enough straw should be spread to keep the sheep dry and comfortable. Have a wide door hung on rollers—opening out to the yard. A narrow door is dangerous—and may cause the injury of one or more ewes or lambs. Absolute regularity in feeding is to be aimed at, and the flock must be so divided that the stronger will not get more than their share of food. It is as bad for them as for the underlings. The latter have at least a good appetite, the former often surfeited and fall off in condition accordingly.

SILOS INCREASING RAPIDLY

Becoming Necessary on Every Farm in Pennsylvania—Lessens Cost of Production.

Statistical information recently collected by the bureau of statistics, Pennsylvania department of agriculture, shows that approximately 20 per cent, or 43,657 farmers in that state are now using silos. The number one year ago was estimated at 32,900. The silo is rapidly becoming a necessity on practically every farm, for silage greatly lessens the cost of production of a pound of butter or a pound of beef.

Silo Is Sound Investment

Silage Furnishes Superior Ration for Dairy Cows and Is Best for Young Stock.

If a farmer has 10 or more head of cattle he will find a silo a paying proposition. As it is necessary for most of our milk and cream producers to grow their young stock, silage which furnishes such a good ration for the milk cow will also furnish the best kind of a ration for the young stock.

PRUNING IS GOOD PRACTICE

Forestry Specialists Encourage Idea if It Is Done During Slack Time in Winter.

When trees are properly spaced, nature "self prunes" the lower branches. But in farm timber tracts of small pines and with valuable kinds of trees, pruning is often a paying practice, say forestry specialists of the United States department of agriculture, if it is done during the slack time of winter.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"This community spirit says: I am under obligations of service to my neighbor next door, whoever he is. I am under obligations to my community; I am no longer a resident only; I am a responsible citizen. I must make it my duty to see that the schools and churches teach first of all good citizenship."

WAYS WITH MEATS.

To pan-broil a steak, be sure to have the steak at least one or one and one-half inches thick. Heat the iron frying pan smoking hot and rub it quickly with a piece of suet on a fork, then lay in the steak. Cook for a minute and turn to sear the other side, being careful when turning not to pierce the steak with the fork or the juices will be lost. When both sides are well seared season with pepper salt and a bit of butter, then cook at a lower temperature until it is right to serve. Serve on a hot platter.

Pot Roast.—Take four pounds of beef from the shoulder. Put half a cupful of good drippings in an iron kettle, and when hot turn in the beef; sear well all over, then let it cook slowly for two hours. After the first hour season with salt and pepper, a piece of celery, carrot, an onion and a piece of bay leaf, if that flavor is liked. If cooked slowly no water will be needed. Pour off some of the fat and make a gravy as for roast beef.

Swiss Steak.—Pound flour with the edge of a saucer into a round steak, using as much flour as the meat will take up. Season well and fry in a little hot fat until well browned on both sides, then add water to cover and set on the back of the range or over the simmering burner to cook for two hours or until tender. Cover closely to keep in all the steam. The gravy is ready to serve with this dish as it is made from the flour in the pan with the liquor. Onions, carrot or celery may be added to the meat while cooking to vary the flavor.

Mock Duck.—Flank steak may be used for this dish. Score the flank in a half dozen slashes. Prepare a stuffing as for chicken. Add sage and suet or any sweet fat. Roll up carefully, tie and place in a kettle and half cover with boiling water. Simmer several hours on the back of the stove and when tender brown in a hot oven. If a fireless cooker is used it may cook over night. Serve with gravy made from the liquor in the kettle.

Fried Ham.—Take a thick slice of ham, parboil it for five minutes. Do not drain, but spread with a teaspoonful of mustard and a tablespoonful of brown sugar and cook until brown. Ham is also most palatable cooked in this way, using cider instead of water in which to parboil it. Another way with ham is to place a thick slice in a granite pan and cover with milk. Bake in a moderate oven until the milk is nearly absorbed.

It is manifest the world over that only by increased production and persistent frugality in the use of food supplies can the food problem be solved and the cost of living reduced.—American Cookery.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

With the high price of eggs we will have to make some attempt to learn some egg extenders. We have become so proficient in extending meat that surely the same ability may be used with eggs. A good supper or breakfast dish is made by using a cupful of seasoned boiled rice, added to two or three eggs which have been escalloped with milk. This dish will serve four or five persons.

Bran Whole Bread.—Take one cupful of whole wheat flour, half a cupful of honey, four cupfuls of rye flour, a teaspoonful of soda, four teaspoonfuls of raisins, seed, two teaspoonfuls of ginger, the yolks of two eggs and one-fourth of a cupful of powdered sugar. Sift the flour with the dry ingredients, mix with the eggs and sugar, put into greased pans and bake in a quick oven.

Puffed Rice Brittle.—Heat one cupful of sugar in a smooth pan until clear and golden brown. Stir into this one-half package or more of puffed rice which has been well heated in the oven to crisp it.

Fondant.—For a foundation for all bonbons and French candies this is the base: Boil together two cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of corn sirup and one-half cupful of water to the soft ball stage. Pour out on a buttered platter and when cool enough to handle work with a wooden spoon and knead until smooth. Put away in a buttered bowl to ripen for a day or two. This candy may be mixed with fruit, colored and flavored to taste, molded in balls and dipped in melted chocolate for chocolate cream or mixed with nuts.

Marshmallow Peaches.—Arrange halves of peaches on a dessert dish. Whip cream, sweeten and flavor with almond. Place a spoonful of the cream in the cavity of the peach with a fresh marshmallow on top. Serve with cookies or cake as a dessert.

Eventful Day in Yuma.

What must have been the excitement in Yuma, Ariz., when on January 4 rain fell there for the first time in 45 years? Growers men and women, young men and women, boys and girls who had never seen rain gazed in alarm or delight or wonder at an amazing sight; they saw the heavens veiled for the first time and water falling from the gray curtain drawn across their sky of brilliant blue! Probably the little ones were soon barefoot and paddling about in puddles; men and boys throwing off their coats more intimately to feel the delights of a cloud-strewn shower bath. A shower took on the proportions of an event; a natural phenomenon reached the heights of a treat.

MILLIONS Suffer from Acid-Stomach

Simply Worn Out

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my housework. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was a awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."

GREAT SOLDIERS' PJOOR SHOTS

Neither Napoleon Nor Wellington Could Have Qualified as Marksmen, Even in Slow Company.

Wellington, the "Iron Duke," frequently stayed at Marsfield park, the estate in Sussex owned by Prince Munster von Durnberg. Sir John Shelley named Marsfield park in Wellington's honor, and Lady Shelley records in her diary a woeful exhibition by the duke during one of his visits. "I accompanied the guns in the afternoon," she writes on September 8, 1810. "The hero of Waterloo was a very wild shot. After wounding a retriever and later on peppering a keeper's gutters, he sprinkled the bare arms of an old woman who chanced to be washing clothes at her cottage window. 'My good woman,' I said, 'this ought to be the proudest moment of your life. You have had the distinction of being shot by the duke of Wellington.' Her face was wreathed in smiles as the contrite duke slipped a gold coin into her hand."

Wellington shared his weakness as a poor shot with Napoleon, whose sole brag was a dog the only time he went out game shooting.

Gen. John J. Pershing has purchased the above home at 1748 B street, Lincoln, Neb., and has announced his intention to make Lincoln and Nebraska his permanent place of residence. In announcing the purchase of the home, the general said: "As soon as I retire from the service, I intend to make Lincoln my permanent home, and, as far as I know now, will enter business in Nebraska. I hope to see my son, Warren, graduate from the University of Nebraska, as I did nearly 30 years ago."

AMERICAN PHYSIQUE

Records show Yankee army better physically than any other army.

Every now and then somebody comes along with something like this which is taken from the columns of one of the best-known American newspapers: "Because the American girl doesn't eat enough, because she doesn't guard her health, because she doesn't get sufficient exercise, because she is below the physical standard, she is to blame, when she becomes the American mother, for the faulty rearing of the babies of the nation; she is to blame for the lack of strength and vitality of the youth of the nation; the generation which preceded her is to blame for the bodily unfitness of one of every four men called for service in the nation's armies."

It may be true, observes a writer in the Charleston News and Courier, that one out of every four men called for service in the war was rejected because of bodily unfitness but that was because America, having an almost unlimited number of men, was able to set the military physical standards very high and still get more soldiers than she needed. The American army was far away better physically than any other army; and after what America did in the war, it would be very hard to persuade any European, especially any German who served on the western front, that the physique of this nation is inferior.

OLD TUNES

As the strata of perfume, heliotrope, rose, float in the garden when no wind blows. Come to us, go from us, whence no one knows;

So the old tunes float, in my mind, And go from me, leaving no trace behind, Like perfume borne on the hush of the wind.

But in the instant the airs remain I know the laughter and the pain Of times that will not come again;

I try to catch at many a tune Like petals of light fallen from the moon, Broken and bright on a dark lagoon.

But they float away—for who can hold Youth, or perfume, or the moon's gold? —Sara Tensdale, in Scribner's.

Mulberry Bark Is Used to Make Paper for Clothing

"Kamiko," as paper clothing is called in Japan, is made of real Japanese paper manufactured from mulberry bark. The paper has little "size" in it, and, though soft and warm, a thin layer of silk wadding is placed between two sheets of paper and the whole is quilted. Velvet shirts and drawers made in this way are more comfortable.

"Applan Way" Was Ancient Rome's Main Thoroughfare and Fashionable Promenade

The Broadway of ancient Rome was in its time not less famous than the principal thoroughfare of New York. It was called the "Applan Way," and along it flowed all that was most interesting and picturesque in the life of the imperial city. Thronged by chariots and the vehicles of fashion, it was the favorite promenade of the idle rich. Over its smooth pavement successful generals, to whom had been granted the proud privilege of a triumph, led their returning armies, with hosts of unhappy prisoners of war.

The Via Appia, however, was much more than a city street. It was the metropolitan terminus of one of the great Roman military roads. Begun in 312 B. C., it ran through one of the great city gates outward to Lower Italy—to Capua, Tarentum and beyond. One mile beyond the gate was the magnificent Temple of Mars.

Along the thoroughfare today are

Inhabitants of Pompeii Made Soap and Used It

Antiquarians discovered, when they excavated Pompeii, that the inhabitants of that city not only used soap, but had a regular factory for its manufacture. Some of the soap they made there was found in an excellent state of preservation. Pliny comments in his writings on a material of this sort, made from a mixture of tallow and ashes of beech trees. According to him, they made both hard and soft soap in those days, but used it chiefly on their hair, to give it an effect of brilliance.

Dogs Talented in Comedy and They Provide Many Good Laughs for Owners

It is not generally known, but dogs are in many instances real comedians. Those who have made a close study of canines long ago came to this conclusion. The gift is not confined to any one breed. Some of the stunts done by fox terriers are not only laughable, but they show the dog to be a natural born comedian.

A woman recently owned a valuable fox terrier which was so much of a comedian that he kept the household in a state of constant good humor. The dog never had been taught the tricks he performed, and the most interesting part of it was, he liked to show off when the house was filled with guests. The terrier seemed to know that he was creating laughs. One thing he did was a trick that would be hard for the average person to believe unless he witnessed it. It was a performance he went through to avoid having his coat put on in the winter months, when a maid took him for a walk.

When the dog saw the maid approaching with the coat he would hang his head. One evening when a party of guests were present the dog conceived a new scheme of trying to arouse sympathy, so he could get out of having his coat put on. When the maid called to him he looked around the room, and then, quick as a flash, he started to run to the different corners as if looking for rats. He was as serious as a judge sitting on a bench. Once or twice he stopped to see what effect his performance was having, then he looked at the maid, wagging his tail with an expression on his face which seemed to say: "Now you won't make me put on the coat after that."

The guests caught the idea, and a wave of hearty laughs came from all sides.

COAX 'EM

Stop Whipping Bowels Into Activity, but take "Cascarets"

Put aside the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil, or Purgative Waters that irritate and lash the bowels into action but which do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels which are keeping you half sick, headachy, and miserable.

Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys; they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

MANY USES FOR QUICKSILVER

Semi-Precious Metal, Much in Demand, Is Becoming Scarce—Sometimes Employed as Drug.

Quicksilver is one of the semi-precious metals, and is gradually becoming scarce. The metal is noted for its many uses, besides the familiar one in the thermometer. Its tendency to unite with gold into an amalgam causes its chief use. The mercury is spread over a copper plate over which the gold ore is washed. The gold from its weight comes in contact with the plate and is promptly amalgamated with the quicksilver, from which it is separated by heat.

Quicksilver is also known for its use as a medicine when rubbed to a fine, globular powder with rose water, under the name of blue mass. Among the chemical compounds of quicksilver is bichloride of mercury, made by heating a mixture of mercuric sulphate and common salt. This is sometimes taken as a poison and results in painful and lengthy suffering and in death. Quicksilver is also very essential to the manufacture of high-class mirrors.

ONLY WAY ASPIRIN SHOULD BE TAKEN

Look for name "Bayer" on tablets and follow directions in package.

The Bayer Company, who introduced Aspirin, tell in their careful directions in each package of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" that to get the best results one or two glasses of water should be drunk after taking tablets.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Then you are getting the world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proper directions for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuritis, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and for Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of twelve tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacturing of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.—Adv.

Seedless Apple Produced; in Form Resembling Banana

The seedless apple has been cultivated. J. W. McComb of Oregon City, Ore., after three years' careful study of the apple plant, has perfected a species of that fruit which is absolutely devoid of seeds. It closely resembles the Gravenstein apple in color, but in form it resembles a banana. Though elongated, it is plump and has rare stripes of red and yellow. Its fruit is more tasty than the ordinary apple, is sweeter and more mellow. McComb produced three bushels of the species. A sample of the apple is being studied at the Oregon Agricultural college with a view to growing them profusely.

Present Automobile Shortage Is Placed at 1,000,000 Cars

New York.—A shortage of automobiles this year was predicted by members of the National chamber of commerce, although they estimated that the passenger car output for the year would exceed 2,000,000. The shortage at present was placed at 1,000,000 cars. One of the most prominent manufacturers, it was said, is preparing to double the factory capacity this year because of the steadily increasing demand.

As the Editor Sees It

Dark and Muddy Streets. Some steps should be taken by the Mayor and Council to relieve the condition of our streets. The melting snow and mud around the corners of Mai. and Green streets and near the post office have been frightful during the past month and are likely to continue so for several weeks. On many occasions I have seen people, citizens from every section of the town, who are obliged to use the streets in that part of the town almost every day, ankle deep in water backed up on the sidewalks.

Much of this condition could be relieved by opening the gutters and at very little expense. A move of this kind would meet with the approval of all concerned and would only be a justice to the taxpayers. This condition is made all the more frightful at night because of our dark streets. Steps should also be taken to remedy this inconvenience. Possibly the Mayor and Council were right by refusing to submit to the demands of the Gas Company for a raise in rates and I am convinced that a majority of our taxpayers were in sympathy with their move but I don't believe that a majority of these taxpayers want the town to remain in darkness indefinitely. For the streets to remain dark is a distinct step backward and business places, churches, etc., that are open in the evening, are suffering.

Whether by gas or otherwise steps should be taken at once to have our streets lighted. Without Newspapers. The gloomiest week they have ever known—that is the way Winnipeg people describe the experience of having to go seven consecutive days without a daily newspaper published within that city's residential and trade territory. For one week all the Winnipeg dailies were compelled to suspend because of white paper shortage, and the population served by those journals simply groped its way thru the routine of living.

In one week business was well nigh prostrated. Social life was deeply affected. The region simply lived in suspense, for the wildest rumors of dire local and world-wide happenings flew about continuously, and there was no way of learning the truth. Residents of the town declare that not even in the darkest days of the war did the community experience such general depression.

One firm's loss of business is estimated by the company itself at $3000 daily for the week. This would be at the rate of almost a million dollars a year. There were scores of mercantile and industrial enterprises which were affected in a corresponding degree, depending upon the manner in which it was necessary for them to maintain relations with the general public.

It has been an unhappy and expensive lesson to that city, on the value of the press in every concern—on its actual indispensability to their welfare.—New Brunswick Home News.

Inasmuch as the farmer, the laborer, the consumer, the business man and the banker are all going to take more interest in politics than usual next year, the campaign ought to be quite up to the customary standard of strenuousness.

The tax experts have evidently come round to the view held by most people for a long time, namely, that a taxpayer feels that he has not done his duty by his country until he has expressed his dissatisfaction with the tax law which happens to be in effect at the time.

Getting at Profiteers. That the Department of Justice has actually started its long-awaited nation-wide movement of punishing profiteers is shown by its recent announcement issued from Washington. Of the small number brought to trial there have been only 28 convictions, but since there are eight or nine hundred more awaiting their turn before the courts this number is certain to be substantially augmented. Sugar profiteering was the offense of which a hundred were accused and 11 of the 28 were convicted. The penalty these greedy gentlemen of successful business may be asked to pay is limited to a fine of $5000 together with a year's imprisonment. It is said that the jails are comparatively empty since the enforcement of prohibition. Perhaps that is well. Fill 'em up with profiteers.—Lakewood Times & Journal.

A Thrift Hint. A timely hint to the wise: "salt down" all the money you can at this time; it is going to be worth more later; money is cheap now, while commodities are high; it takes a large amount of money to bring in exchange a small amount of stuff.

Get along with what you have, as far as you can; don't buy a lot of things you can do without, for this is unthrifty on your part and it adds to the burdens of the rest of the world by aggravating the scarcity. After a while the prices of commodities will come down and then the dollar that you have saved at this time will buy you much more. At the beginning of the war all those people who had commodities of any kind were in a position to make fortunes, while those who had money suffered heavy losses. Few people were smart enough to take advantage of the situation and exchange their money for stuff before the rise. Now the situation is just reversed; if you want to play the game to win you should convert stuff into money, conserve your money and hold it against the time when it will count for more. You will then rise on

THIS THE MOMENT OF MOMENTS TO GAIN SPIRITUAL UNITY

By DR. JOHN R. MOTT.

DR. JOHN R. MOTT, Chairman Executive Committee Interchurch World Movement.

This is the moment of moments for us to find our unity, our spiritual solidarity, without sacrificing our diversity and that which is most distinctive to each of our communions and which, by the way, is the choicest possession we have. The reason why we of each denomination most value that which is distinctive to us is not simply because it is ours, but because we honestly believe it is the truth. It is our choicest possession. Without sacrificing our distinctiveness we want to realize our unity and solidarity as we gather 'round the figure of our Lord with open minds, responsive hearts and, I would say, hair-trigger wills—that I mean wills that are eager to leap into action when we see a clear path.

DIVINE OWNERSHIP OF ALL THINGS TO BE TAUGHT IN FEBRUARY

Churches All Over Country Will Assist in Interchurch Stewardship Campaign.

The idea that the Creator is owner of all things and that man is only a steward responsible to Him for the administration of material affairs on an unselfish basis, will be emphasized in practically all churches of the United States during February. Agreements to this effect have been reached by many of the leading denominations in the Interchurch World Movement. Pastors throughout the country have indicated their intention of following the suggestions made by the Interchurch Movement's stewardship department for sermons to be preached, study classes to be organized and literature to be distributed.

This campaign of education is to reach its climax on Washington's Birthday, Sunday, February 22, which has been designated as "Nation-wide Stewardship Acknowledgment Day." It is the plan to have all church members make acknowledgment on that day that the Divinity is owner of all things by setting aside a certain proportion of their income for the support of religious causes. While the proportion to be set aside is to be determined by each individual, sermons and studies will suggest that a tenth is a good proportion to start with. It will be pointed out that the Federal income tax law exempts from taxation, up to 15 per cent of the income, money spent for religious and philanthropic purposes.

Not only will the Stewardship campaign emphasize the responsibility of persons to use their material possessions for the advancement of Christianity, but it is urged that Christians have been made the depositories of spiritual resources which must be used for the enrichment of the world. On that assumption all Christians will be urged to utilize their responsibilities to utilize their privileges of prayer for the winning of the world for Christ and to enlist in active service promulgating the gospel in this country and abroad.

An Assured World Success. "When such a vast multitude of people come together earnestly and prayerfully, there must be developed an outpouring of spiritual power such as this and has never before known. If the Interchurch World Movement is complete in its co-operation, if the individual constituents are consecrated and in earnest, and the leadership is able, there is no limit under God in what may be accomplished in the establishment of His Kingdom on earth."—John D. Rockefeller, Jr. "No Man Alone Can Take a Trench." "Keep together! Keep together!" shouted a commanding officer overseas. "No man alone can take a trench!" I say: Keep together! Keep together, men of God! No church alone can take a world!—G. Sherwood Eddy.

'Ties Occupational. An English newspaper suggests the use of generic names for household help, as, for instance: "Palmer" for parlor maid, "Jenny" for general, "Scully" for scullery maid, and so on. All very well, but suppose in the first case there were three parlor maids, would it distinguish them as "Palmer," "Palmer" and "Palmer"?—Boston Transcript.

120,000 STAND IN BREAD LINE

More Than 1,000,000 Face Death Is Message Brought by Miss Dakesian.

Imagine a bread line of 120,000 famished people waiting for twenty-four hours a day for the dole of food that is the sole barrier between them and death from starvation. That is the situation in Alexandropol, a city in Russian Armenia, according to Miss Hermine Dakesian, a pretty Armenian girl, one of the survivors of four years of the horrors of Turkish massacres and deportations. Saved by an American woman, she has come to this country and entered Oberlin College. With her came fourteen other Armenian girls in charge of Miss Adelaide S. Dwight, a Near East Relief worker, who has been instrumental in helping to save hundreds of thousands of their people from death by starvation. Miss Dwight, who is not given to exaggeration and has seen conditions at first hand, says more than a million people are facing death by starvation in Armenia and will perish unless America aids.

Herself an eyewitness to the slaughter of hundreds of helpless women and children by the Turks and a victim of the deportations, Miss Dakesian, an unusually pretty girl, says there is untold suffering in Armenia and Syria. She praises the efforts of the Near East Relief, formerly the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, to save as many of these people as possible. At Erivan, the capital of the Armenian republic, one hot meal is given out daily, and by this relief alone the city's death rate has been cut from a thousand daily to an average of twenty. At Alexandropol, where the refugees from Turkish Armenia were driven by thousands, the situation is appalling, Miss Dakesian says. It is to avert these wholesale deaths that Near East Relief is making a nation-wide appeal for funds.

BOY SCOUTS IN YOUNG ARMENIA

Strangest Troop of All in Constantinople Being Made into Good Citizens.

American Boy Scout training is aiding prominently in the rehabilitation of hundreds of little Armenian boy refugees from the Turkish massacres, who have been organized into a scout troop in Constantinople as the solution of one of the most troublesome problems that confronted the Near East Relief workers in that city. Founded and driven for four years, having seen their parents and relatives slaughtered or worse by Turks and Kurds and themselves forced to beg, steal or do almost anything to eke out the barest existence, these boys had completely lost their moral sense when they finally found refuge in the Near East Relief orphanage.

The boys had been clad in rags for so long that they had forgotten how to take care of clothes. This was a tragedy when the Near East Relief had need of every pair of shoes and of every suit of clothes for new boys constantly coming in. Then the boys were organized as Boy Scouts and given their uniforms. They began to be careful of their school clothes as well as of their uniforms. They had been so often hungry they had come to steal without compunction. When they first entered the orphanage they continued to steal. One boy stole a purse from his American teacher. For two or three weeks after he became a Boy Scout he was obviously uneasy. One day he came to her with the purse in his hand. "I don't want to give it back," he said reluctantly. "But I have to, I'm a Boy Scout now." To form more scout troops to transform these little unfortunates into good citizens, is one of the reasons why the Near East Relief, 1 Madison avenue, New York city, is making its appeal for funds.

Few Women Misanthropes. We grant that one often sees a woman with a dog in her lap, and that would suppose by her action that she prefers a poodle to a man animal. But, if you gumshoe after her and run her down, you will find that there is a man somewhere that she will shake the dog for, every time. It is very seldom that you will find a woman misanthrope.—Los Angeles Times.

Acorns as Human Food. The Indians of the Pacific coast region, from northern California to Mexico, eat acorns in considerable quantities. Dried and pounded they are made into a sort of mush, and also in bread. Acorn meal is usually bleached to free it from tannin and whatever other bitter principles it contains. In certain parts of Italy acorn meal, with the addition of two-thirds ground grain, is made into bread.

1920 SAVINGS PLAN LAUNCHED

$5 Stamps and $100 and $1000 Treasury Certificates Popular.

LATTER PAYABLE AT SIGHT

Stamps of the 1918 and 1919 issues May Be Exchanged For the More Convenient Treasury Certificates.

- ATTRACTIVE FEATURES OF 1920 GOVERNMENT SECURITIES. 1. They mature January 1st, 1925. 2. They bear 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly. 3. They are tax free except from inheritance, surtax, and excess profit taxes. 4. They may be cashed at the option of the holder, any time before maturity date, for purchase price plus accrued interest to date. 5. They can be registered to prevent loss by fire or theft. 6. Savings Stamps can be bought at postoffices, banks or authorized agencies. 7. Treasury Savings Certificates may be obtained at banks. 8. Savings Stamps may be converted into a Treasury Savings Certificate of $100 and $1000 denominations. 9. $100 Certificates increase 20 cents a month in price and the $1000 Certificates, $2.00 a month, but increase monthly, guaranteed by the United States government.

To promote popular peacetime savings in a practical way the United States Treasury Department will carry on its plan for the sale of Thrift and Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates indefinitely. Secretary of the Treasury Glass announces the gratifying increase in sales of the government securities in the latter months of 1919. The movement for thrift, saving and safe investment is gaining in popularity and is fair for this year.

Since the beginning of the movement, which was adopted as a national war measure, but is now a permanent peacetime program of the government, Thrift and Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates to the amount of $1,225,000,000 have been purchased by American people up to December 15th, 1919. Of this amount more than $82,000,000 in stamps is held in this district. Within the last four months, especially, the volume of savings placed in these securities has been growing by leaps and bounds and the increasing demand for them indicates that January will be one of the largest investment months.

The twenty-five cent Thrift Stamps remain the same as in previous years. They bear no interest and they are used in making small savings to apply in exchange for a $5.00 Savings Stamp. The $5.00 War Savings Stamp bears 4 per cent interest compounded quarterly and costs $4.12 in January, increasing 1 cent per month in cost until next December when the cost will be $4.23. The stamp is carrying in color, bears the head of George Washington and is a trifle larger in size than the 1919 stamps. It can be redeemed on ten days' notice, at any money order postoffice where Savings Stamps are sold. If it is registered it must be redeemed at the postoffice where it was registered.

Other securities are the $100 and the $1000 Treasury Savings Certificates. The $100 Certificate, $2.40 in January, increases 20 cents per month until December. The $1000 Certificate cost $824.00 in January and increases at the rate of $2.00 per month. The ownership limitation is still $1000 (maturity value). This does not include holdings of the 1918 and 1919 issue. These securities, as well as stamps, are obtainable from postoffices, incorporated trusts, banks, bank companies and other specially authorized agencies. A very desirable and convenient exchange feature has been arranged whereby War Savings Certificates of the 1920 issue bearing a full number of twenty Savings Stamps may be exchanged for registered Treasury Savings Certificates, series 1920 of the $100 denomination. The latter are registered at the Treasury and can be redeemed directly through it.

A new feature of the 1920 Treasury Savings Certificates makes them redeemable on demand, two months after purchase, without the customary ten days' notice. It may be of interest to holders of 1918 and 1919 issues of Savings Certificates to know these may be exchanged for Treasury Savings Certificates of the corresponding issues, but the latter are not offered for cash sale. Holders of War Savings Certificates of 1918 or 1919 issues which are incomplete, but which aggregate $100 or some multiple of it—$200, $300, $400, etc.—may exchange them for Treasury Savings Certificates of their corresponding series. Leading economists of the country agree that there is little hope of lowering prices unless the people in general stop buying the unnecessary things and practice economy in their households. To create a will and to form a habit of regular and systematic savings they unequivocally endorse the plan of the U. S. Treasury Department advocating the purchase of Thrift and Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates.

Dreadful Mistake. Irish Mothers' Superstition. Among the people of the south lake of Aran, off the coast of Ireland, there is an odd belief that ill luck is sure to follow if a mother sews the first garments for her offspring. Jewels of the Night.
Do you know that the ancient astronomers were very much interested in jewelry? They said that a ruby represented the planet Mars; a sapphire, Jupiter; a diamond, Saturn; an emerald, Venus; an amethyst, Mercury. Gold represented the sun and pearls the moon.—Boston Post.

Had Preferred Position.
Walford came home from the neighbors and his mother inquired what he was doing. He said they had been playing war and were knocking the boys down. His mother then inquired if he wasn't afraid of being hurt. "Oh, no; I was one of the knockers," he replied.

Won't Sweeten Coffee.
"Sweeten the uses of adversity," but we have no use for it.—Boston Transcript.

Johnny's Mistake.
Johnny went to answer the door bell and replied to a woman's inquiries that his mother was out. "Thank you, I will leave my card," she said, taking out her purse. As she did so the square tissue paper that was with the card fluttered out and landed on the steps. "They miss it," shouted Johnny, after the departing caller, "you dropped a cigarette paper."—Pittsburgh Post.

Vanadium Highly Important.
For the latest types of engineering works, such as airplanes, submarines, torpedoes and similar work, the possession of a material of high resistance to stresses of all kinds enables some of the most difficult elements of the work to be solved. While the application of vanadium to steel does this, and thus constitutes at present its most important use, it has also a marked influence upon cast iron and upon copper.

Witty in Time of Misfortune.
When the conflagration that destroyed Drury Lane theater, in 1809, broke out, Sheridan, the principal shareholder, was in the house of commons. Declining the adjournment offered out of sympathy, he hurried to the theater, only to be pushed back by a soldier, with the curt warning: "Stand back, sir!" "My friend," replied the witty dramatist, "surely a man may warm himself by his own fire!"

Proper View of Peace.
Peace is our proper relation to all men. There is no reason why, as far as we are concerned, we should not be at peace with everybody. If even they are not at peace with us, we may be at peace with them. Let them look to their own hearts, we have only to do with our own.—J. B. Mosley.

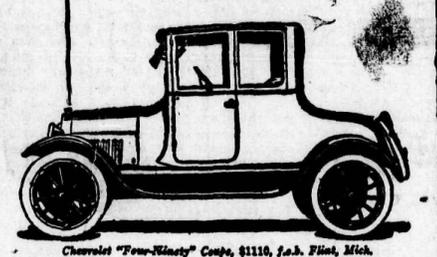

SCHOOLS IN DANGER OF BANKRUPTCY, SAYS GROTTA

"I consider it scandalous on the part of any municipality or commonwealth to fail to make instant provisions that will enable its teachers to obtain the necessities of life." Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York City told members of the Newark Wednesday Club in a speech endorsing the School and Teacher Campaign in New Jersey.

At the same meeting David Grotta, president of the Wednesday Club, told its members that unless the compensation of the public school teachers is increased in keeping with the cost of living there is danger of the schools going into bankruptcy. He said in part:

"It is a very serious predicament confronting the teachers caused by the refusal of the government to give them adequate pay at this time. Our school system because of this is in danger of bankruptcy."
A. J. Glenn, principal of the Hamilton School, said: "If we are going to have our schools advance or if they are going to live up to the standards of the past the work must be done on an advanced system, and it is your concern to see that that system is retained."

Bonus Voted to Hackensack Teachers.
Voters of Hackensack approved by a majority of 813 to 11 the proposal submitted by the Board of Education to borrow $85,000 for the payment of an additional salary bonus to teachers during the current year. The new bonuses, subject to the limitations of the bonus law, which prevents the payment of a total bonus in excess of 50 per cent of a teacher's salary, will vary from $210 to $350.

THE popularity of the Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" Coupe is well deserved. It has the luxury, comfort and conveniences usually associated with more expensive models. It is easy to handle and economical to maintain. The first cost is also low.

The Whole Secret of A Better Tire

Simply a Matter of the Maker's Policies

This you will realize—once you try a Brunswick—that a super-tire is possible only when the name certifies that the maker is following the highest standards.

For tire making is chiefly a matter of standards and policies—cost plus care. Any maker can build a good tire if he cares to pay perfection's price.

All men know Brunswick standards, for Brunswick products have been famous for 74 years.

Formulas, fabrics and standards vary vastly in cost. Reinforcements, plies and thickness are a matter of expense. And these variations affect endurance. It rests with the maker how far he wishes to go—how much he can afford to give.

For there are no secrets nor patents to hold one back.

To ascertain what each maker offers one must analyze and test some 200 tires—as our laboratories have done.

Then it is a matter of combining the best features and building according to the highest standards.

Once you try a Brunswick you will understand how we have built model tires, regardless of factory expense.

Yet Brunswick Tires cost you the same as other like-type tires. Our saving is on selling cost, through our nation-wide organization.

We realize that you expect more from Brunswicks, and we assure you that you get it. ONE Brunswick will tell you the story.

And then you'll want ALL Brunswicks. No other tire, you'll agree, gives so much for your money.

"THIS LAST CHANCE I GIVE YOU"

Synopsis.—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave trader, who spurs his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke), and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Frecoult, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He learns his manifold stratagems and plans an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar. Spying on Tarzan, Werper sees him load his black pack with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun Worshipers. A convulsion of Nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking safety Werper is seized by priests of the flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be offered up as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion. Believing Tarzan dead his black followers return home with the gold. Achmet Zek, acting on Werper's information, has attacked the Greystoke home, burned it, and carried off Lady Greystoke. Mugambi, Tarzan's lieutenant, is severely wounded but recovers and follows the raiders. Lord Greystoke recovers consciousness, and Werper's information has destroyed his memory and he is again Tarzan of the Apes. He finds himself in a jewel room of Opar. He hits his pouch with "pretty pebbles"—cut diamonds of great value. He reaches the sacrificial chamber just as the lion halts the sacrifice of Werper by La. He is recognized by La, high priestess, whom he had known in previous years. He slays the lion and releases Werper. Tarzan and Werper watch the former's return and bury the gold. Tarzan has no memory of the place. Werper steals the diamonds and escapes to Achmet Zek's stronghold. Lady Greystoke is there, a prisoner, but not of the Greystokes. Achmet Zek, fearing for his life, escapes with the gems. Tarzan misses Werper but does not discover the theft of the jewels. He resumes the life of a wild man. La and the priests of the flaming God seek Tarzan and Werper to recover the sacrificial knife, which the latter had carried off. They capture Tarzan.

How beautiful he was! La bent over him, looking into his eyes. How perfect was his figure. She compared it with those of the gnarled and knotted men from whom she must choose a mate, and La shuddered at the thought. Dusk came, and after dusk came night. A great fire blazed within the little thorn boma about the camp. The flames played upon the new altar erected in the center of the clearing, arousing in the mind of the high priestess of the flaming God a picture of the event of the correct dawn. She saw this giant and correct form writhing amid the flames of the burning pyre. She saw those smiling lips, burned and blackened, falling away from the strong, white teeth. She saw the shock of black hair tumbled upon Tarzan's well-shaped head disappear in a spurt of flame. She saw these and many other frightful pictures as she stood with closed eyes and clenched fists above the object of her hate—ah! it was he! It was he! Of Opar fell!

The darkness of the jungle night had settled down upon the camp, relieved only by the fitful flarings of the fire that was kept up to warn off the man-eaters. Tarzan lay quietly in his boma. He had been through a long and strenuous day, but he was not weary. He was not a man of the tight strands and the cuttings of his ankles; but he made no complaint. A jungle beast was Tarzan, with the stolidism of the beast and the intelligence of man. He knew that his doom was sealed—that no supplications would avail to temper the severity of his end, and so he waited patiently in the firm conviction that his sufferings could not endure forever.

In the darkness La stooped above him. In her hand she held a sharp knife and in her mind the determination to slay him without further delay. The knife was pressed against his side and La's face was close to his when a sudden burst of flame from new branches thrown upon the fire without lighted up the interior of the shelter. Close beneath her lips La saw the perfect features of the forest god and into her woman's heart welled all the great love she had felt for Tarzan since first she had seen him, and all the accumulated hatred of the years that she had dreamed of.

Dagger in hand, La, the high priestess, towered above the helpless creature that had dared to violate the sanctuary of her deity. There should be no torture—there should be instant death. A single stroke of the heavy blade and then the corpse to the flaming pyre without. The knife arm stiffened ready for the downward plunge, and then La, the woman, collapsed weakly upon the body of the man she loved.

She ran her hands in mute caress over his naked flesh; she covered his forehead, his eyes, his lips with hot kisses; she covered him with her body as though to protect him from the hideous fate she had ordained for him, and in trembling, piteous tones she begged him for his love. For hours the frenzy of her passion possessed the burning handmaidens of the flaming God, until at last sleep overpowered her and she lapsed into unconsciousness beside the man she had sworn to torture and slay. And Tarzan, untroubled by thoughts of the future, slept peacefully in La's embrace.

At the first hint of dawn the chanting of the priests of Opar brought Tarzan to wakefulness. Inflated in low and subdued tones, the sound soon rose in volume to the open diapason of barbaric blood lust. La stirred. Her perfect arm pressed Tarzan closer to her—a smile parted her lips, and then she awoke, and slowly the smile faded and her eyes went in horror at the significance of the death chant impinged upon her understanding.

"Love me, Tarzan!" she cried. "Love me, and you shall be saved."
Tarzan's bonds burst him. He was suffering the tortures of long-restricted circulation. With an angry growl he rolled over with his back toward La. That was her answer! The high priestess leaped to her feet. A hot flush of shame mantled her cheek and then she went dead white and stepped to the shelter's entrance.
"Come, priests of the flaming God!" she cried, "and make ready the sacrifice."
The warped things advanced and entered the shelter. They laid hands upon Tarzan and bore him forth, and as they chanted they kept time to their crooked bodies, swaying to and fro to the rhythm of their song of blood and death. Behind them came La, swaying too; but not in unison with the chanting eunuchs. White and drawn was the face of the high priestess, white and drawn with unrequited love and hideous wrong of the man she loved. Her stern in her gaze was La. Her hand she held the hands of the frenzied priestess, and then the priest closed upon him with tooth and nail. Seizing the stocky, stunted body in his mighty hands, Tarzan raised the creature high above his head, hurling him at his fellows who were now gathered round to hear down upon their erstwhile captive. La stood proudly with rigid knife behind the ape-man. No faint sign of fear marked her perfect brow—only haughty disdain for her priests and admiration for the man she loved so hopelessly filled her thoughts.

Suddenly upon this scene burst the mad bull—a huge tusker, his little eyes inflamed with insane rage. The priestess stood for an instant paralyzed with terror; but Tarzan turned, and gathering La in his arms raced for the nearest tree. Tarzan bore down upon him trumpeting shrilly. La clung with both her arms about the ape-man's neck. She felt him leap into the air and marvelled at his strength and his ability as, burdened with her weight, he swung nimbly into the lower branches of a large tree and quickly bore her upward beyond reach of the sinuous trunk of the pachyderm.

Momentarily baffled here, the huge elephant wheeled and bore down upon the hapless priests, who had now scattered, terror-stricken, in every direction. The nearest he gored and threw high among the branches of a tree. One he seized in the coils of his trunk and broke upon a huge bole, dropping the mangled pulp to charge, trumpeting, after another. Two he trampled beneath his huge feet, and by then the others had disappeared into the jungle. Now Tarzan turned his attention once more to Tarzan. Back to the tree where La and Tarzan perched he came. He reared up and his forefeet against the bole and reached toward them with his long trunk; but Tarzan had foreseen this and clambered beyond the bull's longest reach. Failure but tended to further enrage the mad creature. He belted and trumpeted and screamed until the earth shook to the mighty volume of his noise. He put his head against the tree and pushed and the tree bent before his mighty strength, yet still it held.

Finding that the tree would not fall to his pushing, Tarzan was but enraged the more. He looked up at the two perched high above him, his red-rimmed eyes blazing with insane hatred, and then he wound his trunk about the bole of the tree, spread his great feet wide apart and tugged to uproot the jungle giant. A huge creature was Tarzan, an enormous bull in the full prime of his stupendous strength. Mightily he strove until presently, to Tarzan's consternation, the great tree gave slowly at the roots. The ground rose in little mounds and ridges about the base of the bole, the tree tilted—in another moment it would be uprooted and fall.

The ape-man whirled to his back and just as the tree inclined slowly in its first movement out of the perpendicular, before the sudden rush of its final collapse, he swung to the branches of a lesser neighbor. It was a long and perilous leap. La closed her eyes and shuddered; but when she opened them again she found herself safe and Tarzan whirling onward through the forest. Behind them the uprooted tree crashed heavily to the ground, carrying with it the lesser trees in its path, and then Tarzan, realizing that his prey had escaped him, set up one more his hideous trumpeting and followed at a rapid charge upon their trail.

CHAPTER XI.
A Priestess but Yet a Woman.
At first La closed her eyes and clung to Tarzan in terror, though she made no outcry; but presently she gained sufficient courage to look about her to look down at the ground beneath, and even to keep her eyes open during the wide, perilous swings from tree to tree, and then there came over her a sense of safety because of her confidence in the perfect physical creature in whose strength and nerve and agility her fate lay. A strange shyness was La of the opportunity of circumstance torn by conflicting emotions. Now the cruel and bloodthirsty creature of a heartless god and again a melting woman filled with compassion and tenderness. Sometimes the incarnation of jealousy and revenge and sometimes a sobbing maiden, generous and forgiving; at once a virgin and a woman; but always—a woman. Such was La.

A hapless priest seeking shelter in the jungle chanced to show himself to the enraged Tarzan. The great beast turned to one side, bore down upon the cowering little man, snuffed him and then, diverted from his course, huddled away toward the south. In a few minutes even the noise of his trumpeting was lost in the distance.

Tarzan dropped to the ground, and La slipped to her feet from his back. "Call your people together," said Tarzan. "They will kill me," replied La. "They will not kill you," contradicted the ape-man. "No one will kill you while Tarzan of the Apes is here. Call them and we will talk with them."

La raised her voice in a weird, flute-like call that carried far into the jungle on every side. From near and far came answering shouts in the barking tones of the Oparian priests. "Come! Come! Come!" Again and again La repeated her summons until singly and in pairs the greater portion of the following approached and halted a short distance away from the high priestess and her savior. They came with scowling brows and threatening mien. When all had come Tarzan addressed them.

"Your La is safe," said the ape-man. "Had she slain me she would now herself be dead and many more of you; but she spared me that I might save her. Go your way with her back to Opar, and Tarzan will go his way into the jungle. Let there be peace always between Tarzan and La. What is your answer?"
The priests grumbled and shook their heads. They spoke together and La and Tarzan could see that they were not favorably inclined toward the proposition. They did not wish to take La back and they did wish to complete the sacrifice of Tarzan to the flaming God. At last the ape-man became impatient.

"You will obey the commands of your queen," he said, "and go back to Opar with her or Tarzan of the Apes will call together the other creatures of the jungle and slay you all. La saved me that I might save you and her. I know not where the sacred knife is; but you can fashion another. Had I not taken it from La you would have slain me and now your god must be glad that I took it since I have saved his priestess from love-mad Tarzan. Will you go back to Opar with La, promising that no harm shall befall her?"
The priests gathered together in a little knot arguing and discussing. It became evident to Tarzan that one of their number was preventing the acceptance of his proposal. This was the high priest, whose heart was filled with jealous rage because La openly acknowledged her love for the stranger, when by the world customs of their cult she should have belonged to him. Seemingly he raised his hand as if to speak, but another priest stepped forward and, raising his hand, addressed La.

La and the priests of the flaming God seek Tarzan and Werper to recover the sacrificial knife, which the latter had carried off. They capture Tarzan.

"Cadj, the high priest," he announced, "would sacrifice you both to the flaming God; but all of us except Cadj would gladly return to Opar with our queen."
"You are many against one," spoke up Tarzan. "Why should you not have your way? Go your way with La to Opar, and if Cadj interferes say him."

The priests of Opar welcomed this suggestion with loud cries of approval. They rushed forward and seized Cadj. They talked in loud, menacing tones into his ear. They threatened him with bludgeon and knife until at last he acquiesced in their demands, though sullenly, and then Tarzan stepped close before Cadj.

"Protect her," cried Tarzan to the other Oparians. "Protect her so that when Tarzan comes again he will find La there to greet him."
"La will be there to greet thee," exclaimed the high priestess, "and La will wait, longing, always longing, until you come again. Oh, tell me that you will know!"
"Who knows?" asked the ape-man as he swung quickly into the trees and raced off toward the east.

For a moment La stood looking after him, then her head drooped and a sigh escaped her lips. Like an old woman she took up the march toward distant Opar.

Through the trees raced Tarzan of the Apes until the darkness of night had settled upon the jungle, then he lay down and slept, with no thought beyond the morrow and with even La but the shadow of a memory within his consciousness.

But a few marches to the north Lady Greystoke looked forward to the day when her mighty lord and master should discover the crime of escape and avenge it, and even as she pictured the coming of John Clayton the object of her thoughts quivered almost naked beside a fallen log, beneath which he was searching with grimy fingers for a chance beetle or a luscious grub.

Two days elapsed following the theft of the jewels before Tarzan gave them a thought. Then, as they chanced to enter his mind, he conceived a desire to play with them again, and, having nothing better to do than satisfy the first whim which possessed him, he rose and started across the plain from the forest in which he had spent the preceding day.

Though no mark showed where the gem had been buried, and though the spot resembled the balance of an unbroken stretch several miles in length, where the reeds terminated at the edge of the meadowland, yet the ape-man moved with unerring precision directly to the place where he had hid his treasures.

the hut, too, was empty, and after satisfying himself that his stolen pouch was secured nowhere within, he left, as he had entered, by the hole in the rear wall.

Here he took the spoor of the Belgian, followed it across the clearing, over the passade, and out into the dark jungle beyond.

CHAPTER XII.

The Flight of Werper.

After Werper had arranged the dummy in his bed and sneaked out into the darkness of the village beneath the rear wall of his tent he had gone directly to the hut in which Jane Clayton was held captive.

The Belgian, being one of Achmet Zek's principal lieutenants, might naturally go where he wished within or without the village, and so the sentry did not question his right to enter the hut with the white woman prisoner.

With Werper called in French and in a low whisper: "Lady Greystoke it is I, M. Frecoult. Where are you?" But there was no response. Hastily the man felt around the interior, groping blindly through the darkness with outstretched hands. There was no one within!

Werper's astonishment surpassed words. He was on the point of stepping without to question the sentry, when his eyes, becoming accustomed to the dark, discovered a blotch of lesser blackness near the base of the rear wall of the hut. Examination revealed the fact that the blotch was an opening cut in the wall. It was large enough to permit the passage of his body, and, assured as he was that Lady Greystoke had passed out through the aperture in an attempt to escape the village, he lost no time in availing himself of the same avenue; but neither did he lose time in a fruitless search for Jane Clayton.

His own life depended upon the chance of his eluding or outdistancing Achmet Zek, when that worthy should have discovered that he had escaped. His original plan had contemplated concealment in the escape of Lady Greystoke for good and sufficient reasons. Accompanied by a titled Englishwoman whom he had rescued from a frightful fate, and his identity vouched for by her as that of a Frenchman by the name of Frecoult, he had looked forward, and not without reason, to the active assistance of the British from the moment that he came in contact with their first outpost.

But now that Lady Greystoke had disappeared, though he still looked toward the east for hope his chances were lessened, and another, subsidiary design had to be adopted. From the moment that he had first laid eyes upon Jane Clayton he had nursed within his breast a secret passion for the beautiful American wife of the English lord, and when Achmet Zek's discovery of the jewels had necessitated flight, the Belgian had dreamed, in his planning, of a future in which he might convince Lady Greystoke that her husband was dead, and by playing upon her gratitude win her for himself.

At that part of the village farthest from the gates Werper discovered that two or three piles which had been collected for the construction of huts, had been leaned against the top of the passade, forming a precarious, though not impossible, avenue of escape.

Rightly, he inferred that thus had Lady Greystoke found the means to scale the wall, nor did he lose even a moment in following her lead. Once in the jungle he struck out directly eastward.

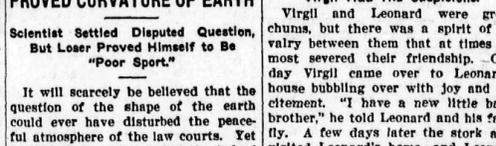

A few miles south of him, Jane Clayton lay panting among the branches of a tree in which she had taken refuge from a prowling and hungry lioness. Her escape from the village had been much easier than she had anticipated. The knife which she had used to cut her way through the brush wall of the hut to freedom, she had found sticking in the wall of her prison, doubtless left there by accident when a former tenant had vacated the premises.

For an hour she had followed the old game trail toward the south, until she fell upon a trail leading bearing the stealthy padding of a straggling beast behind her. The nearest tree gave her instant sanctuary, for she was too wise in the ways of the jungle to chance her safety for a moment after discovering that she was being hunted.

PROVED CURVATURE OF EARTH
Scientist Settled Disputed Question, But Loser Paved Himself to Be "Poor Sport."

It will scarcely be believed that the question of the shape of the earth could ever have disturbed the peaceful atmosphere of the law courts. Yet in 1870 the question, indirectly, indeed did come before three learned judges, and the case excited a deal of interest and amusement. The circumstances were as follows:
The plaintiff, one Hampden, entertained the opinion that the world was not round, and issued a writ of certiorari in a patenting office and scientific professors to prove contrary from Scripture, reason or fact. He deposited $2,500 in a bank, to be forfeited to anyone who could prove to the satisfaction of any intelligent referee that there was such a thing as a convex railway, canal or lake.

The challenge was taken up by no less a person than the late Prof. Alfred Russell Wallace, who proved to the satisfaction of the referee the curvature to and fro of the Bedford level (which is a natural sub-tropical level about six miles) to an extent of five feet, more or less, and the $2,500 was paid over to him.

But he did not keep it. The plaintiff apparently began to see that he was making a fool of himself, and brought an action and recovered back his deposit on the ground that the whole affair was a wager, and therefore illegal.—Springfield Republican.

LADY GREYSTOKE, WHERE ARE YOU?

Two days elapsed following the theft of the jewels before Tarzan gave them a thought. Then, as they chanced to enter his mind, he conceived a desire to play with them again, and, having nothing better to do than satisfy the first whim which possessed him, he rose and started across the plain from the forest in which he had spent the preceding day.

Though no mark showed where the gem had been buried, and though the spot resembled the balance of an unbroken stretch several miles in length, where the reeds terminated at the edge of the meadowland, yet the ape-man moved with unerring precision directly to the place where he had hid his treasures.

With his hunting knife he upturned the loose earth, beneath which the pouch should be; but, though he excavated to a greater distance than the depth of the original hole, there was no sign of pouch or jewel. Tarzan's brow clouded as he discovered that he had been despoiled. Little or no reasoning was required to convince him of the identity of the guilty party, and with the same celerity that had marked his decision to unearth the jewels he set out upon the trail of the thief.

Though the spoor was two days old, and practically obliterated in many places, Tarzan followed it with comparative ease. The man he followed was two days ahead of him when Tarzan took up the pursuit, and each day was closed upon the ape-man. The latter, however, felt not the slightest doubt as to the outcome. Some day he would overhaul his quarry—he could bide his time in peace until that day dawned. Doggedly he followed the faint spoor, pausing by day only to kill and eat, and at night only to sleep and refresh himself.

Occasionally he passed parties of savage warriors; but these he gave a wide berth, for he was hunting with a purpose that was not to be distracted by the minor accidents of the trail.

The parties were of the collecting hordes of the Waziri and their allies which Basul had scattered his messengers broadcast to summon. They were marching to a common rendezvous in preparation for an assault upon the stronghold of Achmet Zek; but to Tarzan they were enemies—he retained no conscious memory of any friendship for the black men.

It was night when he halted outside the passade village of the Arab raiders. Perched in the branches of a great tree he gazed down upon the life within the inclosure. To this place had the spoor led him. His quarry must be within; but how was he to find him among so many huts? Tarzan, although cognizant of his mighty powers, realized also his limitations. He knew that he could not successfully cope with great numbers in open battle. He must resort to the stealth and trickery of the wild beast if he were to succeed.

Patiently he waited until the streets were deserted by all save the sentries at the gates, then he dropped lightly to the ground, circled to the opposite side of the village and approached the passade.

At his side hung a long rawhide—a natural and more dependable evolution from the grass rope of his childhood. Loosening this, he spread the noose upon the ground behind him, and with a quick movement of his wrist tossed the coils over one of the sharpened projections of the summit of the passade.

Drawing the noose taut, he tested the solidity of his hold. Satisfied, the ape-man ran nimbly up the vertical wall, aided by the rope which he clutched in both hands. Once at the top it required but a moment to gather the dangling rope once more into its coils, make it fast again at his waist, take a quick glance downward within the passade, and assured that no one lurked directly beneath him, drew softly to the ground.

Now he was within the village. Before him stretched a series of tents and native huts. It was not necessary that he enter each habitation—through a door, a window or an open chink in the wall, he would know if his prey lay within. For some time he found one disappointment following upon the heels of another in quick succession. No spoor of the Belgian was discernible. But at last he came to a tent where the smell of the thief was strong. Tarzan listened, his ear close to the canvas at the rear, but no sound came from within.

At last he cut one of the pin ropes, raised the bottom of the canvas, and intruded his head within the interior. All was quiet and dark. Tarzan crawled cautiously within—the scent of the Belgian was strong; but it was not his scent. Even before he had examined the interior minutely, Tarzan knew that no one was within it.

In one corner he found a pile of blankets and clothing scattered about, but no pouch of pretty pebbles. At the side where the blankets and clothing lay, the ape-man discovered that the tent wall had been loosened at the bottom, and presently he sensed that the Belgian had recently passed out of the tent by this avenue.

Tarzan was not long in following the way that his prey had fled. The spoor led always in the shadow and at the rear of the huts and tents of the village—it was quite evident to Tarzan that the Belgian had gone alone and secretly upon his mission.

At the back of a native hut the spoor led through a small hole recently cut in the brush wall and into the dark interior beyond. Fearlessly Tarzan followed the trail. On hands and knees he crawled through the small aperture. Within the hut his nostrils were assailed by many odors; but clear and distinct among them sure and no less terrible. He remained silent, almost paralyzed by fear. The Arab approached. Across the trail from Werper the lion crouched for the spring, when suddenly his attention was attracted toward the horseman.

The Belgian saw the massive head turn in the direction of the rider and his heart all but ceased its beating as he waited the result of this interruption. At a walk the horseman approached. Werper shuddered and half rose. At the same instant the lion sprang from his place of concealment, full upon the mounted man. The horse, with a shrill neigh of terror, struck sideways almost upon the Belgian, the lion dragged the helpless Arab from his saddle, and the horse leaped back into the trail and flew away toward the west.

Indians' Precarious Living.
The Seminole Indians are not allowed to intermarry with relatives. A group with totem must marry with another group having another totem—and disobedience is punished with death. But no Seminole would dream of being disobedient. The Seminoles live chiefly by their guns, for they have rarely been able to stay long enough in one place to cultivate the land. They used to sell alligator skins, which they hunted for in the night. The Indians fish and hunt deer and grow corn, but they are always poor, often in want. Attempts to convert the Seminoles to Christianity have been made, but have been unsuccessful.

Longest of All the Arts.
Let it be remembered that though all arts are long, the art of playwriting is the longest. And after years given to the study and practice of it you will find—precisely as in acting, writing, painting, sculpture, music, only more so—that it is never to be fully mastered. Every time you attempt a drama you learn something more about how to do it; and something more—wholesome lesson for vanity—about your own ignorance and limitation. "I have played Hamlet now for 50 years," exclaimed the famous old actor Betterton when someone told him his performance of that part was perfect. "I believe I have not got to the depths of all his philosophy yet." I began playwriting when I was a child. I have been at it now for not less than 55 years, and I know I have nowhere near got to the depths of all the philosophy of it yet—and, what is more, that I never shall do so.—David Belasco in the Saturday Evening Post.

The Old Roman Household.
In the days of old Rome the culting department of an elegant establishment was a kitchen lined with marble and pails of various descriptions. There were egg frames, and would cook twenty eggs at once, and pastry molds shaped like shells, and an infinite assortment of griddles, frying pans, cheese graters and tart dishes.

the House. The Wallworth bill, representing the consensus of the joint Republican conference on the bonus question, provides for the payment of $10 for each month of service with a maximum of $100. It is applicable to all soldiers, sailors, marines and army nurses. Provision is also made for payment of the bonus to dependents of deceased service men. The action of the judiciary committee in reporting the Wallworth bonus bill brought a protest from Mr. Donovan, of Hudson, who charged bad faith on the part of the Republican majority. Mr. Donovan, also the introducer of a bonus bill, said that at a conference immediately preceding the session Mr. Wallworth had agreed not to move his bill until there had been a further conference. He said that representatives of 25,000 service men had endorsed his measure, providing a flat bonus of $100.

Mr. Wallworth, in explanation of his course, said he had been informed by Mr. Donovan during the session that he proposed to invoke the rule of fifteen to force the Donovan measure out of committee. Mr. Wallworth replied that following receipt of this information he had asked Chairman Hershfield, of the judiciary committee, to report the Wallworth bill, which was done. Mr. Hershfield also explained the position of the committee as due to a desire to report the bill it considered most likely to receive popular approval. He said the Donovan bill would involve an expenditure estimated at $20,000,000 and expressed doubt whether it would meet the necessary approval of the voters. The discussion ended without action being taken. Amendments to the Wallworth bill will be offered when it is brought up on second reading.

Protect Lobster, Fishermen's Plea

Stringent legislation for the protection of the lobster industry along the New Jersey coast, as provided in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Tattersall was advocated Monday afternoon by a delegation of fishermen at a public hearing before the House committee on fish and game. Some opposition was expressed to certain features of the bill regarded as too drastic by some of the fishermen. One of the essential features of the Tattersall measure is an annual license fee of $10 for each fisherman engaged in taking lobsters from any tidal waters, including the Atlantic Ocean within three nautical miles of the coast line. Another provision would restrict the taking of lobsters measuring less than four and one-eighth inches. Confiscation of property, such as boats, lobster pots and other appliances used for fishing, together with revocation of license is one of the stringent penalties for violation of the proposed law. The primary purpose of the bill as asserted by its advocates is to prevent the taking of young lobsters. Statistics were produced which indicated that the lobster industry has been reduced 60 per cent in twenty-five years. The license fee was suggested by fishermen with the idea of convincing the State Fish and Game Commission that lobstermen are taking a real interest in the future of the business. Even the opponents of the Tattersall measure agreed that everyone in the lobster business is interested in the movement to prevent the taking of "shorts" or "chicken" lobsters. They did object, however, to the licensing scheme and the proposed legislation limiting each man to the use of not more than 100 lobster pots. Some of the opponents declared it was possible for a fisherman to operate at least 200 pots, and they thought no limitations should be placed upon the legitimate catch of any fisherman. Haines to Switch to 2.75 p. c. Beer At the conference of Republican Senators late Monday afternoon, Senate 28, the bill of Senator Haines, of Camden, providing for the manufacture and sale of beer containing 5 per cent of alcohol and also providing for a referendum on the measure was taken up. At the request of Mr. Haines no action was taken. He asked that the bill be laid over, explaining that he wished to amend it so it would provide for beer at 2.75 by weight. The conference also took up Senator Hagaman's bill, Senate 85, which provides for the appointment by the governor of a commission of five to acquire toll bridges situated entirely in New Jersey. This bill calls for an appropriation of $815,000. It was discovered that the bill was not properly drawn and Mr. Hagaman asked to have it redrafted. Senator Pilgrim, in the Senate, Monday night, failing to muster sufficient votes for Senate bill No. 53, moved that it be laid over. The measure was for the purpose of amending the statute prescribing the manner of computing policy liabilities of life insurance companies. It aimed to make laws less stringent and permit companies to have policies valued according to the American experience table of mortality with compound interest at the rate of either 3 or 3 1/2 per cent per annum. Objection was pressed to letting down the bars which now serve to highly protect policy owners. The Senate Monday night passed the following bills:

Mr. C. D. White provides for an increase in the salaries of county school superintendents from $3000 to $4000. It was amended on third reading to reduce the maximum from $4500 to $4000. Mr. Whitney, provides for appropriation of $10,000 out of the motor-vehicle fund for each county for work on improved roads. Mr. Pilgrim allows municipalities to levy paying assessments against land when work is done by county. Mr. Pilgrim, permits persons, by will to create trust fund for care of cemetery lots. Mr. Whitney, creates office of budget agent, at salary of $6000 instead of present method of employing experts temporarily. Mr. Pilgrim, allows counties to advertise escape of prisoners and to offer $150 reward for their apprehension. The Senate passed a concurrent resolution by Senator Allen fixing next week as the time limit for introduction of bills, except by unanimous consent. When received in the House, the resolution was referred to the judiciary committee. Senator Hagaman, of Ocean, has agreed to introduce for the board of commerce and navigation a bill for the protection of shore resorts from damage by storms. The state board has completed a study of problems involved in protecting the coast from inroads of the ocean, and its findings will be incorporated in legislation conferring authority for such expenditures as may be deemed necessary to protect coast resorts.

THE GRAND CATHOLICOS OF ETCHMIADZIN

In the Saturday Evening Post of February 7th, 1920, there is a most interesting article by Eleanor Franklin Eagan called "Under Noah's Rainbow." It tells of the heroism of American missionaries and other workers, including many brave women, who are administering relief in The Near East. The writer was greatly impressed with what they are doing as well as by the clear headed intelligence in which they are meeting most difficult and heartbreaking conditions. She visited, in her journey, the venerable Catholics of Etchmiadzin, a dignitary of the Gregorian Church. He sat before her in splendid robes, with long beard of snowy whiteness, and with hair reaching to his shoulders. He "had the mild benignant look of a prayerful man." This was the message he sent us: "We depend entirely upon our American friends. We have no other hope. At best many thousands yet must die, but a remnant of our people may be saved. Our prayers to God are that He may bless your wonderful country. Won't you ask your people to hurry? Let us hurry to send our money to the local treasurer, or to the County treasurer for Near East Relief, Mr. W. H. Fischer, of Toms River.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

SIXTEEN YEARS' EXPERIENCE

For sixteen years, a crop of metallurgists have been studying and constantly perfecting the steel that goes into every part of the Ford car and the Ford One Ten Truck. Each separate part has been studied to learn the type of steel best fitted for it. Parts receiving constant surface wear are made of hard, flint-like metal; parts subjected to great vibration or resilience are made of softer, springy steel. Every part is made according to its use—that is, every Genuine Ford part is.

But there are also counterfeit "Ford" parts. They are sold as side-lines by mail-order houses, down-town stores, and many garages. The unsuspecting customer accepts them because they are called "Ford" parts.

To make sure of getting the genuine, Ford-made parts, come to authorized Ford headquarters.

The Modern Funeral

TO the family there is nothing so sacred as that shrine from which the spirit, the personality has gone. There is no work of art, no piece of furniture, no heirloom in the home so precious as that lifeless form.

By the law of association it has become endeared to the family and to groups of neighbors and friends, so that now they "sigh for the touch of a vanished hand and the sound of a voice that is still."

Sympathy is a quality that should be fostered by every funeral director. Brusqueness of speech should be assiduously eschewed.

To be able to show sincere kindness of feeling toward one who suffers, is a most helpful and beneficent quality of human nature.
