

BOYS' AND GIRLS' ACHIEVEMENT CLUB NOTES

The sewing exhibit of the Home Making Contest will be held at the old Opera House, March 27th. The public may see this exhibit any time thru the day. Come and see what the schols are doing in sewing. Banners, pins, and certificates will be awarded by the judges, Friday, Mar. 26th. Schools compete for banners in their class.

Class I—Large schools.
Class II—Three to six room schools.
Class III—Two-room schools.
Class IV—One-room schools.

Miss Warren, National Leader of Boys' and Girls' Achievement Clubs, will spend March 27th in Ocean County. She will address the teachers at their County Meeting held at Toms River and meet with the local leaders during luncheon hour. It is an honor for Ocean County to have Miss Warren visit here. Yet we know that she will be more than pleased with her trip when she sees the sewing of our boys and girls (for some boys are sewing in the contest).

Ocean County has also been given the honor to represent the State of New Jersey, in sewing, at the Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Mass. We realize our responsibility and feel assured Ocean County can do its part. The best sewing from the Home Making Contest will be kept for the exposition.

LYDIA GARNAR SALVADOR
County Club Leader

March 17, 18, and 19 the schools of Ocean County were campaigned for new members for the Boys' and Girls' Achievement Clubs. The main centers of the county were visited, 26 in all, pledges taken by the children and enrollment cards left. Mr. A. M. Hulbert, State Club Leader; Mr. Chas. A. Morris, County Sup't of Schools; Mr. E. H. Waite, County Agricultural Agent; and Mrs. Lydia Garnar Salvador, County Club Leader, were the campaigners.

There is an unusual interest and enthusiasm on the part of boys and girls for club work. It has proven its worth and our boys and girls know it is a real piece of work to do. According to pledges taken, there will be at least 1500 children enrolled.

HOME COGITATIONS

Lest you should sometimes weary of our "Rural Ruminations," we plan to intersperse them with some "Home Cogitations."

The most profitable, the most interesting study for woman is the home, for in it centers all the interests of life.

Now that fireless cookers are well introduced into society, we announce the debut of the iceless refrigerator. Ask your home demonstration agent about it or write straight to Mrs. Frank App at the State Agricultural College, New Brunswick.

How many times have you lost your temper trying to cut up marshmallows in a hurry? Next time dip the scissors in cold water and use them while wet.

Another temper preserver! When measuring that "half cup" of shortening, fill the measuring cup half full of ice water and add your butter or lard until the water reaches the top of the cup. Nobody likes to clean shortening out of the bottom of a cup.

Never scrape aluminum with a knife; use a wooden spoon.

Most of us do not relish a mouthful of oil paper mixed in with our dates. Try taking the dates from the cardboard package and placing them in the oven for a minute or two before attempting to peel off the oil paper.

We agree with the American School of Home Economics: "The upbringing of children demands more study than the raising of poultry."

WANT OCEAN COUNTY AS POULTRY CENTER

Toms River C. of A. Agitates a $50,000.00 Colonization Plan

Toms River, March 11.—To be the leading poultry centers of the United States, as its goal, the Toms River Chamber of Commerce is planning to establish poultry colonies at this place in the very near future. The idea was advanced to the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce by County Agent E. H. Waite and Charles N. Warner, proprietor of Toms Poultry Farms at Toms River. Mr. Warner is president of the State Poultry Association, and both he and Mr. Waite have been receiving communications for some time past from poultrymen in all sections of the country, inquiring as to the prospects of purchasing suitable poultry plants in or around Toms River.

The plan, when put into effect, would mean an initial expenditure of nearly $50,000, and to finance it, a finance association would be formed among the members of the Chamber of Commerce, who would subscribe to large blocks of stock.

The idea is to purchase a large acreage, located within a short distance of Toms River, build a bungalow, poultry houses, stock the plant, and then sell the plants to poultrymen. Each plant would have a value of $6,000, and would be sold to the poultrymen for a cash payment and first mortgage. There are enough applications for plants on file with County Agent Waite to take up fifty plants.

The money turned in for the plants would be reinvested in other plants, thus increasing the colony continually. A co-operative buying, selling and shipping company would be formed to assist the poultrymen in the production and marketing of the products, with possibly a huge cold storage plant.

It has been stated by experts that Ocean County is the ideal place for poultry ranches, not having an equal in the United States. There are numerous reasons why this should be so, among which might be mentioned location, soil and water, climate, moderately priced land, ease with which stock could be secured, outlet for the product and many others.

Poultrymen are scattered all over the county, and in Dover township nearly every farm has been developed into a paying poultry plant.

To bring this business up to its highest efficiency is the idea of the sponsors of the colonization plan, with the added desire to increase the population and business of Toms River. With poultrymen moving in with families, business generally must increase. This plan is solidly backed by the publicity committee as one of the best plans to increase business, and was recommended to the Chamber of Commerce at a recent meeting. In making a report of the publicity committee, a member said: "Your committee does not think it feasible to recommend advertising for summer visitors, for a very good reason. We have no place to take care of the visitor if he comes. But we do recommend that you advertise it as a place to build homes, to transact business, to enjoy life, and find health and recreation."

It is hoped that work on the colonization plan may begin soon as the weather permits, so that poultrymen may have the early spring and summer to try out the colonization scheme.

NOTICE TO OUR CUSTOMERS!

Owing to illness and bad weather and other unavoidable circumstances, we have been handicapped in making prompt deliveries for the past few weeks. We hope to be caught up in a few days, however, and will endeavor to give our many customers better service.

A farmer's apprentice who had "served his time"—having attained his majority—and who was leaving the farm with the stipulated "new suit of clothes and $100.00 in cash," was given the following gratuitous advice by the old Quaker whom he had seen serving:

"Samuel thee must bear three things in mind if thee expects to succeed:

It is not what thee reads but what thee remembers that will do thy mind good.

It is not what thee eats but what thy stomach digests which will make thy body strong.

It is not what thee makes but what thee SAVES that will ever make thee rich."

Whether the young man profited by the advice or not is not recorded, but we will all agree that it was worth listening to. Should we not all heed these words of wisdom and apply them to ourselves?

The habit of saving, once fixed—becomes a pleasure, and the slight sacrifices made for its sake are cheerfully borne and richly compensated.

NO COUNTY SCHOOL MAY DAY BUT SEVERAL DISTRICT FETES

There will be no county May day fete in Ocean County this spring, like that held at Lakewood last year or at Toms River in 1918. It is planned in place of the general gathering of all the pupils at one place, to have a series of May day fetes at central schools for various districts of the county. The county fete will be resumed in 1921, it is expected.

These district fetes will be held according to tentative plans, as follows: Toms River, for Dover, Berkeley, Lacey townships and Island Heights. This is planned as a playday, not a pageant.

Lakewood, for Lakewood township. Point Pleasant, for Point Pleasant and Brick townships.

Some place on Squan Beach, for the resorts from Bay Head to Seaside Park.

Jackson township at some central point.

New Egypt, for Plumsted township.

Barnegat, for Union, Ocean and Stafford townships.

Tuckerton, for Tuckerton, Little Egg Harbor and Eagleswood townships.

Beach Haven, for Long Beach resorts.

In districts where there is a supervising principal, the plans are in his hands; where there is no supervisor, Mrs. Herberg and Miss Simpson, the helping teachers, are making the arrangements.

SCHOOL HEADS TO LOOK AFTER HIGH AND GRAMMAR ATHLETICS

At the session of supervising principals with County Superintendent C. A. Morris and the Helping Teachers held in Barnegat recently, it was decided that the heads of the schools must give more supervision to school athletics, and keep them on a high plane. It was decided that in the high school games there would be a rigid adherence to the eligibility rule of the State High School Association, and no boy or girl would be allowed to play on a team unless a bona fide student of the school he or she sought to play with.

A grammar school baseball league was planned, and games will be played this spring. The committee in charge are E. M. Finck, of Toms River, Carl Coffeen, of Lakewood, Reed Gayer of Point Pleasant.

FEDERAL WARDENS MAKE ARRESTS IN LOWER BAY

Federal Game Wardens Phineas K. Hilliard, of Atlantic City, (formerly of Manahawkin) and Samuel J. Taylor of Mt. Holly, last week arrested the caretaker of a gunning club in one of the lower bays, an Ocean County man. They found, it is alleged, 16 wild geese, that had been killed for a game dinner in Mt. Holly, the caretaker being instructed by the Mt. Holly club members, owners of the clubhouse, to kill the geese for the dinner. The dipper has not come off to date.

Hagaman Beat Hunting License Increase

Other Legislative Notes of the Week

Because of the severe attack launched by Senator Hagaman, of Ocean, and Senator Reeves, of Cumberland, against the house bill increasing the resident hunters' and gunners' license fee from $1 to $1.65 and the non-residents' fee from $2 to $3, Senator Smith was forced to request that the measure be laid over after having succeeded in mustering nine votes in its favor.

Senator Hagaman was particularly vicious in his onslaught against the bill, which was defeated in the House last year after three attempts had been made to secure its passage.

Declaring he did not represent "game hogs" nor puppets, the Ocean senator argued that it was manifestly unfair legislation to his constituents and contended that the fish and game commission should not have more money for work they have not properly done. He charged that the reason the counties in the northern end of the state supported the proposed law was because they profited by the acts of the commission, and in this connection told of three northern counties where there were distributed 15,000,000 of the 16,000,000 fish planted last year.

Commission Is Assailed

Senator Hagaman also told of the fact that last year there was $12,000 collected in fines by the commission which expended $36,000 to do the work of prosecuting the violators. He asked if this was good business judgment and followed it up by saying that the wardens are usually "toasting their shins at some grocery store in ear-tab weather" instead of performing their duty. In concluding Senator Hagaman asked "that the senators not assassinate the interest that he represents."

After referring to the fact that at the end of the last fiscal year the fish and game commission had a balance of $67,000 to its credit, Senator Reeves contended that this amount was ample for its purposes of additional stocking. He argued that the present license fee was ample as applied to residents, but contended that the fee for non-residents should be increased at least $5, especially to Pennsylvanians who flocked to this state in great numbers, and who are benefited by the plentiful supply of fish and game. Senator Reeves held that the proposed resident increase was too much of an increase for the man who toils.

Predictions of a revolution in New Jersey similar to that in Russia; unless drastic action is quickly taken by the Legislature was predicted by Charles P. Gillen, Mayor of Newark, at a hearing before the house committee on revision of the laws preceding Monday night's session.

The hearing was on the pending bills designed to relieve the housing situation, and Mayor Gillen's warning of future trouble was based upon the acute conditions which he declared exist in many parts of the state. In justification of his plea for prompt action, he exploited the situation in Newark, where he said rents have been raised 125 per cent and are still mounting steadily.

The particular bills under consideration were introduced by Mr. Hanson, of Hudson. One would exempt from taxation for a period of five years all dwellings erected during the next two years. Another would compel landlords to give tenants at least three months' notice to vacate to afford them reasonable opportunity to find new quarters. Mayor Gillen favored both measures.

Jersey City Hard Hit

James E. Gannin, commissioner of Jersey City, told of a threatened uprising in that city because of rent profiteering. He said rents there have become so high that many families of limited means are unable to buy proper clothes and food. Even by paying the exorbitant rates demanded many hundreds of families are improperly housed.

HIGH-ARCHED FEET

DURING the course of the past summer dozens of girls wrote to me on the advisability of spending the time barefoot at summer or seashore resorts, where there was enough seclusion to permit this freedom of dressing. Most wanted to know whether or not it would improve their feet, "Barefoot Lassie" being especially anxious as her feet were white and pink tinted, smooth and shapely.

Undoubtedly, so long as none of these girls ran nails into their feet, the weeks spent running about so would improve their feet. But it would not improve their feet, for no matter how healthy our savage ancestors were, in their "close to Nature" life, no one could accuse them of possessing really beautiful feet.

The mere fact of going barefoot would not break down the arch of the foot and make it flat, as some of my correspondents feared, but it would brown and toughen the skin and it would certainly spread the wearing injuriously high heels are apt to be flat footed also.

Instead of going barefoot, I advised my correspondents to wear open sandals, which would allow the foot freedom of action and plenty of air, at the same time preventing it from spreading or growing coarse in appearance. For flat feet I never advise false arches or braces; these hold up the foot, it is true, but weaken the bones and muscles that should be taught to do this for themselves. An exercise of standing first on the flat of the foot, then on the toe, practised ten minutes a day, is quite beneficial. Shoes with broad heels an inch or so high are best to wear.

ROBIN'S REVENGE

ROBIN REDBREAST was not a bad fellow and never thought of being revengeful until one day when Jimmy Crow treated him badly. Robin had found a nice tree of cherries near a cornfield and was planning for a feast when along came Jimmy Crow.

"Get right out of my tree!" he cawed. "This is where I sit and watch for the farmer with his gun. What right have you to come here. I should like to know, bobbing about and attracting the farmer's attention? Get out. I tell you! I want this tree to hide in."

As Jimmy spread his wings and looked very angry as well as cawed, and every minute it seemed to Robin, he might get pecked with Jimmy's sharp bill, he obeyed and flew away, but from that day Robin watched for

ERRANT FANCY.
This is about the time of year when Fancy (fatuous fool)
Goes straying 'round the edges of some minor-mused pool.
One hears the frog go "Quillwump!" or tell you it's "knee deep!"
This vision will grow stronger as the season advances.
But when 'tis spring and we have had a heated day or two,
That same fool Fancy will bring back a snowy day to view!

I love the summer, when 'tis cold; in spring I like the fall; the summer, in the winter time, I love the most of all. I love to snowball folks in June, and coast through warm July. In January, 'er the stream I'd cast the tempting fly. In 'mid December I'd go forth and pluck the daisied dell. I strongly hope that heaven won't give me a yearn for the other place!

tree for fear I cannot fly back. I am very hungry and I am afraid I may starve, for there is nothing to eat in this tree."

First, Robin thought of how he had been treated by Jimmy and was about to tell him it served him right for driving him away from the cherry tree and then another thought popped into his little head and he decided to try it.

Away he flew to the very tree Jimmy had driven him from and, picking the biggest cherry he could find, away he flew and gave it to Jimmy.

Again and again he made the trip back and forth until Jimmy Crow had to say he could eat no more.

"Those cherries are the very best I ever ate," he said.

"Yes, they grew on the tree you had near the cornfield and drove me out of," replied Robin.

Jimmy Crow hung his head, for he remembered then how unkind he had been to Robin and here it was Robin who had fed him when he was hungry and friendless. He was very much ashamed.

Robin watched him with his bright eyes and he felt sure this revenge was far better than treating Jimmy badly, as he had first thought of doing.

"I guess I was pretty cross to you," said Jimmy; "I am sorry and when I get well I will keep my eyes open always as I fly around the country for the biggest cherries and tell you where they grow."

BOY SCOUTS

AMERICAN SCOUTING'S START

Everybody knows of the Boy Scouts, but few people are aware that one small boy in a crowded London street inadvertently planted the acorn that has grown into that sturdy oak, the Boy Scouts of America.

W. D. Boyce of Chicago in 1908, on his way to a certain destination in London, lost his way in the devious mazes of that city. Pausing in uncertainty to get his bearings, he was confronted by a small boy who saluted and asked politely if he might be of service. Pleased by the lad's manner and grateful for the timely offer of aid, Mr. Boyce accepted the lad's guidance, and arrived at the goal, offered him a shilling. To his amazement the boy drew himself up, saluted with dignity and replied that he was a boy scout, and a scout never took tips for small deeds of courtesy. His curiosity piqued by this response, the American asked pertinent questions as to boy scouts, of whom he knew nothing at the time. He was promptly conveyed to the British scout headquarters and introduced to Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

When Mr. Boyce sailed for home he brought with him a trunkful of scout literature and a determination that American boys should have scouting at once and effectively.

SCOUTS AID OVERWORKED CATS.

The boy scouts have rallied to the aid of Chicago's hard-pressed cats, and some much-dreaded infectious diseases will not spread further—not if the boys and the cats can help it.

An intensive campaign for the extermination of rats and ground squirrels has been launched by the scouts. Eight thousand scouts, taking with them some hundreds of rat terriers, are in search of the rodents.

The most energetic boys and the best trained terriers will lurk about South Water street, where the biggest rats are to be found.

THE BOY SCOUTS' BUSY LIFE.

Bushkill, Pa., Scout Troop No. 1, keeps the churchyard clean, removing dead leaves and trees.

Washington, D. C., Scout Troop No. 2, found two lost boys after a long search in the woods.

Boy scouts of Black River, Jefferson county, New York, succeeded in carrying practically everything from the first floor of a burning house. The fire had gained such headway that they were unable to save the goods on the second floor.

The second district of the Boston scout council has a radio communication unit for scouts over 15 years of age.

Henry Mier of Ionia, Mich., a boy scout, proved the benefit of his scout training at a fire. At the alarm of fire he rushed out and in keeping with the code of the organization began immediately looking for something to do. His efforts were directed toward the high board fence that separated the substation of the electric lights from the burning buildings and he kept water on it all the time by making good use of a bucket.

Boy Scout Troop No. 1 of Glenside, Pa., is run entirely through patrol leaders. They have only eight tenderfoots in a troop of 55. The troop owns boxing gloves and is well drilled and disciplined. The assistant scoutmasters are Eagle Scouts. Nearly every scout is a swimmer.

Trenton, N. J., Scout Troop No. 9, keeps hustling. The boys earned money with which to buy for their church an American flag, one ton of coal, and a bulletin board. They also sent $10 to the children of Belgium. It is the troop's special job to keep the church grounds clean.

SCOUTS UNVEIL HERO TABLET.

Philadelphia boy scouts have given a tablet to the memory of the scouts who gave their lives in the war. The tablet was designed by Dr. R. Tait McKenzie of the University of Pennsylvania, a member of the Philadelphia scout council. It was accepted on the part of the scouts by Dr. Charles D. Hart, chairman of the council. Fourteen names are inscribed.

OUT O' LUCK

Never mind! Just take Cascarets if Bilious, Constipated

Everyone must occasionally give to the bowels some regular help or else suffer from constipation, bilious attacks, stomach disorders and sick headache. But do not whip the bowels into activity with harsh cathartics.

What the liver and bowels need is a gentle and natural tonic, one that can constantly be used without harm. The gentlest liver and bowel tonic is "Cascarets." They put the liver to work and cleanse the colon and bowels of all waste, toxins and poisons without griping—they never sicken or inconvenience you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or Purgatives.

Twenty-five million boxes of Cascarets are sold each year. They work while you sleep. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

TOO QUICK IN CONDEMNATION QUEUE IS SIGN OF BONDAGE

Billy Grimes Might Have Been a Little Less Hasty in "Bawling Out" the Doctor.

Remarkable That Chinese Have Come to Look Upon It With a Degree of Pride.

"The opponents of strong drink," said a politician at a dinner in New York, "are too ready with their accusations—accusations of drunkenness and what not—against all who don't share their views."

"Sometimes I think they are as bad as Billy Grimes."

"Billy's doctor had bought a fine new pair of acetylene lamps for his automobile, and one evening the water reservoirs of both lamps got empty, and so, of course, the lights went out."

"The doctor, halting in front of Billy's shack, shouted:
"Hi, Billy, can you let me have some water for my lamps?"
"Billy came forth. 'Water?' he said. 'I guess ye mean oil, don't ye, doc?"
"No, I don't," said the doctor; "I mean water."
"Billy looked at the doctor, then he shook his head sadly.
"Better go right off home, doc," he said. "Go home and sleep it off. Ain't ye ashamed of yerself—at our age—and all the lives of the community dependin' on ye?"—Washington Star.

Most women are generous to a fault if it isn't one of their husbands'.

If the Germans had won the war, would they have made us wear pig tails—in order that they might have something to yank us around by? And would they have applied their efficiency to a new system of punishment, perhaps with a different number of yanks for each offense against our conquering masters? The zeal with which patriotic Chinamen cultivate the queues that they consider a sort of national distinction, and the fact that these Chinamen in other countries who discard them are forever considered outcasts is indeed paradoxical. For the pigtail is a sign of bondage, the earmark of a conquered race. Centuries ago ancient China had a civilization all its own. But on every side she was surrounded by warrior hordes that coveted the riches and luxuries of the more advanced people and harassed them continually. Finally overcome by a barbarian host, the Chinese were reduced to a state of servility. One of the exactions of the conquerors was that the men grow long queues, by which, as they flew by on their horses, they actually took hold of the helpless creatures to swing them before them to the saddle or to cut off their heads.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

WAYS WITH SOUR CREAM.

Those who are fortunate enough to have sour cream (which is often, in many farm homes, will like to have a few reminders of how it may be used. Sour cream has been used for generations for cookies, cakes, biscuits and griddle cakes, as well as for salad dressings, pudding sauces, cake filling, fish and meat sauces and for various delightful frozen dishes with fruit juice. These are but a few of the various uses for sour cream.

Those who are fond of codfish in white sauce will find that sour cream used in place of the milk will make a most tasty and appetizing dish. Be careful to cook the flour and butter well before adding the cream, as that must not cook very long or it will curdle.

Sour cream when mixed with fruit juices of various kinds, sweetened to taste and frozen, will make a delicious, smooth, velvety cream. Orange juice, with sugar and water boiled with the grated rind and cooled, then added to the sour cream, is a most delightful combination.

For a cake filling, take one-half cupful of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, and boil until it hairs; add a pinch of salt and a half cupful of hickory nut meats.

Sour Cream Cookies.—Add a cupful of sugar, a cupful of molasses, to two cupfuls of rich sour cream. Add two well-beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of soda and one of baking powder, a tablespoonful of ginger, a dash of cinnamon and cloves, and enough flour to roll; let stand on ice to chill before rolling out.

Shredded Cabbage With Sour Cream Dressing.—Shred the cabbage very thin, plunge into cold water and let stand until crisp. Drain and add sour cream, sugar, salt and a dash of vinegar to give the salad the right zest. If the cream is very sour, the vinegar will not be needed.

For a salad dressing of any kind of vegetable, a teaspoonful or two of boiled dressing and a half cupful of whipped sour cream will be found very acceptable.

So many gods, so many creeds, So many ways that wind and wind; While just the art of being kind Is all this sad world needs.—Wilcox.

A CHAPTER ON SOUPS.

There are soups and soups. Clear soup is more in the nature of a stimulant than a nutrient. The hot liquid being easily assimilated prepares the way for the heavier food which is to follow. Cream soups, with bread and butter, make a fairly nutritious meal.

Split Pea Soup.—Soak a cupful of split peas over night in two quarts of cold water. In the morning put the peas over the fire with a ham bone or a piece of salt pork, a slice of onion, and simmer four hours; rub through a sieve, return to the fire; melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two of flour; mix well and add a little soup to the consistency for pouring. Stir into the soup and cook five minutes. Season with salt, sugar and pepper to taste; add one cupful of thin cream and serve hot.

Beef Soup.—Brown three pounds of beef from the shin, cut in small pieces. Use the marrow from the bone to fry the meat in. Add the bone with one-fourth pound of ham to three quarts of cold water; let it simmer for three hours. Then add a fowl cut in halves, an onion, half a carrot cut in pieces, a stalk of celery, a sprig of parsley, three cloves and half a dozen peppercorns, all but the last three browned in the fat. Cook until the chicken is tender; remove the fowl and strain. Cool and remove the fat, stir into the stock three fresh egg shells; let boil two minutes, skim, strain, re-heat and serve.

Cream of Onion Soup.—Slice four onions and cook in boiling water until soft, changing the water once during the cooking. When tender, rub the onions through a sieve and to a cupful of the pulp prepare the following: Melt a tablespoonful of butter, and when hot add bubbling hot water to spoonfuls of flour. Stir until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan. Add three cupfuls of cold milk and cook until smooth; after ten minutes of cooking add the onion and the liquid in which they were cooked. Boil up once and serve.

Beef Broth and Egg.—Take a half cupful of beef stock and remove all fat. Have an egg beaten stiff. Heat the broth to the boiling point, season to suit the taste of the patient, stir one-half of the beaten egg into it and serve at once.

If one's failures have been honestly achieved by hard and long-continued effort, they become highly useful and convincing."—Irving Bacheller.

NEW HAT MODES

Crowns Both High and Low; Springs Suit of Paris Type; Brims Are of All Widths.

Premature Display of Headgear Constitutes Trying Out Process for the Different Styles.

Millinery shops are putting forth hats of summery aspect—and numbers are being bought by southward bound folk and stay-at-homes as well. This premature display for the spring and summer constitutes a trying out process for the different styles which the milliners see fit to launch at this time of year.

The unusual shapes which are becoming to the few take their proper place, and the shapes which are predestined to extinction on account of their absolute hopelessness on any woman are cast into the discard.

As the procession passes the prudent woman who gets the last minute of wear out of her winter hat and does not put on her new hat until spring has really arrived can, if she has good judgment, make her choice of spring millinery before purchasing. She can do a sort of mental trying on which will save her from making mistakes in the hurry and confusion of the actual buying.

There is an unusual variety of models for the early showing. There are turbans high and low, flaring and narrow; tall crowned, broad-brimmed hats; shapes flaring up at the front, at the back, or at the sides; pokes and tricornees. Somewhat newer and smarter than the hat with its brim turned up at the front is the model turned up sharply at both front and back.

One model of this type showed the crown covered with heavy flowers and straw brim in matching hues and shade. Another model on these same lines had a crown of satin of the new brown tint. The straw brim was of a shade to match. The brim was folded back at the sides and trimmed with a large yellow-toned rose.

Henna, by the way, is one of the favored shades in spring millinery. One lovely large broad-brimmed mushroom shape showed a crown and upper part of brim in henna red straw with facing in oyster white or bordering on light tan—just off white. The smart medium-sized crown was encircled by a henna-colored fancy feather or algrette.

STUB TOES RIVAL POINTED

Doubt Expressed as to How Long French Style Will Hold Sway With Women.

The battle of the shoes is raging—whether to be stubbed toed or pointed toed is the agitating question. At least it agitates some folks; with others there is no shadow of doubt states a fashion writer. The French shoe-makers, for example, claim thousands of converts and give as the reason the superior comfort, youthfulness and diminutive appearance of the round toed French last, which nobody can deny.

On the other hand, at a shop which deals in the most exclusive American made footwear, short vamped shoes are swept aside with a lofty contempt which should shiver them at their source. One is given to understand that they are a mere bizarre whim of the moment, like green hair or dyed legs, which will never be taken up by the best people and soon will be forgotten.

There is no question that the round French shoe, with its extremely high heel, gives a woman the effect of possessing a much smaller foot than was hers in a shoe with a long and pointed vamp, even though the front

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Bright copper chiffon cloth is used for negligees. Patent leather applique work is seen on navy serge. Satin skirts are richly flounced with Chantilly lace. Flounced dance frocks are charming for young girls. More silk spats in black or brown are shown for the shopper who likes a change from the heavier cloth ones of tan or gray.

Among the interesting sport suits being brought out for next season, some with middy blouses or slip-over jackets are especially smart. Very wide ribbons are used for girdles and sashes for the eton or holoer jacket suits, either self-color, or in plain vivid shade or a gay plaid ribbon being chosen.

PRETTY RUSTIC FLOWER VASE

Small Log of Wood May Be Converted Into Attractive Decoration for the Home.

A quaint and pretty little rustic flower vase can be made from a small log of wood. The bark should be left in its natural condition, and one end of the log hollowed out with a gouge.

The exterior of the stand can be treated in two ways. It can be just varnished and left to dry, or it can be covered with gold paint.

Stands of this kind look very pretty, too, with little ferns planted in them, and when used for that purpose no bowl or basin is, of course, required.

The mat upon which the stand sketched was placed is of a simple and useful type to make for this purpose, and it was carried out in pale green velvet and lined with saten. It is diamond shape, and trimmed at the edges with lace.

Modesty in Milady's Gowns.

If there is anything "daring" about the dresses worn by American women today, the American manufacturers of women's apparel are not to blame for it. A statement by David N. Mossesohn, executive director of the Associated Dress Industries of America, Mr. Mossesohn's statement is made apropos of the comment which has grown out of a recent pastoral letter of Cardinal Amette, in which he made reference to the "immorality" of certain dresses. In part, Mr. Mossesohn's statement says: "The dresses created and manufactured in this country are modest in style. The most daring modes are those which reach this country from abroad and which are copies of garments worn by European women. The type of American women which demands these immodest styles is in the minority and has no influence on the style plans of the dress industry."

PARIS DRESS BRINGS THE POLICE

Disregard for Permanency of Shoulder Straps Results in Threats of Arrest.

There is no questioning in Paris about the length of skirts. They wear them short, just as short as they care, so long as they don't venture above the knee. At the "Casino de Paris" and similar places of amusement the women were so scantily and insecurely clad that in the mad whirl of the dance the frail shoulder straps would break. This became such a nightly diversion that the police had their attention called to the matter and a notice was posted to the effect that thereafter a detached shoulder strap would bring the police wagon. Since then there has been quite a run on safety pins in the city.

Practical for Children. The principal "talking point" about a line of girls' dresses with bloomers now on the market is that every dress is made with a tuck in the hem and the cuff. This permits of "letting out" the garment as the child grows. Another feature of the line is the attention that has been given to making each dress an individual style. This is accomplished by small touches of hand embroidery as well as hand-made buttonholes which eliminate the "factory stamp."

Brown for a Col. Brown has been very popular for spring and summer dresses.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By Mary Graham Donner

MR. ZEBU TALKS.

"It is sometimes that I feel this way, and sometimes that I don't," said Mr. Zebu.

"Which means a great deal or nothing," said Mrs. Zebu grinning. "By the way isn't it nice to be cattle and yet to be a zebu?"

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mrs. Zebu.

"Well, we're nice domestic, friendly creatures and yet we're inner than cows and such!" said Mr. Zebu.

"Well, that's not asked to be so friendly," said Mrs. Zebu, "that is we aren't made nets of here as we were abroad, but we're all right on the whole."

"Well, that's about what you can say of cows and cattle. Yes, we belong to the great Cattle Family which includes a great deal—maybe everything."

"Oh no, not everything," said Mrs. Zebu.

"As you say," her mate agreed, "I have such a funny tongue," he added, after a bit.

"Do you mean you are funny when you use it, or what?" asked Mrs. Zebu.

"I don't mean it is funny in the way that one might take it."

"I don't want to take your tongue, kind sir, I don't really want to take it. I have one of my own."

"Oh, I didn't mean that," Mr. Zebu said. I meant that one might take my speech to mean that I used my tongue to utter funny speeches and tell funny jokes.

"Good word that—utter—" said Mrs. Zebu. "It makes me think of poetry and kings and good food."

"How can it make you think of all those things?" asked Mr. Zebu. "And it's not like any of them."

"It makes me think of them because it sounds like such superior words and poetry is superior except when it is awful and the same can be said of good food. However, I get a little confused when I talk about words, so let's talk of something else."

"Then too," she added, "you told me you wanted to talk to me. You didn't say that you wanted me to talk to you."

"That's so but I'm an obliging fellow," said Mr. Zebu.

"I'm grateful, but now suppose you say what you have to say."

"Well, I started to tell you that sometimes I feel one way and sometimes another—not quite the way I worded it before but it has the same meaning."

"It has no meaning either way that I can discover," said Mrs. Zebu.

"I mean," said Mr. Zebu, "that there have been times when I have and times when I haven't."

"Pray explain a little more carefully," said Mrs. Zebu.

"Well," said Mr. Zebu, "the keeper doesn't have me around when a zebu baby is born. He keeps the baby away from me for a time."

"Now sometimes when I see a little boy zebu I feel a little like killing him, in fact I often feel that way, but it is only with a baby boy zebu."

"With a baby girl zebu I never feel that way. I love the baby girls," and Mr. Zebu rolled his horns around and said again.

"Yes, I absolutely adore little baby zebu girls."

"I love a zebu boy baby or a zebu girl baby," said Mrs. Zebu. It makes no difference to me."

"I know that," said Mr. Zebu, "but it makes a lot of difference to me sometimes—although—as I say—not always."

"I don't know why I feel this way. I don't know why at times I dislike zebu boy babies, for when they grow up I think they're very fine."

"It's something I don't really understand about myself but it is the way I feel and so—the keeper knows it and saves the baby boys from any such cruel end."

"He does that. I am glad to say," agreed Mrs. Zebu.

"And I'm glad of it too," said Mr. Zebu, "for I really don't want to kill the baby zebu boys, and yet if they're not kept from me the temptation to do so might be too great, too great."

Had Speed Left. At dinner Willis was disposing of his suit with speed and noise.

"Willie!" said his mother in a reprimanding tone.

Willie knew immediately what his mother meant and, assuming an injured air he said:

"Aw, I wasn't goin' half as fast as I could."

She Knew. The teacher had written 92.7 on the blackboard, and to show the effect of multiplying by ten rubbed out the decimal point. She then turned to the class and said:

"Now Mary, where is the decimal point?"

"On the duster, miss," replied Mary, without hesitation.—London Tit-Bits.

"They'd look funny now."

THE WISE AGENT.

The agent for the Useless Dingus he was selling was a smart man. He rang the doorbell and a maid opened the door.

"Good morning," smiled the agent. "I'm trying to find a married lady whose name I can't remember just now. I think this is her home. She is a woman easily described. Perhaps you know her. She is a handsome woman, with a perfect complexion, beautiful hair and teeth, lovely eyes and an ideal figure. I thought—"

BELIEF IN "LUCKY PIECES"

Superstition That Seems More General Now Than in the Days Before the Great War.

"That is my luck piece," a veteran said, as he pulled a shapeless little bit of metal out of his pocket with his regular small change. "That's a bullet that just grazed my ear and burrowed into a wall right behind me."

"What sort of luck has it brought you?" he laughed. "Six months in hospital from another bullet the very next day. . . . But I married the nurse, and she's a bit of good luck, you bet! I got into the habit of carrying this about; most all the boys carry a pocket piece of some kind for luck whether they believe in luck or not. One man always carries a half-dollar in an inside pocket by itself, so that if his spending pocket happens to get empty he would not be altogether destitute. There is another who sews a $10 bill in the bob pocket of every pair of trousers he buys. In that way he can never have the bad luck of forgetting to change his money when he changes his clothes. True, he might have the bad luck to forget to remove it when he sent the trousers to be pressed, but—as he philosophically expresses it—that would be good luck for the tailor."

Naturally Made Him Peeved.

In a certain Los Angeles county court recently a case for divorce came up, only to be dismissed by agreement of the opposing counsels. It seems that the man instituted the suit, had a row with his first lawyer, and then went to Lou Guernsey. "What are your grounds for bringing this action against your wife?" asked Lou. "Well," said the man, "I came home early the other afternoon and as I stepped into the door I heard my wife talking to an insurance man. I was just in time to hear her say: 'I won't pay another cent. I've been paying this policy on my husband for eight years and I've had no luck yet.'"

"Movies" in Education.
Prof. Giacomo Boni, noted Italian archeologist, has suggested to the government the use of moving pictures to promote the study of history in the schools and among all classes of the people.

He declared that moving pictures were better than books or lectures, and recalled that after the Roman people the Emperor Augustus, wishing to induce the people to return to the land, called upon the poets to sing of agriculture, and Virgil wrote the "Georgics."

Moving pictures, according to Professor Boni, must be employed in a similar manner to educate the people to a knowledge and appreciation of Italian history.

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR

By EDGAR R. BURROUGHS
 Author of
 "Tarzan of the Apes"
 "Son of Tarzan"
 Copyright, 1928, by A. C. McClure & Co.

"He is worse than a crook," said a quiet voice behind them.

Tarzan turned in astonishment to see a tall man in uniform standing in the trail a few paces from him. Back of the man were a number of black soldiers in the uniform of the Congo Free State.

"He is a murderer, monsieur," continued the officer. "I have followed him for a long time to take him back to stand trial for the killing of his superior officer."

Werper was upon his feet now, gasping, white and trembling, at the fate which had overtaken him even in the fastness of the labyrinthine jungle. Instinctively he turned to flee; but Tarzan of the Apes reached out a strong hand and grasped him by the shoulder.

"Wait!" said the ape-man to his captive. "This gentleman wishes you to do so. When I am through with you he may have you. Tell me what has become of my wife."

The Belgian officer eyed the almost naked white giant with curiosity. He could not quite determine the social status of this strange creature; but he knew that he did not relish the easy assurance with which the fellow presumed to dictate when he might take possession of the prisoner.

"Pardon me," he said, stepping forward and placing his hand on Werper's other shoulder; "but this gentleman is my prisoner. He must come with me."

"When I am through with him," replied Tarzan, quietly.

"Both the law and the power to enforce it are upon my side," announced the officer. "Let us have no trouble."

"Your legal rights are not above suspicion, my friend," replied Tarzan, "and your power to enforce your commands are only apparent—not real. You have presumed to enter British territory with an armed force. Where is your authority for this invasion? Where are the extradition papers which warrant the arrest of this man? And what assurance have you that I cannot bring an armed force about you that will prevent your return to the Congo Free State?"

The Belgian lost his temper. "I have no disposition to argue with a naked savage," he cried. "Take you wish to be hurt you will not interfere with me. Take the prisoner, sergeant."

Werper raised his lips close to Tarzan's ear. "Keep me from them, and I can show you the very spot where I saw your wife last night," he whispered. "She cannot be far from here at this very minute."

The soldiers, following the signal from their sergeant, closed in to seize Werper. Tarzan grabbed the Belgian about the waist, and bearing him beneath his arm as he might have borne a sack of flour, leaped forward in an attempt to break through the cordon.

His right hand caught the nearest soldier upon the jaw and sent him hurtling backward upon his fellows. Clipped rifles were torn from the hands of those who barred his way, and right and left the black soldiers stumbled aside in the face of the ape-man's savage break for liberty.

So completely did the blacks surround the two that they dared not fire for fear of hitting one of their own number, and Tarzan was already through them and upon the point of dodging into the concealing mazes of the jungle when one who had sneaked upon him from behind struck him a heavy blow upon the head with a rifle.

In an instant the ape-man was down and a dozen black soldiers were upon his back. When he regained consciousness he found himself securely bound, as was Werper also. Werper was voluble in his protests. He explained that Tarzan was an English lord; but the officer only laughed at the assertion, and advised his prisoner to save his breath for his defense in court.

Toward evening the column halted beside a stream, made camp and prepared the evening meal. From the thick foliage of the near-by jungle a pair of fierce eyes watched the activities of the uniformed blacks with silent intensity and curiosity.

Tarzan and Werper had been lying bound behind a small pile of knapsacks from the time that the company had halted; but with the preparation of the meal completed, their guard ordered them to rise and come forward to one of the fires where their hands would be unfettered that they might eat.

As the giant ape-man rose, a startled expression of recognition entered the eyes of the watcher in the jungle, and a low guttural broke from the savage lips. Instantly Tarzan was alert, but the answering growl died upon his lips, suppressed by the fear that it might arouse the suspicions of the soldiers.

Suddenly an inspiration came to him. He turned toward Werper.

"I am going to speak to you in a loud voice and in a tongue which you do not understand. Appear to listen intently to what I say, and occasionally mumble something as though replying in the same language—our escape may hinge upon the success of your efforts."

Werper nodded in assent and understanding, and immediately there broke from the lips of his companion a strange jargon which might have been compared with equal propriety to the barking and growling of a dog and the chattering of monkeys.

The nearer soldiers looked in surprise at the ape-man. The officer approached the prisoners while Tarzan was still jabbering, and halted behind them, listening in perplexed interest.

And deep in the gloomy jungle amidst the darkening shadows of the falling night a hairy, manlike creature swung swiftly southward upon some secret mission of his own.

To Jane Clayton, waiting in the tree where Werper had placed her, it seemed that the long night would never end, yet end it did at last, and within an hour of the coming of dawn her spirit leaped with renewed hope at sight of a solitary horseman approaching along the trail.

The flowing burrows, with its loose hair, hid both the face and the figure of the man who was M. Frecould the girl well knew, since he had been garbed as an Arab, and he alone might be expected to seek her hiding place.

She did not see the black face beneath the white hood, nor the file of ebon horsemen beyond the trail's bend riding slowly in the wake of their leader. These things she did not see at first, so she leaned downward toward the approaching rider, a cry of welcome in her throat.

At the first word the man looked up, reining in at surprise, and as she saw the black face of Abdul Mourak, the Abyssinian, she shrank back in terror among the branches; but it was too late. The man had seen her, and now he called to her to descend. She realized that resistance was futile, and came slowly down to stand upon the ground before this new captor and plead her cause in the name of justice and humanity.

Angered by recent defeat, and by the loss of the gold, the jewels, and his prisoners, Abdul Mourak was in no mood to be influenced by any appeal to those softer sentiments to which, as a matter of fact, he was almost a stranger even under the most favorable conditions.

He looked for degradation and possible death in punishment for his failures and his misfortunes when he should have returned to his native land and made his report to Menelek; but an acceptable gift might temper the wrath of the emperor, and surely this fair flower of another race should be gratefully received by the black ruler!

Many hours later, and as yet Jane Clayton, notwithstanding that she had passed a sleepless night the night before, had scarcely more than dozed. A sense of impending danger seemed to hang like a black pall over the camp. The veteran troopers of the black emperor were nervous and ill at ease. Abdul Mourak left his blankets a dozen times to pace restlessly back and forth between the tethered horses and the crackling fire.

The roaring of lions rose in sudden fury until the earth trembled to the hideous chorus. The horses shrank to their heels in terror as they lay back upon their halter ropes in their mad endeavors to break loose. A lion, large and fierce, and courageous, leaped almost to the boma, full in the bright light from the fire. A sentry raised his piece and fired, and the little leaden pellet unstopped the vials of hell upon the terror-stricken camp.

The shot plowed a deep and painful furrow in the lion's side, arousing all the bestial fury of the little brain; but abating not a whit the power and vigor of the great body.

Unwounded, the boma and the flames might have turned him back; but now the pain and the rage wiped caution from his mind, and with a loud and angry roar he topped the barrier with an easy leap and was among the horses.

What had been pandemonium before became now an indescribable tumult of hideous sounds. The stricken horse upon which the lion leaped shrieked at its terror and its agony. Several about it broke their tethers and plunged madly about the camp. Men leaped from their blankets and with guns ready ran toward the picket line, and then from the jungle beyond the boma a dozen lions, emboldened by the example of their fellow, charged fearlessly upon the camp.

Amidst the cracking of the rifles and the growls of the carnivora rose the death screams of stricken men and horses as they were dragged down by the blood-mad cats. The leaping carnivora and the plunging horses prevented any concerted action by the Abyssinians—it was every man for himself—and in the melee the defenseless woman was either forgotten or ignored by her black captors.

A horse, struck by a stray bullet, fell beside Jane Clayton, a lion leaped across the expiring beast full upon the breast of a black trooper just beyond. Gaping fangs closed with a single sickening crunch upon the fear-distorted face, and the lion strode back across the body of the dead horse, dragging his limp and bloody burden with him.

Wide-eyed the girl stood watching. She saw the carnivore step upon the corpse, stumblingly, as the grisly thing swung between its forepaws, and her eyes remained fixed in fascination while the beast passed within a few paces of her.

The interference of the body seemed to enrage the lion. He shook the inanimate clay venomously. He growled and roared hideously at the dead, insensate thing, and then he dropped it and raised his head to look about in search of some living victim upon which to wreak his ill temper. His yellow eyes fastened themselves balefully upon the figure of the girl, the bristling lips raised, disclosing the grinning fangs. A terrific roar broke from the savage throat, and the great beast crouched to spring upon this new and helpless victim.

Quiet had fallen upon the camp where Tarzan and Werper lay securely bound. Silently and powerfully the ape-man strained at the bonds which fettered his wrists.

The muscles knotted beneath the smooth brown skin of his arms and shoulders, the veins stood out upon his temples from the force of his exertions—a strand parted, another and another, and one hand was free. Then from the jungle came a low guttural, and the ape-man became suddenly a silent, rigid statue, with ears and nostrils straining to span the black void where his eyesight could not reach.

Again came the uncanny sound from the thick verdure beyond the camp. The sentries drew close together, watching the black spot from which the voice seemed to come.

They dared not approach. Their terror even prevented them from arousing their fellows—they could only stand in frozen fear and watch for the fearsome apparition they momentarily expected to see leap from the jungle.

Nor had they long to wait. A dim, bulky form dropped lightly from the branches of a tree into the camp. At sight of it one of the sentries recovered command of his muscles and his voice. Screaming loudly, to awaken the sleeping camp, he leaped toward the flickering watch fire and threw a spear upon it.

The flames leaped high upon the rejuvenated fire, lighting the entire camp, and the awakened men shrank back in superstitious terror from the sight that met their frightened and astonished vision.

A dozen huge and hairy forms loomed large beneath the trees at the far side of the enclosure. The white giant, one hand free, had struggled to his knees and was calling to the frightful nocturnal visitors in a hideous medley of bestial gutturals, barkings and growlings.

Growing, the great apes leaped forward toward Tarzan and Werper. Chuk led them. The Belgian officer called to his men to fire upon the intruders; but the negroes held back, filled as they were with superstitious terror of the hairy tree-men, and with the conviction that the white giant who could thus summon the beasts of the jungle to his aid was more than human.

Drawing his own weapon the officer fired, and Tarzan, fearing the effect of the noise upon his really timid friends, called to them to hasten and fulfill his commands. Chuk and a half dozen others waddled rapidly forward, and, following the ape-man's directions, seized both him and Werper and bore them off toward the jungle.

By dint of threats, reproaches and profanity the Belgian officer succeeded in persuading his trembling command to fire a volley after the retreating apes. A ragged, straggling volley it was, but at least one of its bullets found a mark, for as the jungle closed about the hairy rescuers Chuk, who bore Werper across one broad shoulder, staggered and fell.

As Chuk went down he dropped Werper, so that the latter fell face downward with the body of the ape lying half across him. In this position the Belgian felt something resting against his hands, which were still bound at his back—something that was not a part of the hairy body of the ape.

Mechanically the man's fingers felt of the object resting almost in their grasp—it was a soft pouch, filled with small, hard particles. Werper gasped in wonderment as recognition filtered through the incredulity of his mind. It was impossible, and yet—it was true!

Feverishly he strove to remove the pouch from the ape and transfer it to his own possession; but the restricted radius to which his bonds held his hands prevented this, though he did succeed in tucking the pouch with its precious contents inside the waistband of his trousers.

Tarzan, sitting at a short distance, was busy with the remaining knots of the cords which bound him. Presently he flung aside the last of them and rose to his feet. Approaching Werper he knelt beside him. For a moment he examined the ape.

"Quite dead," he announced. "It is too badly hurt to be a splendid creature," and then he turned to the work of liberating the Belgian.

He freed his hands first and then commenced upon the knots at his ankles.

"I can do the rest," said the Belgian. "I have a small pocket knife which they overlooked when they searched me," and in this way he succeeded in ridding himself of the ape-man's attentions that he might find and open his little knife and cut the thong which fastened the pouch about Chuk's shoulder and transfer it from his waistband to the breast of his shirt. Then he rose and approached Tarzan.

"Now," said the ape-man, "keep your promise to me. Lead me to the spot where you last saw my wife."

It was slow work pushing through the jungle in the dead of night behind the slow-moving Belgian. The ape-man chafed at the delay, but the European could not swing through the trees as could his more agile and muscular companions, and so the speed of all was limited to that of the slowest.

The two had gone but a short distance when the roaring of distant lions fell upon their ears. The ape-man paid no attention to the familiar sounds until the crack of a rifle came faintly from the same direction, and when this was followed by the shrill neighing of horses and an almost continuous fusillade of shots intermingled with increased and savage roaring of a large troop of lions, he became immediately concerned.

"Someone is having trouble over there," he said, turning toward Werper. "I'll have to go to them—they may be friends."

"Your wife might be among them," suggested the Belgian, for since he had again come into possession of the pouch he had become fearful and suspicious of the ape-man, and in his mind had constantly revolved many plans for eluding this giant Englishman, who was at once his savior and his captor.

At the suggestion Tarzan started as though struck with a whip.

"God!" he cried, "she might be, and the lions are attacking them—they are in the camp. I can tell from the screams of the horses—and there! that was the cry of a man in his death agonies. Stay here, man—I will come back for you. I must go first to them," and swinging into a tree the little figure swung rapidly off into the night with the speed and silence of a disembodied spirit.

For a moment Werper stood where the ape-man had left him. Then a cunning smile crossed his lips. "Stay here!" he asked himself. "Stay here and wait until you return to find and take these jewels from me? Not I, my friend, not I!" and turning abruptly eastward Albert Werper passed through the foliage of a hanging vine and out of the sight of his fellow-man—forever.

Growth of Cremation Idea.

Available statistics compiled less than a decade ago show that in the United States the total number of cremations had risen to over 60,000 distributed among 38 crematories. The growth of cremation has been very rapid on the Pacific coast. In 1913 a contract was let by the government for the erection of a crematory in the Canal zone.

The X-ray has a new use. The superintendent of a diamond mine in South Africa finds it expert in locating any stones which may be secreted about the persons of his native workmen.

RACING YACHTS SAVED FROM THE FLAMES

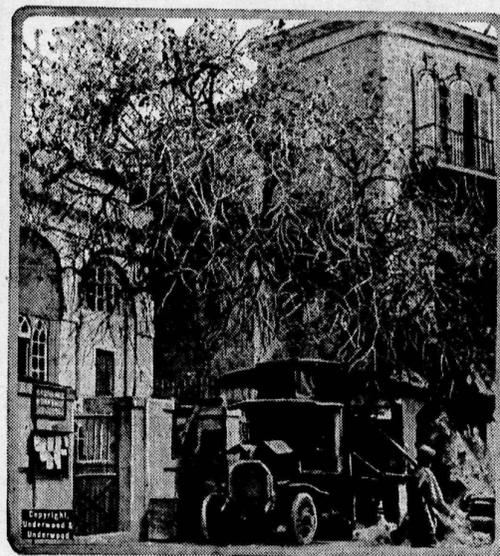

The photograph shows the scene at the million-dollar fire which swept the Jacobs' brothers shipyards at City Island, N. Y. The Shamrock IV and the Vantile, America's cup challenger and defender, were saved after a hard fight. Many other high-priced pleasure yachts, power boats, and launches were ruined by the flames.

ANCIENT TREE ENTERED IN HALL OF FAME

The tree shown above is so old that no living inhabitant of Jerusalem can even recall having heard of its youth. For many generations there has been a tradition about Jerusalem that the Turkish empire would last as long as this tree stood. When the trunk began to crack an iron band was put around it which the people at once said was "Germany sustaining the sick tree." The tree has been entered in the Hall of Fame of the American Forestry association of Washington.

WORTH KNOWING

An electric hair dryer and vacuum comb for cleaning the hair has been combined by a Pennsylvania inventor. It is the belief of some of the Chinese, that the women who wear short hair will be transformed into men in the future world.

The bureau of lands of the Philippines has approved two applications for leases of coal lands covering an area of about 3,800 acres. Shark skin is so hard that after exposure to the air it can be ground to powder and used in place of diamond dust for polishing diamonds.

Rev. George W. Lutz of Pennsburg, Pa., preacher, editor and orator, learned so far over a pigpen on a farm that he dropped his watch. Before he could recover it a pig had swallowed it.

A woman in Lowell, Mass., replied to the census taker's question, "To what race do you belong?" by writing down "Brunette."

Very little wind prevails in the arctic regions, and this fact facilitates the transmission of sound. Persons there can converse when a mile apart.

After careful study of aerial transportation a delegation of mine owners decided to buy six airplanes for transporting ore. Airplane manufacturers are watching for such signs of the commercial practicability of the airplane.

MUCH DISCUSSED STATUE

Jacob Epstein's much discussed sculpture, "The Risen Christ," which is now on exhibition in London. The figure represents a more-than-life-size Christ bearing the wrappings of the tomb and with the left hand pointing to the open wound in the palm of the right hand. Mr. Epstein says, "The head is not a racial head, neither Jewish nor European, but something of a universal type. What I aimed at is to picture Christ first of all a man. Every man has his own Christ. No one sat as model. The statue must be accepted or refused on its merits."

Drum Wears Wound Stripes.
 They were gathered in the wounded after one of the battles at Verdun, when they came across a drum that had been shot through the head. It was taken to the hospital and given a new one. In a short time it was back at the front, in active service again.

Now that the war is over the drum has been ordered back to the marine corps camp at Quantico, Va. The regiment decided to present it with wound and service stripes—but a drum has no sleeves to wear them on. So the four service stripes were attached to one side of its head, and one wound stripe was placed on the other side.—Popular Science Monthly.

Caught in His Own Trap.
 The magazine writer who propounded a series of questions headed "What do you know?" answered one of them by saying that "She Stoops to Conquer" was written by Sheridan. What do you know—about that?—Boston Transcript.

Too Much Court.
 "What I would like in the way of a wife would be an old maid with a big fortune." "You couldn't get such a wife. No woman with a big fortune has half a chance to be an old maid."

First Motion Picture.
 "Miss Jerry," the first motion picture, was produced in October, 1894. Alexander Black was the author, scenario writer, director, camera man and title writer of the picture. At that time only five stereoscopic slides a second could be shown, but 16 pictures are now flashed on the screen per second.

An Imitation Takes For Its Pattern the Real Article

There was never an imitation made of an imitation. Imitators always counterfeit the genuine article. The genuine is what you ask for, because genuine articles are the advertised ones. Imitations are not advertised, but depend for their business on the ability of the dealer to sell you something claimed to be "just as good" when you ask for the genuine, because he makes more profit on the imitation. Why accept imitations when you can get the genuine by insisting?

Refuse Imitations. Get What You Ask For!

If Your Business Isn't Worth Advertising

One of the strongest things in advertising or in printing is that a man will start out with the intention of having the best that he can get. He will find, let us say, that it is going to cost $100, but that by skimming it a little bit he can get it for $100. Taking that 95% of the price and out of the quality is just like taking the edge off a knife. You can cut some things with a dull knife, but there are some things you can't cut with it, and you can't cut anything as quickly, smoothly, cleanly and thoroughly as you can with a sharp knife. Advertising ought to have a razor edge, even if it does cost a little bit for grinding. It ought to be keen enough to enter the brain of greatest resistance.

It is the last few dollars that are spent on advertising that give it value. It is the last pound of power that lifts a weight. If it takes a strain of 1300 pounds to break a weight, 999 pounds wouldn't do it good. You can spend 999 pounds on it, and leave off just where you started. If you want to break that chain you will have to spend those 1000 pounds over again and add the other pound to it after all.

It would have been better to have used 1000 pounds at the start, in better to spend $100 for a thoroughly effective booklet than to spend $100 for one that is inefficient.—Shoe and Leather Trade.

Other Legislative Notes of the Week

The House also passed Senator MacKay's bill increasing the salaries of members of small boards of county freeholders.

After animated discussion, the House bumped Assemblyman Devoe's bill requiring two more years of school for children to obtain work certificates. The law now provides for the fifth grade in such cases, but the bill would make it the seventh grade and Mr. Devoe claimed that it was intended to prevent the removal of children of tender years from educational advantages. Leader Barrett and Mr. Rowland vigorously attacked the bill upon the general ground that it would not accomplish the purpose.

Senator Barber's bill providing for a pay bonus to State employees in lieu of salary increases for the last two years was passed by the House without a dissenting vote and now goes to the Governor. The bill will carry an appropriation of $400,000 to be distributed under the direction of the Civil Service Commission.

Proposed modification of the Compulsory Vaccination law is carried in a bill by Assemblyman Devoe, of Middlesex, passed by the House. It provides that such vaccination shall be enforced by boards of education only in cases of epidemic in the community. Several of those who favored the bill contended that the present law is too drastic and violently opposed by general public sentiment. The bill passed with two votes to spare.

Assemblyman Cranmer has introduced a bill for dredging the channel from Ship Bottom to Beach Haven and it seems in a fair way to be passed.

BATTERY BILL STILL IN COMMITTEE

Representatives of Ocean Co. Stand Ready to Oppose the Bowen Measure

The Bowen Battery Bill, which has raised such a commotion among the sportsmen of New Jersey, and particularly the resident gunners from Ocean county, is still in the committee, and according to Senator Hagaman in a statement to an Ocean Co.

Leader representative a few days ago, it is not likely that Mr. Bowen will insist on having it brought out. Both Senator Hagaman and Assemblyman Cranmer have been flooded with communications protesting against the passage of such legislation, which would in a very short time put an end to wildfowl gunning on Barnegat bay.

Owners of gunning points from Bayhead to Beach Haven declare that should this bill become a law, their gunning points would be abandoned and sportsmen would be forced to go outside of the State for gunning.

They say in reply to the argument that batteries are allowed in New York and southern waters, that because of the narrowness of Barnegat bay, which at its widest point does not exceed four miles, the use of batteries one season, would drive all of the wildfowl out of the bay. Batteries are not nearly so harmful on the above mentioned waters, because the bays and sounds are miles across, and the birds have more freedom and can more easily avoid the batteries.

The opposition of a great majority of the representatives from South Jersey and hundreds of sportsmen from all sections of the State will unquestionably defeat the battery bill should it appear on the floor of the Assembly. Both of the Ocean representatives will positively oppose the measure.

Find Measurement for Sound.
Sound, though seemingly a very definite manifestation of activity, is peculiar among physical phenomena for its lack of units or means of measurement. An American physicist has finally arrived at a method of expressing sound values in watts, making absolute measurements with new and rather complex apparatus. A standard source of sound, called a "phone," is made adjustable in tone by changing the volume of the resonator and the tension of wires supporting a mica diaphragm.—From the December Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Paris Turns to Old-Time Ideas

French dressmakers are turning their attention to old-fashioned materials as well as to old-time designs. This is evinced, notes a Paris fashion writer, in the showing of spring and summer models in Paris. Never before has taffeta, a very old-fashioned material, enjoyed such a long and pronounced vogue.

Fabric makers are improving it. The only real objection to it in times gone by was that its stiffness made difficult the task of evolving graceful models. Now taffeta is being made thin and soft like satin, some of it having a highly glazed surface. Then it is being employed in various ways. Especially interesting among the new taffetas is one that has a coin dot embossed in light colors.

SUITS and FROCKS

New Silhouette for Spring Interesting and Pretty.

Waist Lines Dropped to Hips, Shoulders Narrowed, Skirts Puffed or Slenderly Straight.

Paris has gone adventuring in the matter of new tailored silhouettes for serge suits and frocks and has introduced waist lines dropped to the hip, shoulders narrowed to Victorian contraction, and skirts puffed or slenderly straight, but always slit up at some point.

In fact, the directrice has returned in the vigorous slashing of side or back and also in the long-fronted coats and bodice to be seen on recent models. A chic little trotteur of navy tricotina has a short, tight jacket with the front and back elongated in flat panels, and frilled on the hips by three narrow ruffles. The skirt is plain and nearly to the knee, and underlaid with a thick fringe of ribbon streamers.

Another smart little walking suit has a box coat of Eton persuasion, slit under each arm and finished with outstanding inch-wide loops. The top of the skirt from waist to the hip line is stitched with inch bands which form loops on each hip to match the coat, giving at the same time a moderated buoyancy, which is altogether charming.

Much serge is being used in tailored suits and frocks, but this veteran material has acquired such alluring quality in its cunning manipulation, that for any woman to see these new creations is to desire them.

a six-inch outstanding ruffle of finely plaited serge. The sleeves are three-quarter length with plaiting forming a narrow puff at the wrist. The skirt, also tightly plaited, hugs the knees and ankles, but has several rows of stitching in coarse silk to hold it out around the hips.

A serge street dress has also a novel arrangement of plaiting. The bodice and skirt are closely fitted and severely plain, fastening up the back from hem to collar with tiny, flat bone buttons. A narrow band of vertical plaiting is gathered in on each side and brought together, allowing it to puff out like a boa, and this tubular trimming is applied to collar, cuffs and waist line, giving an unusual and intriguing ruff effect.

SALAD GREENS AND SALADS.

Salads will always be in style, for they are generally popular, refreshing, and with a good dressing also nourishing. The very early salads may include the vegetables which we have always considered as greens.

Your gardenions which have grown under boards of the wood pile make the most dainty and succulent of salad plants. Serve with a good French dressing, with or without a sprinkling of minced onion.

One may use any desired salad dressing, but oil is so appetizing, meaty and full of nourishment that everybody should learn to like good olive oil. The corn oils are much less expensive than a good grade of olive oil just now, and they are good and can be used in the same manner in making a mayonnaise dressing.

If one is fortunate enough to live near a small brook or creek where the watercourse grows, there is always a most wholesome green. Serve with lamb chops just as a garnish. When eaten without any dressing it is a most palatable and tasty salad. Mixed with lettuce or peppercorn or served alone with French dressing, three or four parts oil and one part vinegar with salt and pepper to taste, it is a salad par excellence.

Outside leaves of lettuce rolled and cut with a sharp knife, left unrolled, make very attractive salads and a pretty garnish for many different combinations. The leaves should be fresh and crisp; let the lettuce stand in cold water to freshen.

Radishes cut to simulate tulips make very pretty garnishment. Radishes cut in thin slices and arranged in overlapping rows are another pretty garnish. The red of the radish should not be used with the red of beets or the orange of carrots, as too many of such colors classed. One may use the artists' taste in the arrangement of food as effectively as with paints.

Beet Salad.—Boil eight small beets in boiling salted water; salt them. There's cooked. Remove the skins and Middlesex—fourth-inch cubes; mix with son of Ocean and serve with mayonnaise and more artificial red. Serve in nests of in Middlesex, sea.

Haight, are out for a head led insist that he can be elected a rider or fact can win in a primary. "I had anyone so far named.

Monmouth county is also divided in its support of Appleby. He was a candidate for Senator against Senator Ackerson a short time ago and lost. He is known as a rather independent Republican, a first class business man, a good citizen, but has not been a man whose course in life and politics has gained for him great popularity either with political leaders or with the masses. His independence may be in his favor, and with most of us it is; but on the other hand it might be against his obtaining the nomination. It is possible however, that the organization may get behind him in the primaries, and of late there have been indications to that effect, though some of the strong men in the county are talking against him, and threatening to fight.

These conditions would seem to point to the possibility of the nomination coming to Ocean county. To get the nomination, for a small county like Ocean, it will be necessary, to have a candidate who suits the other counties, and is well known in them. It will also be necessary for Ocean to agree on some one man and back him to the limit. Then if he had friends enough in the other two counties, he might win. The general opinion however is that no Republican wants to make a bitter fight for the nomination and then expect to be elected. A united party will be needed to elect a Republican from the Third district which has been represented by a Democrat for many years.

The Democrats also are said to have a lively scrap on for the nomination. Assuming that Congressman Scully would not run again, Sheriff, Elmer Geran, of Monmouth county, has been for some months laying his plans to win the nomination. In the past week it is rumored that Scully will run again and that if Geran wants the nomination, he must first beat Scully.

One of the questions that will bother candidates on both tickets this fall is the wet or dry issue. The drys will want to know if the candidate will stand by the Volstead act, and the wets will want to know if he will be for its repeal. The wets will give party lines the go by, and vote for wet candidates; it is possible the drys may do the same.—N. J. Courier.

FIRE ALARM MONDAY

There was quite a little excitement on Monday at the noon hour, when a fire was discovered in the yard and vicinity of Mrs. Etta V. Hayes. The dry grass made good feeding and the old fence of the Friends' burying ground with some stacked up fire cans were partly burned. The fire came from a bonfire started by Mrs. Edna Fox, in cleaning up the yard. There was a brisk breeze, which promptly swept the small bonfire though the grass and resulted in the fire department being called out to assist, although the shovel brigade had it under control in a few minutes.

Facts for Sick Women

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills relieved that."—Mrs. A. Rogers, 655 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to get back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pain. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Bertha J. Paxson, 5330 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

Allowing an increase in the salary of tax commissioners by removing the maximum of $1800. Applies to Camden county.

Increasing salary of district court clerks about 50 per cent. Permitting a course in aeronautics at the State University in New Brunswick.

A CHANGE IN THE BEACON

The "Beacon" will appear in dress next week.

Most of our readers are aware of the ever increasing cost of paper production. The majority of publishers have been compelled to raise their rates. We want to avoid this possible and have made arrangements to give you the best possible value for your money.

There will be seven columns instead of eight. In place of the Serial story, which we have run for years, there will be a complete, one page story in each issue.

We also call attention to the advertising, which will be of interest to our many readers. This will include advertising in Philadelphia and vicinity and will grow steadily as the weeks pass.

You will see the same amount of local, nearby town and county news and probably the type will be a little more condensed at times, but that will not be objectionable.

Other features of interest will also be noted. Watch for your copy of "The Beacon."

It is not generally understood that there is a charge for personal reading notices. Space is what we have for sale and, beginning with the April 1st issue, all notices, obituaries, cards of thanks, etc., will be charged for at the rate of 5 cents per line.

WILLIAM McDANIELS SERIOUSLY BURNED AT MILLVILLE, N. J.

Here Who Saved Fellow Workman From Death Has Slim Chances For Recovery

The condition of William McDaniels, of 314 Main street Millville, who is in the hospital there suffering from burns, is not encouraging.

George Cossoboom, of Main street, who was also burned and who is at Millville Hospital, is getting along as well as can be expected. His recovery is assured.

McDaniels is terribly burned and his chances of recovery are slim. A great patch of flesh is burned from his back, his legs are raw, the skin having burned off them both from his feet to his waist. The flesh is also burned off his abdomen.

Dr. Frank Sheppard is doing everything possible to save the man's life. He is using the treatment resorted to by the surgeons in Europe during the war. In spite of the man's horrible burns, he displays a remarkable amount of nerve and utters no complaint since his sufferings.

Both men were at work removing the ashes from under the producer when the bottom collapsed allowing the red hot coals to drop into the water used to cool the ashes, creating a great cloud of steam. McDaniels could have easily escaped, as the opening of the pit was near him but instead he ran across to Cossoboom and aided him. In this heroic effort he was frightfully burned. His clothes were burned from his body but he stood upon his feet while his wounds were treated.

A farmer's apprentice who had "served his time"—having attained his majority—and who was leaving the farm with the stipulated "new suit of clothes and $100.00 in cash," was given the following gratuitous advice by the old Quaker whom he had been serving:

"Samuel thee must bear three things in mind if thee expects to succeed: It is not what thee reads but what thee remembers that will do thy mind good. It is not what thee eats but what thy stomach digests which will make thy body strong. It is not what thee makes but what thee SAVES that will ever make thee rich."

Whether the young man profited by the advice or not is not recorded, but we will all agree that it was worth listening to. Would we not all heed these words of wisdom and apply them ourselves?

The habit of saving, once fixed—becomes a pleasure, and the sacrifices made for its sake are cheerfully borne and richly repaid.

HAGAMAN BEAT HUNTING LICENSE INCREASE

Leader representative a few ago, it is not likely that Mr. Brown will insist on having it brought out. Both Senator Hagaman and Assemblyman Cramer have been flooded with communications protesting against the passage of such legislation, which would in a very short time put an end to wildfowl gunning on Barnegat bay.

Owners of gunning points from Bayhead to Beach Haven declare that should this bill become a law, their gunning points would be abandoned and sportsmen would be forced to go outside of the State for gunning.

They say in reply to the argument that batteries are allowed in New York and southern waters, that because of the narrowness of Barnegat bay, which at its widest point does not exceed four miles, the use of batteries one season, would drive all of the wildfowl out of the bay. Batteries are not nearly so harmful on the above mentioned waters, because the bays and sounds are miles across, and the birds have more freedom and can more easily avoid the batteries.

The opposition of a great majority of the representatives from South Jersey and hundreds of sportsmen from all sections of the State will unquestionably defeat the battery bill should it appear on the floor of the Assembly. Both of the Ocean representatives will positively oppose the measure.

BEESKEEPING PROFITABLE

IN-OCEAN COUNTY

There are a few beekeepers and a few bees in Ocean County when compared with the possibilities of profitable honey production as presented by the conditions in the county. The lack of profitable beekeeping is due to the lack of knowledge of the modern methods which make beekeeping worth while.

There are an abundance of nectar secreting plants growing in the county and with proper care bees will prove profitable. They do not need a great amount of care, but a little at the proper time is necessary for good results in honey production.

In co-operation with the Office of Farm Demonstration, E. G. Carr, Deputy Bee Inspector, on March 16th and 17th, 1920 will give a series of lectures in the Old Opera House in Toms River, on the fundamental principles of profitable beekeeping. There is no charge and everyone is welcome.

Marmot Skins in Demand.

A large business is done in Manchurian marmot skins. The marmot is very much like a woodchuck, but it possesses a finer coat than does our woodchuck. Thousands of these skins are shipped from ports in northern Manchuria by parcel post through the Japanese post office, but skins of the cheaper grade are forwarded by freight in the usual way.

NOTICE!

Dr. Howard Conover, of Barnegat, will open an office at the Tuckerton House on Main Street, Tuckerton on Tuesdays and Fridays between the hours of 2.00 and 4.00 o'clock.

Other Legislative Notes of the Week

The House also passed Senator MacKay's bill increasing the salaries of members of small boards of county freeholders.

After animated discussion, the House bumped Assemblyman Devoe's bill requiring two more years of school for children to obtain work certificates. The law now provides finish of the fifth grade in such cases, but the bill would make it the seventh grade and Mr. Devoe claimed that it was intended to prevent the removal of children of tender years from educational advantages. Leader Barrett and Mr. Rowland vigorously attacked the bill upon the general ground that it would not accomplish the purpose.

Senator Barber's bill providing for a pay bonus to State employees in lieu of salary increases for the last two years was passed by the House without a dissenting vote and now goes to the Governor. The bill will carry an appropriation of $400,000 to be distributed under the direction of the Civil Service Commission.

Proposed modification of the Compulsory Vaccination law is carried in a bill by Assemblyman Devoe, of Middlesex, passed by the House. It provides that such vaccination shall be enforced by boards of education only in cases of epidemic in the community. Several of those who favored the bill contended that the present law is too drastic and violently opposed by general public sentiment. The bill passed with two votes to spare.

Assemblyman Cranmer has introduced a bill to amend the law relating to the removal of children from school for truancy.

The Modern Funerary

THE methods and systems in vogue a few years ago, and still adhered to no longer applicable in this age and generation. A better way of duties of the funeral director has changed the old order.

When anesthetics were first discovered many good people in horror, declaring that those who used them were defying God. The use of a school house was denied, in 1823, for the dissection of a proposed railroad on the ground that a railroad was a "device of God" never intended that his intelligent creatures should travel fifteen miles an hour.

One of the most difficult problems confronting the modern funeral director is the public realization that service is the principle, and which he has to offer.

The caquet and funeral opportunities are negligible, little or no experience and, in the matter of expense, consideration.

Service is the main consideration—the care and sympathy has passed on, knowledge and ability, and a readiness are left to mourn.

Why Interest in Everything Had Been Lost.

voice dragged through the sentences as she dragged through each day, indifferently, without any particular feeling.

"But it's our own shack—at least we aren't living in a regular refugee's home. And as soon as the town builds up, it will need a school, and maybe I can get the work I know how to do. Of course, there's Verbeek next door. He used to teach, too, but the people here know me better than they do him." He paused.

"Uh-huh." His wife shook out the bedclothes and crawled under them.

Andre turned back to his writing but the clear thoughts would not come. They were staled by the touch established here. Some one must take charge of it. We thought you might. We're going to get several candidates and one will be selected.

"Yes, yes, that is it." Monsieur Rameau took up the speech. "We thought you might like to be a candidate."

Andre van Straelen, thanking them, had assured them that he was anxious to be considered, and they had carefully made their way to the door. Out in the road they stopped to talk. One of them indicated the Verbeek house. The others nodded slowly and they went to call on Karel Verbeek.

It was then that Andre realized. Their hesitation after they had entered his house, their stammering embarrassment and exchange of glances, their indecision and their consultation in the road after they had left—all meant one thing. There had been no idea of candidates; they had intended to give him the position till they saw how he lived, how his house was kept. Then they had taken the kindest way out of the situation.

He was not surprised to hear the next day that Verbeek was appointed, but for a long time, he could not make himself go home. When he finally did open his door it was very late. Mathilda was asleep. He awakened her.

"Huh." She closed her eyes again, apparently uninterested.

"Do you know why?" demanded Andre almost fiercely. "It was because—" But she had gone back to sleep—she had not cared.

He stood stiffly, staring down at her, his fists clenched till the knuckles were white, his teeth set. He hated the injustice of circumstance; he hated this squalid room; he hated his—Then something in him let go and, instead of hate, a wave of pity and tenderness for her as she used to be swept through him. He relaxed and, as he sat down at his table and took out the clean, white sheets of paper, he looked over at his wife. His dark eyes were full of compassion.

"After all," he thought, "she isn't to blame and it must be dreadful, terrible, to have lost one's self." And he began to write.

FAMOUS BOWERY IS NO MORE

Prohibition and General Good Things Responsible for Disappearance of Its Oldtime Characteristics.

New York's old-time Bowery is no more. No final rites have marked its passage, nor has the last regular being sung, but of recent months the change has been progressing swiftly and noticeably.

Only old-timers can remember the "Tub of Blood" and other famous dives, but now even the modern hangouts are disappearing one by one before the advent of national prohibition.

Most potent of the changes in America's former driftway of human wreckage is the virtual disappearance of the "Bowery bum." A newspaper feature writer recently sojourned on the street for a time, and he reported that the "bums" are now almost all at least casual workers, and that "cash," or a sizable roll of the "long green," abounds.

Accommodating.

"Will you do me a favor?" asked the shabby-looking visitor.

"No, I won't," growled Mr. Grumpson. "I presume you want money."

"Well, I'd be glad to do you a favor," replied the visitor as he edged toward the door. "I'd be so tickled to act as your palmbearer that I'd even provide my own white gloves."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Benefit of Silence.

"I don't see your name in the paper quite so often as it used to be, senator."

"No," replied the senator. "I find it just as well not to inform the public of my whereabouts. When they don't actually know where I am it is natural for them to believe that I am busy working for their interests."

Curiosity.

Ray (to butcher who had put on a bone to make up weight)—Mother said the pork she had this morning was all bone.

Butcher—Run home and tell your mother that the next pig I kill without off bones I'll make her a present of it.

Boy (a few minutes after)—Mother says the next pig you kill that has got mutton bones in, she would like to buy the whole carcass as a curiosity.

LESS BEER IS BREWED.

According to the Brewers' Journal of Belgium the production and consumption of beer has fallen off by more than a quarter (26.8 per cent) as a result of various causes due in one way or another to the war. The principal factor there is the new limited prohibition law forbidding the sale of liquor for drinking in the place of sale. The province of Brabant still leads in the manufacture of beer in Belgium, but production is far below the old average even there. The breweries in Luxembourg and eastern Flanders are at present turning out only a fifth of their normal output.

EMPIRE'S GRADUAL DISSOLUTION

"Holy Roman Empire" was the name given to the Germanic empire of the middle ages, supposed by a fiction to be a continuation of the universal dominion of the Romans and the Kaisers, the successors to the world-wide sovereignty of the Caesars. Charles V. was crowned emperor of the west by Pope Leo III in 800 A. D. In 900 Otto the Great was crowned emperor of the Romans by Pope John VIII and the "Holy Roman Empire" of the German Nation formally proclaimed. This nation was continued under one form or another for centuries, both the empire and the power of the overlord becoming more and more mythical, until in Napoleon's time the shadow of the empire, which Voltaire said was neither holy nor Roman, nor an empire, disappeared.

Paris Turns to Old-Time Ideas

French dressmakers are turning their attention to old-fashioned materials as well as to old-time designs. This is evinced, notes a Paris fashion writer, in the showing of spring and summer models in Paris. Never before has there been a variety of old-fashioned material, enjoyed such a long and pronounced vogue.

Fabric makers are improving tafeta. The only real objection to it in times gone by was that its stiffness made difficult the task of evolving graceful models. Now tafeta is being made thin and soft like satin, some of it having a highly glazed surface. Then it is being embroidered in various ways. Especially interesting among the new tafetas is one that has a coin dot embroidered in bright colors.

Paris is adopting these new tafetas, and a great many mid-season models are being made of this fabric. A frock developed from a quality known as diamantine in a soft gray is embroidered in raffia strands that are not dyed but treated by a process of glycerin finish which makes them as pliable as silk.

Fur is Used at Random.

To make these tafeta dresses more becoming the Paris dressmakers often line the collar and cuffs with a soft fur, such as petit gris. The fact that fur is becoming more expensive every day does not deter the French cutter from making what might seem to the casual observer unnecessary and unseasonable use of this precious trimming.

Madeleine de Madeleine has made a tafeta dress that takes somewhat the form of a draped polonaise, though frankly cut in two pieces. The waistline is low and loose-fitting and the draped skirt is joined to it under a group of minute tucks which extend across the center of the back and front only. A similar group of tucks gives fullness across the bust line; these tucks stop short of the armhole and lose themselves in a sort of drooping blouse fullness.

The bodice is finished without sleeves, the armhole being surrounded by tiny points, or dents, embroidered in copper color silk. There is, however, an accompanying guimpe which carries short balloon sleeves, also tucks. The skirt of the polonaise has the disappearing tucks and the scalloped embroidered edge. It forms a jabot drapery at the sides and is hung over an extremely narrow underskirt. The bodice finishes with a straight, round neck, but there is an extra collar ruff which stands very stiff and is centered by a band of copper colored embroidery which falls at the back in two "follow-me-lads" ends.

Dress Harks Back to the Thirties.

Another polonaise dress developed in cashmere serge of fine quality and trimmed with cerise satin cire is embroidered in gold and copper threads and dyed raffia strands.

flounced skirt comes from the French stage. Many of these stage frocks, which are having so pronounced an influence on all fashions, were designed by this great dressmaker. Gray, too, is a favorite color for satin frocks. One of these gray dresses is made almost exactly like a redingote, which is worn over an overdress of gray georgette crepe. The coat is slashed at the side to reveal the underskirt.

Three-Piece Suit, Hem of Lace.

Mme. Jenny is not the only designer who does unusual things to hems. Bulloz has introduced the lace hem. He used it with good effect on a black suit, which is accompanied by a long accordion plaited cape. Both the cape and skirt have this remarkable hem, which is formed by inserting scalloped lace, the irregular side of the lace going toward the top of the garment. It is a three-piece suit, the third piece being a blouse of white brocade silk. It is, of course, a typical formal afternoon costume.

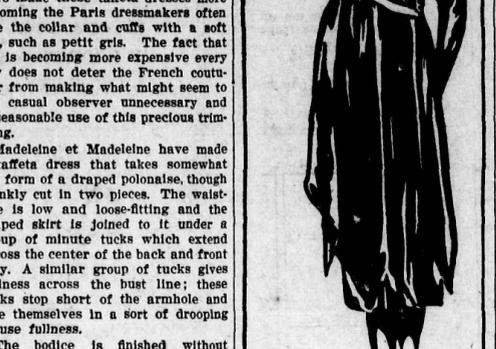

It is interesting to note that these three-piece costumes are even more pronounced for spring than they were for autumn. Women delight in three-piece affairs as offering a great advantage over the old-time suit consisting of a skirt and coat only, which had to be completed by a blouse picked up at random and which did not always make a good-looking set when the coat was removed. Among the practical suits carrying out this idea are those consisting of a simple dress and a somewhat long coat rather than the order of a redingote. These are not always made of cloth; silk features prominently in these new costumes for spring.

Evening dresses are not quite as prominent in the new showings of clothes as they were in those of last season. While the elaborate evening dress is not in such general use as the short skirted dancing frock, the Paris dressmaker feels the necessity of including in her collection very dressy and extreme models developed in handsome brocades.

Hats From Paris.

Paris is experiencing a veritable craze for embroidered hats, which may be made of almost any fabric, with the embroidery of raffia, artificial silk or metal threads. It is very smart to have an embroidered purse exactly matching the hat. The raffia embroidery is effectively used on the underbrim of hats as a means of introducing a becoming bit of color as well as an idea that is entirely new.

The latest novelty is to use cellophane as the foundation for the embroidery. This highly glazed composition has taken Paris by storm. As a background for embroidery, the plain tissue is interesting, but without ornamentation it is too much like patent leather or oilcloth to be becoming.

Street Dress of Blue Cashmere Serge Embroidered With Red and Copper Colored Threads and Dyed Raffia Strands.

This unique design in black and white on printed chiffon, elaborately embroidered in beads, is sure to please the most critical. The touch of fillet at neck and on the sleeves adds another bit of beauty to the frock. The hat is one of the late styles imported from France.

NEWEST LEATHER BELT

Cut-Out Scheme Affords Fastenings Without Hook, Buckle or Button; Good for Summer Wear.

In this era of the leather belt, it is not surprising to see that it is showing brand new possibilities. The most charming is one which colorfully enlists the use of worsted flowers.

Buy enough of one of the leather substitutes to make the belt of the desirable width. It should be from two inches to two and one-half inches in width. The width of the material used will doubtless do for the length of the belt.

On one end of the belt cut an oval slit. On the other cut out near the end at top and bottom a "tooth" about a half inch or more in depth. These two "teeth" or notches will be the means of holding the end in place when it is slipped through the slit on the other end of the belt. Thus it is fastened together without hook, buckle or button and will easily stay in place if your material has sufficient body, and if you do not submit the belt to too much strain in fastening too tightly. Belts of this sort really look ever so much better if they are not any tighter than is absolutely necessary to keep them from slipping too much in front.

Now, upon the center-back applique a henna color rose which you have crocheted of worsted. On either side have flowers which decrease gradually in size until upon the sides of the flowers are nothing more than flowers whose petals are single strands of worsted embroidered directly upon the

When She Is Under Fifteen

Tailored Spring Suit for Young Miss Promises to Be Interesting Item for Season.

For the girl of ten to fourteen years, the tailored spring suit will be an interesting item this season, as the charming little bolero and Eton jackets are to have such a vogue. Frocks with bolero jackets are also shown, so much like the suits really, as a casual glance detects no difference at all.

A little tailored frock for a young girl recently seen is quite worth describing. It had a plaited skirt and a little bolero jacket with underbust of vivid red. The frock proper was of navy, and the jacket was finished at the edges with round scallops piped with red. A tiny navy flit edged with red finished the neck of the blouse. The sleeves were elbow length so far as the blouse was concerned, scalloped, of course, and with wrist length full sleeves of the red.

Novel Handle for Your Bag.

A chain which will be very fetching upon a black bag is one which is easily and cheaply made. Get a number of the smallest white bone rings and connect them with loops of black silk braid. These loops should be about an inch in length. The black-and-white costume will be very smart in spring, and if you are going to have one of these costumes, a black taffeta bag with this sort of chain fastened to the top will give an effect which is quite novel. Of course a bag of navy blue or gray would lend itself to a sort of handle treatment also

Cross stitch embroidery marks one of the newest duvetyrn frocks. The cross stitch is done in silk, in the same shade as the duvetyrn, and this break in the surface of the fabric furnishes the only bit of decoration needed on the frock.

A good meat extender will be found in the following dish:

Beef and Oatmeal Scruppie.—Take two pounds of any of the cheaper cuts of beef; the upper part of the shank is good because of the marrow. Save the marrow to fry the scruppie or chop it with the cooked meat. Cover the meat and bone with boiling water and cook until tender. It will take several hours. Let the meat stand until the next day, then chop fine. There should be three or four cupsful of broth; add a teaspoonful of salt for each pint of broth and when boiling stir in about three cupsful of oatmeal to make a smooth mash, neither too thick nor too thin. When the mash is thoroughly cooked stir in the chopped meat. Add such seasoning as is desired, celery salt, pepper, paprika, onion juice or poultry dressing. Let cook over hot water until hot throughout, then turn into well greased single loaf breadpans to mold. When cold, slice in even slices and fry brown on both sides.

Delmonico Pudding.—Turn a pint can of peaches with the syrup into a pudding dish. Heat one pint of milk in a double boiler; stir one-third of a cupful of cornstarch to a smooth paste with half a teaspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of cold milk, then stir and cook in the hot milk until the mixture thickens. Cover and let cook 15 minutes. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one-third of a cupful of sugar and beat again, then stir in the hot mixture; continue beating until the egg is cooked, then pour over the peaches. Beat the whites of two eggs very light, then beat in four tablespoonfuls of sugar and let cook in a slow oven ten minutes. Then increase the heat to color the meringue. Serve neither hot nor cold.

Potatoes and Bacon.—Place a layer of thinly sliced potatoes in a buttered baking dish; pour over them a thin white sauce. Over the top lay slices of bacon and cook in the oven until the potatoes are tender and bacon crisp.

Eton Jackets Always Good

Practical Little Coat Seized On by French Designers Has Undergone Many Changes.

Perhaps the most popular American adaptation of the new French models is that of the short Eton jacket, notes a fashion writer. Having originated in England, in the stiff and awkward jackets of the Eton students, this practical little coat was seized on by the French designers and consequently underwent many enhancing changes. From season to season, we have had various modifications, and the curved and stiffened line over the bust has gradually given way to a loose and graceful flare.

The sleeves have become semi-casual, usually, three-quarters length, with cuffs or untrimmed, and adapted for

SUITS and FROCKS

New Silhouette for Spring Interesting and Pretty.

Waist Lines Dropped to Hips, Shoulders Narrowed, Skirts Puffed or Slenderly Straight.

Paris has gone adventuring in the matter of new tailored silhouettes for serge suits and frocks and has introduced waist lines to Victorian hip, shoulders narrowed to slenderly straight, but always slit up at some point.

In fact, the director has returned in the vigorous slanting of side or back and also in the long-fronted coats and bodice to be seen on recent models. A chic little trottier of navy tricotina has a short, tight jacket with the front and back elongated in flat panels, and frilled on the hips by three narrow ruffles. The skirt is plain and nearly to the knee, and undersewn with a thick fringe of ribbon streamers.

Another smart little walking suit has a box coat of Eton persuasion, slit under each arm and finished with outstanding inch-wide loops. The top of the skirt from waist to the hip line is stitched with inch bands which form loops on each hip to match the coat, giving at the same time a moderated bouffancy, which is altogether charming.

Much serge is being used in tailored suits and frocks, but this veteran material has acquired such alluring quality in its cunning manipulation, that for any woman to see these new creations is to desire them.

A fetching costume for the "jeune fille" has a jacket cut straight and short and finished around the hips by

EVER USEFUL SHOPPING BAG

Convenience is Easily Made From Piece of Heavy Crash or Linen of Dark Color.

A shopping bag is useful nowadays, when most of us find it simpler to bring our purchases home with us. The bag shown in the sketch is easily made from a piece of heavy crash or linen, of a dark color for choice. A length of 20 by 12 inches is required, joined strongly by machine at sides and bottom, and with a piece of whalebone run through the casing at the top to keep the mouth of the bag stiff and well open. The handles are made of strong window cord, and should be fixed on as follows: Sew them firmly to the outside of the bag and cover the ends with scraps of cretonne cut in circles and buttonholed all round. The broad band round the bottom of the bag is of cretonne to match the circles, and brightens up the whole appearance of the bag.

USING MALINES IN MILLINERY

Material Especially Liked in Shape Known as "Bird Cage" Tam; Black is Predicted.

Malines is taking a still firmer hold on the millinery trade as the season advances. Not only is it especially popular for wear at the present time, but it is being touted as a spring wearer as well. For current dress wear malines is especially liked in a shape known as the "bird cage" tam, in which it is used to encase brocade, duvetyrn or velvet. For the coming season black malines is expected again to be a big factor, particularly when used with glycerined ostrich trimmings. Rolling Chin Chin models, bulky side crown effects, turbans and the larger dress hats of malines use bands of glycerined ostrich on the under brim or to cover the entire crown. In some cases the ostrich is replaced by a silky black grass.

Veils on All Hats.

In Paris veils are seen on everybody's hat. And brims being covered by them, the crowns are the center of embroidery and decoration.

SALAD GREENS AND SALADS.

Salads will always be in style, for they are generally popular, refreshing, and with a good dressing also nourishing. The very early salads may include the vegetables which we have always considered as greens.

It is a good idea to have a number of boards or the wood pile make the most dainty and succulent of salad plants. Serve with a good French dressing, with or without a sprinkling of minced onion.

One may use any desired salad dressing, but oil is so appetizing, meaty and full of nourishment that everybody should learn to like good olive oil. The corn oils are much less expensive than a good grade of olive oil just now, and they are good and can be used in the same manner in making a mayonnaise dressing.

If one is fortunate enough to live near a small brook or creek where the watercress grows, there is always a most wholesome supply of a most wholesome green. Serve with lamb chops just as a garnish. When eaten without any dressing it is a most palatable and tasty salad. Mixed with lettuce or peppergrass or served alone with French dressing, three or four parts oil and one part vinegar with salt and pepper to taste, it is a salad par excellence.

Outside leaves of lettuce rolled and cut with a sharp knife, left unrolled, make a very attractive salad and a pretty garnish for many different combinations. The leaves should be fresh and crisp; let the lettuce stand in cold water to freshen.

Radishes cut to simulate tulips make very pretty garnishment. Radishes cut in thin slices and arranged in overlapping rows are another pretty garnish. The red of the radish should not be used with the red of beets or the orange of carrots, as too many of such colors clash. One may use the artists' taste in the arrangement of food as effectively as with paints.

Beet Salad.—Boil eight small beets in boiling salted water; salt when nearly cooked. Remove the skins and cut in one-fourth-inch cubes; mix with shelled peas and serve with mayonnaise, colored red. Serve in nests of lettuce.

Cottage Cheese Salad.—On head lettuce leaves arrange a ring of seasoned cottage cheese; put through a ricer or sieve. In the center place a hard-cooked egg yolk and serve with a highly seasoned dressing, passed in a bowl.

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going to a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt relieved after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Live Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Live Pills relieved that.—Mrs. A. Rogers, 533 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

Sacramento, Calif.—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to get back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pain. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial.—Bertha J. P. Kazan, 5330 M St., Sacramento, Calif.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sure, touchy corns off with fingers.

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Frezzone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Frezzone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Frezzone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.—Adv.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbé Compound, and 3 oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP.

A cold is probably the most common of all disorders and when neglected is apt to be most dangerous. Statistics show that more than three times as many people died from influenza last year, as were killed in the greatest war the world has ever known. For the last fifty-three years Boschée's Syrup has been used for coughs, bronchitis, colds, throat irritation and especially lung troubles. It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectation in the morning. Made in America and used in the homes of thousands of families all over the civilized world. SAVINGS SOCIETIES
BENEFIT ALL WORKERS
Reduce Labor Turnover and Stimulate Production.

How does the savings society benefit the employer? How does it benefit the employee? How does it benefit the United States? Employers have discovered that a savings society reduces the labor turnover, stimulates production and makes for better efficiency among the workers. The employees gain an honest appreciation of financial freedom and independence, insure themselves and their families for a rainy day, and themselves to be American citizens. A man who invests in the securities of a government takes greater interest in that government and is more ready to uphold it and its institutions. He becomes more closely attached to it, and if he is not a citizen, he will attempt to become one. Excerpts of letters from business men prove these points.

"Now that the payments on Liberty Bonds are winding up, we look for even more savers among our employees in 1920 than in the past year. We have made a study of your Thrift plan and will push it through," writes L. J. Woodward, President of Fitzgibbon & Crisp, Inc., Trenton, N. J., to W. J. King, Chairman of Government Savings Stamps, Third Federal Reserve District.

Regular group saving in industrial plants is good business from the standpoint of both employees and employers. In his report of January 16, 1920, President Woodward continues: "You may be interested in the success of the Government Savings Society installed in our plant by your Mr. Hopkinson, December, 1919.

"The educational work of the Thrift plan as outlined in the 'Get the Habit' letters which we put out in the pay envelopes of our 300 employees, proved the stopping stone for weekly savings by means of Thrift and Savings Stamps. The savings averaged $200.00 a week.

"We continue to keep up the interest by using the pay envelope 'Work and Save' inserts, etc., and believe that the results already attained justify the encouragement of the plan as good business from the employer's standpoint.

"Our experience has been that the majority of employees now desire to work harder so that they may earn more in order to save and invest in Government Stamps, where their money is safe and secure against loss or depreciation. All this helps greatly to increase production."

That the installment of these societies into the various business places has made the workers save regularly and more easily, tends to stabilize labor and makes for better citizenship, the following excerpt of a letter from H. S. Taylor, Secretary of the Savings Society of the New York Ship Building Corporation, is concrete evidence:

"In our Lumber Shop, the labor turn-over was almost 100 per cent every two weeks. The War Savings Society secretary for that department, which, by the way, was made up entirely of colored people, paid little or no attention to them, because it was impossible to do anything in the line of stamp saving. His girl friend happened to be secretary of another department showing very good results. To compete with her, he insisted that all the colored men in his shop become savers. For a period of months there has been almost no change in the working force of his shop as a result of his efforts.

Promotes Citizenship.

"In the plate and angle shop, a department of about 500 men, having many foreigners, a canvas was made to find out men desiring citizenship papers. Of all those who wished first papers, every one was saving money buying War Savings Stamps, while everyone who refused was not buying them."

Seventy-one out of eighty employees at Alvah Bushnell Company, Philadelphia, saved and invested in Government Savings Stamps the sum of $830.00 in 1919. And for the month of January, 1920, the same number saved in stamps $328.00. Most of these having paid off their Liberty Bonds, turned to the Stamps. They have the habit of systematic saving and safe investment.

"The 'Get the Habit' letter has helped us to increase the membership in our Savings Society over 150 per cent. We now have over 90 per cent membership. Our savings for the month of January show an increase of 125 per cent over the best month of last year. This is gratifying to me, and I attribute a considerable amount of this success to the timely work of our organization," writes Mr. Thomas William Dicker, Jr., Secretary of the Savings Society at the Alvah Bushnell Co., to the Savings Division Quarters.

"The labor turn-over is greatly reduced when the employees are saving rather than spending in advance the wages of the coming week or two. The employee who saves has an honest appreciation of freedom and independence, and is not always complaining and agitating others on account of money spent before it is earned, neither does he jump from job to job. The employee who has a fund to rely on in case of illness and the unexpected is economical, secure, and has a contented state of mind."

MEMORIAL IN JERSEY
ON SITE OF GREATEST EMBARKATION CAMP
To Consecrate in Perpetuity Camp Merritt Through Which Passed a Million Soldier Boys From Every State in the Union.
GAVE A GODSPEED OVERSEAS, A VICTORIOUS WELCOME HOME

Distinguished Architects Have Prepared a Design Which Will Symbolize the Activities of the Camp, and it is Proposed to Raise $150,000 to Meet the Cost of the Monument.

By J. W. BINDER.

When on that fateful August day in 1914, the arrogant German Kaiser threw down the gauntlet to civilization and democracy, he did not reckon with America's devotion to an ideal. His philosophy could not conceive of a people who could submerge all self-interest to the service of mankind. But that is the story of the United States' participation in the world war.

When that fateful August day in 1914, the arrogant German Kaiser threw down the gauntlet to civilization and democracy, he did not reckon with America's devotion to an ideal. His philosophy could not conceive of a people who could submerge all self-interest to the service of mankind. But that is the story of the United States' participation in the world war.

Whereas, in order to establish a permanent memorial of Camp Merritt it is thought proper to erect a monument on a plot of ground at the corner of Knickerbocker road and Madison avenue now belonging to William O. Allison, who is willing to convey the same for such purpose, provided assurance can be given that said memorial and plot will be properly and permanently maintained; and

Whereas, it has been suggested that the title to said plot be lodged in the County of Bergen, in trust, to maintain, preserve, and protect said memorial in perpetuity; and

Whereas, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Bergen recognizes the very distinguished honor which the establishment of Camp Merritt has conferred upon the county and the propriety of a suitable memorial to perpetuate the historic associations connected with the camp, and appreciates the patriotic impulse which has led to a contribution of funds for the purpose. Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Bergen in behalf of the county, accept the position of custodian of the proposed memorial and will take title in the name of the county for the plot on which it is to stand, in trust, to maintain said memorial and plot in suitable condition and subject to a covenant and agreement that said county will forever protect, maintain, and keep in good repair and condition the said monument and plot to the end that it may be a public and lasting memorial of the events and history connected with Camp Merritt; and be it further

Resolved, that said county of Bergen hereby agrees to build said monument and memorial of such funds as may be contributed for the purpose, and such funds, if any, as may be hereafter appropriated by said board in accordance with the statute; and be it further

Resolved, that the County Council be instructed to take such action as may be necessary for the proper transfer of the plot herein before mentioned.

This resolution was adopted on August 6, 1919.

and at approximately $10,000, which we in camp thought we could raise. Then, the question of the care of the plot to be occupied by the memorial came up. The plot as contemplated was to be about 100 feet square. Inasmuch as the soldiers then at camp would sooner or later be scattered to their homes, it was manifestly impossible for them to care for it. Consequently, the matter was referred to the Bergen County Historical Society on June 17, 1919. The President of that society, Mr. Lewis M. Miller of Leonia, at once replied giving his hearty approval of the idea.

At a meeting of the Society held on July 25, it was agreed that the County of Bergen rather than the Historical Society should hold the title. This brought in the Board of Chosen Freeholders, who on August 6 met and passed the following resolution:

Whereas, during the late war with Germany the Government of the United States established a large and important camp in this county, between Dumont and Tenafly, designated, as Camp Merritt, which has been used as a camp of embarkation and debarkation, for men in the army, and which has received from time to time more than a million men in the aggregate, and which camp will in the near future be disbanded by the Government; and

Whereas, in order to establish a permanent memorial of Camp Merritt it is thought proper to erect a monument on a plot of ground at the corner of Knickerbocker road and Madison avenue now belonging to William O. Allison, who is willing to convey the same for such purpose, provided assurance can be given that said memorial and plot will be properly and permanently maintained; and

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Bergen in behalf of the county, accept the position of custodian of the proposed memorial and will take title in the name of the county for the plot on which it is to stand, in trust, to maintain said memorial and plot in suitable condition and subject to a covenant and agreement that said county will forever protect, maintain, and keep in good repair and condition the said monument and plot to the end that it may be a public and lasting memorial of the events and history connected with Camp Merritt; and be it further

Resolved, that the County Council be instructed to take such action as may be necessary for the proper transfer of the plot herein before mentioned.

This resolution was adopted on August 6, 1919.

On August 15 (committees having been appointed to represent the Camp Officers, the Bergen County Historical Society and the Board of Freeholders)

With the call of Uncle Sam in the selective draft, the millions of his sons began assembling in the various camps throughout the country to be trained in the arts of war. What they did there; how they were taught lessons of discipline and unity of action; how their latent love of country was fanned into a fierce flame of patriotism before which the trained cohorts of Germany could not stand. It is a story that has often been told. Its telling will inspire and thrill our people through all time.

When these men had been changed from peaceful citizens into soldiers at the different camps, they were sent from three principal seaports along the Atlantic coast to the seat of war in Europe. One of the principal ports of embarkation, as these seaports were called, was that at Hoboken.

It was necessary to establish near the latter port, a great camp where the thousands who were destined to sail from New York harbor, could be assembled, kept for a brief rest period and then marched over-night to the waiting transports. After much deliberation, a site in Bergen County was selected. On this site, Camp Merritt was built—the largest camp of its kind in the United States. Through it passed more than a million men of the army of the United States on their outbound way across the Atlantic. Through it repassed, after the Armistice, almost an equally large number on their return from war to the pursuits of peace. Many hundreds who passed through the camp bound eastward, did not, unfortunately, come back home. They made the supreme sacrifice. They had "gone west."

To perpetuate the memory of these, the Nation's Heroes, it is proposed to erect a memorial on the spot which was the center of the great camp from which were sent away.

It was at first proposed to do this by means of a bronze plate sunk into a huge boulder placed on the north-east corner of Knickerbocker road and Madison avenue in the camp. Such a plate, properly inscribed, was donated for this purpose by Messrs. J. & R. Lamb of 25 Sixth avenue, New York City. The plate is herewith reproduced. It has now been removed and placed in the archives of the Bergen County Historical Society awaiting erection of the memorial of which it will form a part.

Early in the year 1919, while Major Francis G. Landon was the Morale Officer of the camp, the suggestion was made that a suitable memorial be erected to mark for all time the camp site through which 1,100,000 men from every state in the Union had passed.

In speaking of the historical side of the memorial movement, Major Landon says: "About May, 1919, Mr. Wm. O. Allison, who owned the land on which the memorial boulder was located, was approached with regard to the erection of a suitable memorial. He gladly consented to donate in perpetuity title to the ground on which the boulder had been placed. There were many ideas as to the size and cost of such a memorial. Originally, the figure was

STUDY IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, chairman of the conservation department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is pushing nature study in the public schools, with the approval of Dr. Philander F. Claxton, United States commissioner of education and the support of the 2,500,000 federated club women of the country. Her 1920 report, which deals with conservation, natural resources, Americanization, thrift, home and school gardens, natural scenery and national parks and other activities of her department, sets forth that the boys and girls of today particularly need those studies that will develop individuality, strength of character and human sympathy. She says:

"Our boys and girls need a comprehensive, practical course of nature study—natural science—that is based quite as much upon actual outdoor nature as upon textbooks. The marriage of the two is essential. The study of the life history of animals and plants are valuable to them both as information and as incentive. Interest is the basis of application. Nature study holds a child's interest and utilizes, develops and extends it. This study should have dependent continuity in the grades and should rank with reading, writing and arithmetic in credits.

"With this beginning in natural science the future citizen is more likely to give appreciative consideration to the conservation of the natural resources of his country. Conservation means the best and fullest use without waste of abundance."

TARZAN AND THE Jewels of Opar

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Author of "Tarzan of the Apes" "Son of Tarzan"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Home.

As Tarzan of the Apes hurried through the trees the discordant sounds of the battle between the Abyssinians and the lion roared more and more distinctly upon his sensitive ears, redounding his assurance that the plight of the human element of the conflict was critical indeed.

At last the glare of the camp fire above plainly through the intervening trees, and a moment later the giant figure of the ape-man paused upon an overhanging bough to look down upon the bloody scene of carnage below.

His quick eye took in the whole scene with a single comprehending glance and stopped upon the figure of a woman standing facing a great lion across the carcass of a horse.

The carnivore was crouching to spring as Tarzan discovered the tragic tableau. Numa was almost beneath the branch upon which the ape-man stood, naked and unarmed. There was not even an instant's hesitation upon the part of the latter—it was as though he had not even paused in his swift progress through the trees, so "staring-like his survey and comprehension of the scene below him—instantaneous his consequent action.

Wide went Jane Clayton's eyes in wonder and incredulity as she beheld this seeming apparition arise from the dead. The lion was forgotten—her own peril—everything save the wondrous miracle of this strange recrudescence.

She saw the sinewy form leap to the shoulder of the lion, hurling against the leaping beast like a huge, animate battering ram. She saw the carnivore brushed aside as he was almost upon her, and in the instant she realized that no substanceless wraith could thus turn the charge of a maddened lion with brute force greater than the brute's.

Tarzan, her Tarzan, lived! A cry of unspeakable gladness broke from her lips, only to die in terror as she saw the utter defenseless of her mate and realized that the lion had recovered himself and was turning upon Tarzan in mad lust for vengeance.

At the ape-man's feet lay the discarded rifle of the dead Abyssinian whose mutilated corpse sprawled where Numa had abandoned it. The quick glance which had swept the ground for some weapon of defense discovered it, and as the lion reared upon his hind legs to seize the rash man-thing who had dared interpose its puny strength between Numa and his prey, the heavy stock whirled through the air and splintered upon the broad forehead.

Not as an ordinary mortal might strike a blow did Tarzan of the Apes strike, but with the maddened frenzy of a wild beast backed by the steel thews which his wild, arboreal boyhood had bequeathed him. When the blow ended the splintered stock was driven through the splintered skull into the savage brain, and the heavy iron barrel was bent into a rude V.

In the instant that the lion sank lifeless to the ground Jane Clayton threw herself into the eager arms of her husband. For a brief instant he strained her dear form to his breast, and then a glance about him awakened the ape-man to the dangers which still surrounded them.

The blacks who had witnessed his advent looked on in amazement as they saw the naked giant leap easily into the branches of the tree from whence he had dropped so unaccountably upon the scene and vanish as he had come, bearing away their prisoner with him.

Unmolested, Tarzan passed from the camp of the Abyssinians, from which the din of conflict followed him deep into the jungle until distance gradually obliterated it entirely.

Back to the spot where he had left Werper went the ape-man, joy in his heart now, where fear and sorrow had so recently reigned, and in his mind a determination to forgive the Belgian and aid him in making good his escape.

But when he came to the place Werper was gone, and though Tarzan called aloud many times he received no reply. Convinced that the man had purposely eluded him for reasons of his own, John Clayton felt that he was under no obligations to expose his wife to further danger and discomfort in the prosecution of a more thorough search for the missing Belgian.

"He has acknowledged his guilt by his flight, Jane," he said. "We will let him go to lie in the bed that he has made for himself."

Straight as homing pigeons the two made their way toward the ruin and desolation that had once been the center of their happy lives, and which they were soon to be restored by the willing black hands of laughing laborers, made happy again by the return of the master and mistress whom they had mourned as dead.

Past the village of Achmet Zek they way led them, and there they found but the charred remains of the pallisade and the native huts, still smoking, as mute evidence of the wrath and vengeance of a powerful enemy.

"The Waziri," commented Tarzan with a grim smile.

"God bless them!" cried Jane Clayton.

"They cannot be far ahead of us," said Tarzan, "Basuli and the others. The gold is gone and the Jewels of Opar, Jane; but we have each other and the Waziri—we have love and loyalty and friendship. And what are gold and Jewels to these?"

"If only poor Mugambi lived," she replied, "and those other brave fellows who sacrificed their lives in vain endeavor to protect me!"

In the silence of mingled joy and sorrow they passed along through the familiar jungle, and as the afternoon was waning there came faintly to the ears of the ape-man the murmuring cadence of distant voices.

"We are nearing the Waziri, Jane," he said. "I can hear them ahead of us. They are going into camp for the night."

With them were the captured women of the tribe whom they had found in the village of Achmet Zek, and tall, even among the giant Waziri, loomed a familiar black form at the side of Basuli. It was Mugambi, whom Jane had thought dead amidst the charred ruins of the bungalow.

"Ah, such a reunion! Long into the night the dancing and singing and laughter awoke the echoes of the summer wood. Again and again were the stories of their various adventures retold. Again and once again they fought their battles with savage beast and savage man, and dawn was already breaking when Basuli, for the fortieth time, narrated how he and a handful of warriors had watched the battle for the golden ingots which the Abyssinians of Abdui Mourak had waged against the Arab raiders of Achmet Zek, and how, when the victors had ridden away, they had sneaked out of the river reeds and stolen away with the precious ingots to hide them where no robber eye ever could discover them.

Pleced out from the fragments of their various experiences with the Belgian the truth concerning the unalpin activities of Albert Werper became apparent. Only Lady Greystocke found good to praise in the conduct of the man, and it was difficult even for her to reconcile his many heinous acts with this one evidence of chivalry and honor.

"Deep in the soul of every man," said Tarzan, "must lurk the germ of righteousness. It was your own virtue, Jane, rather than your helplessness, which awakened for an instant the latent decency of this degraded man. In that one act he retrieved himself, and when he is called to face his Maker may it outweigh in the balance all the sins he has committed."

And Jane Clayton breathed a fervent Amen.

Months had passed. The labor of the Waziri and the gold of Opar had rebuilt and refurbished the wasted homestead of the Greystocks. Once more the simple life of the great African farm went on as it had before the coming of the Belgian and the Arab. Forgotten were the sorrows and dangers of yesterday.

For the first time in months Lord Greystocke felt that he might indulge in a holiday, and so a great hunt was organized that the faithful laborers might feast in celebration of the completion of their work.

In itself the hunt was a success, and ten days after its inauguration a well-laden safari took up its return march toward the Waziri plain. Lord and Lady Greystocke with Basuli and Mugambi rode together at the head of the column, laughing and talking together in that easy familiarity which common interests and mutual respect breed between honest and intelligent men of any races.

Jane Clayton's horse shied suddenly at an object half hidden in the long grasses of an open space in the jungle. Tarzan's keen eyes sought quickly for an explanation of the animal's action.

"What have we here?" he cried, swinging from his saddle, and a moment later the four were grouped about a human skull and a little cluster of whitened human bones.

Tarzan stooped and lifted a leathern pouch from the grisly relics of a man. The hard outlines of the contents brought an exclamation of surprise to his lips.

"The Jewels of Opar," he cried, holding the pouch aloft, "and," pointing to the bones at his feet, "all that remains of Werper, the Belgian."

Mugambi laughed. "Look within, Bwana," he cried, "and you will see what are the Jewels of Opar—you will see what the Belgian gave his life for, and the black laughed aloud.

"Why do you laugh?" asked Tarzan.

"Because," replied Mugambi, "I need the Belgian's pouch with river gravel before I escaped the camp of the Abyssinians whose prisoners we were. I left the Belgian only worthless stones, while I brought away with me the Jewels he had stolen from you. That they were afterward stolen from me while I slept in the jungle is my shame and my disgrace; but at least the Belgian lost them—open his pouch and you will see."

Tarzan untied the thong which held the mouth of the leathern bag closed, and permitted the contents to trickle slowly forth into his open palm. Mugambi's eyes were wide at the sight, and the others uttered exclamations of surprise and incredulity, for from the rusty and weatherworn pouch ran a stream of brilliant, scintillating gems.

"The Jewels of Opar!" cried Tarzan. "But how did Werper come by them again?"

None could answer, for both Chuk and Werper were dead, and no other knew.

"Poor devil!" said the ape-man as he swung back into his saddle. "Even in death he has made restitution—let his sins lie with his bones."

SEA SCOUTS DO GOOD TURNS

Sea scouts, as well as their land brothers, thoroughly believe in the good turn daily; and examples in work peculiar to the water are not uncommon. When breaking camp at Larchmont, N. Y., the "Curlew" expedition wanted to show their appreciation of the courtesy of the Larchmont Yacht club, so all hands tumbled up unusually early and gave the broad piazzas a cleaning that made the old caretaker say: "Well, now, I ain't seen that done so well for years!"

Wilkesburg, Pa., sea scouts of the schooner "Pennyvania" are planning to maintain a "beach patrol" of the summer resort beaches during the coming summer. Sea scouts will constantly be on patrol to see that no drownings occur off their strip of beach and to act as instructors in swimming and watermanship.

The B. S. A. sloop "Essex" of South Orange, N. J., sent details of sea scouts to New York city to help the National Marine League in its exhibit at the Grand Central palace.

Sea scouts of Philadelphia, Pa., noticed the soldiers playing indoor quilts with rope rings joined together with wooden bands. "We can do better than that," quoth the sea scouts, and promptly made up a large number of smooth rope grommets, which made a much better ring than the purchased article.

AUTHORS TO FIGHT ROYALTY TAXES

Herz Beach (portrait herewith), the Chicago novelist, is president of the Authors' League, and the league has decided to go to grips with Uncle Sam on the income tax. Royalties from books, short stories, plays and other literary work are dividends, the writers have decided.

With this as a major promise, the Author's League has reached the conclusion that writers, struggling and otherwise, are not subject to the burdensome normal tax provisions of the federal income tax, and they have advised their 1,500 or more members to file their returns accordingly.

If they are sustained by the commissioners of internal revenue they will have to pay only the surtax—which is an dividends totaling more than $100,000.

The league's fight on the "inequities that now bear so heavily upon the writer and the artist" was started at a meeting of the executive committee, which is composed of Gelett George, George Creel, Owen Davis, Parker Fillmore, James Forbes, by number of the Heavy Syndicate, Rupert Hughes, Orson Lowell, a willingness to, A. H. Duer Miller, Harvey O'Elgin, Channing Pollock, dole and so-called, Lewis Scott and Jesse Lynch Williams.

The letter enjoining the 1,500 members to list their royalties as dividends was sent out over the signature of Eric Schuler, secretary.

BUDGET MEASURE GETS GOOD START

Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois (portrait herewith), chairman of the special senate committee for consideration of a national budget, announced the other day that the subcommittee composed of himself, Senators Keyes, Edge, Simmons, and King, unanimously had agreed upon a national budget measure. The senate bill is a combination of the McCormick bill, introduced several weeks ago, and the Good bill, which was passed by the house last fall.

There will be set up in the treasury department a budget bureau, which shall collect all department estimates and revise them. The secretary of the treasury will approve them to the president, who shall have power to revise the estimates. The president, before the 10th of December each year, must submit his budget to congress.

In order to permit the secretary of the treasury to serve as a real finance officer and not compete with his colleagues in the cabinet as a spending officer, the extraneous bureaus in the treasury will be transferred to other departments.

The bill creates a department, independent of all others, known as the budgeting department. This department will review the expenditures made by all departments and report on them to congress, suggesting improvements.

Holden was born in Kansas with a good record. Contrary to the traditions of the rails, he did not start as a brakeman. He is a graduate of Williams college and Harvard law school, becoming an expert in interstate law, he worked into the railroad from the bar.

BENSON OF THE SHIPPING BOARD

A navy equal to any in the world, not for purposes of aggression, but as a stabilizing power, is advocated by Admiral William S. Benson, recently retired, and now head of the United States shipping board. Incidentally, he smilingly says: "The only man who knows why I was appointed to the shipping board head is President Wilson, and he didn't tell me."

Admiral Benson is clean cut, alert and typical of the officers of the American navy. As head of naval operations during the war, he has intimate knowledge of world policies of all the great powers, but he smilingly declines to talk about the matters affecting the navy and mercantile interests upon which issues of debate have arisen.

"I have no fear of the future development of the American navy from lack of man power or any other reason," says Admiral Benson. "It is the relative sizes of two came and

An Imitation Takes For Its Pattern the Real Article

There was never an imitation made of an imitation. Imitations always counterfeit the genuine article. The genuine is what you ask for, because genuine articles are the advertised ones. Imitations are not advertised, but depend for their business on the ability of the dealer to sell you something claimed to be "just as good" when you ask for the genuine, because he makes more profit on the imitation. Why accept imitations when you can get the genuine by insisting?

Refuse Imitations. Get What You Ask For!

If Your Business Isn't Worth Advertising

One of the strongest things in advertising or in printing is that a man will start out with the intention of having the best that he can get. It is the last few dollars that are spent on advertising that give it value. It is the last pound of power that lifts a weight. If it takes a strain of 1000 pounds to break a weight, 999 pounds wouldn't do so good. You can spend 999 pounds on it, and leave off just where you started. If you want to break that chain you will have to spend those 1000 pounds over again and add the other pound to it after all. It would have been better to have used 1000 pounds at the start. It is better to spend $100 for a thoroughly effective booklet than to spend $100 for one that is inefficient.—Shoe and Leather Pats.

Marconi believes he is receiving signals from the planets was jumping about in astonishing fashion. The thought immediately popped into my mind that static signals from some other planet were probably responsible. This idea took such a hold on me that I made the definite suggestion that there be established in the ore fields of Michigan a station where scientific vigils might be kept, in the hope that the great masses of ore in that region would attract magnetic signals from interplanetary space.

"If we are to accept the theory of Mr. Marconi that these signals are being sent out by inhabitants of other planets, we must at once accept with it the theory of their advanced development. Either they are our intellectual equals or our superiors. It would be stupid for us to assume that we have a corner on all the intelligence in the universe."

Nikola Tesla, the famous Serbian inventor and electrical expert says: "Marconi's idea of communicating with the other planets is the greatest and most fascinating problem confronting the human imagination today. To insure success a body of competent scientists should be organized to study all possible plans and put into execution the best. The matter should be directed probably by astronomers with sufficient backing from men with money and imagination. Supposing that there are intelligent human beings on Mars, success is easily within the range of possibility. In March, 1907, I stated in the Harvard Illustrated Magazine that experiments looking to communication with other planets should be undertaken.

"In 1899 I built an electric plant in Colorado and obtained activities of 18,000,000 horsepower. In the course of my experiments I employed a receiver of virtually unlimited sensitiveness. There were no other wireless plants near, and at that time no other wireless plants anywhere on this earth of sufficient range to affect mine. One day my ear caught what seemed to be regular signals. I knew that they could not have been produced upon the earth. The possibility that they came from Mars occurred to me, but the pressure of business affairs caused me to drop the experiment.

"The thing, I think, that we should try to develop is a plan akin to picture transmission, by means of which we could convey to the inhabitants of Mars knowledge of earthly forms. This would enable us to exchange with them not only simple primitive facts, but involved conceptions. To talk to Mars seems to me only a matter of electric power and perseverance."

Frank Dyson, British astronomer royal, believes we could get Hertzian waves from other planets. Prof. Edward Branley, Paris, inventor of the coherer, is sceptical. Prof. Domenico Argenterii, Rome, says the supposed signals are worthy of careful observation.

Prof. Albert Einstein, the German astronomer and author of the theory of "Relativity" that is apparently upsetting all accepted doctrines, believes that Mars and other planets are inhabited, but if intelligent creatures are trying to communicate with the earth he should expect them to use

One day he was bold enough to run in the daytime and stayed, and getting a bad fright from seeing Puss come into the pantry, he ran out of the door into the kitchen and out into the yard.

Here he managed to escape by running under the steps, where Puss could not follow him.

All day he stayed there and all night, too, and it was not until the next day that he could get back to his own home.

But what was his surprise, when he went to the hole in the wall to find the pan had been removed and that Madam Spider had woven a web right over the opening and was sitting there, waiting for a stray fly.

"You have closed up the door to my house," protested Brown Mouse. "I am afraid I shall have to tear away your web, for I really must get to be out here!"

"Oh, dear, what shall I do!" wailed Madam Spider. "It took me so long to find this place, and I worked so thank him enough and off he ran to make a new door to his home in the wall.

Some time after this all happened Mr. Mouse grew bold again and ran out of the pantry one day and Puss saw him.

Around the kitchen she chased him, and by and by she had him cornered. He could not get back to the pantry, and Puss was very sure of getting him, so she sat quite still and watched poor trembling Mr. Mouse, who was sure his end was near.

But he had a friend close by, though he did not know it, for right over Puss' head was the new home of Madam Spider, and when she looked down and saw what was going on she knew it was time to pay her debt of gratitude to Mr. Mouse.

Madam Spider let herself down by a slender thread right over Puss. Then she swung herself right into one of Puss' eyes.

Puss bent her head and brushed her eyes with one paw. It took only a wink of time, but it was enough. Mr. Mouse was saved, for when Puss opened her eyes again he was gone.

Madam Spider, too, was safe up in her home again, feeling very contented for had she not saved the life of Mr. Mouse, who once had spared her home?

That night, when Mr. Mouse was thinking over all that had happened, he suddenly remembered the spider that saved him.

"Why, I do believe I must have been Madam Spider, whose home I spared a long time ago," he said. "Well, well! You can never tell when you will need a friend, and even the weakest ones sometimes are able to do the biggest deeds of kindness."

Woman—Chon, did you bell? Man—Yah, did I. Woman—Well, it didn't make! I think the battery is all.

Beauty Chats. By Edna Kent Forbes.

BEAUTY CULTURE. MOST women think that beauty culture consists in an amazing variety of bottles and jars and boxes, with salves and liquids to be applied externally. A few others scorn all cosmetics and pin their entire faith to plain soap and water.

neither, these days, will soap and water. An excellent digestion and a healthy body, come first, but even so, dirt will seep into the pores and soap alone will not clean it out. Air that is too cold roughens the skin, and cream of some sort must be used to soften it. Too hot sun burns the skin, and cream must be used to soothe it. A few hours' ride through a swift wind in an auto, means that the skin will dry and that dirt particles will be forced in by the rush of air. Here again cream is useful.

Exercise or exposure usually causes the pores to become unusually active resulting in a thin film of oil over the skin, and a resulting shininess. Modern standards declare that this is not beautiful, so the powder box comes into its own. Powder is as necessary as soap, almost. Indeed, it is a question whether pure powder on the skin is not better than impure dirt particles. However, powder and all other applications should be thoroughly washed off before one retires, leaving the skin free and clean for the third of the day spent in rest.

He started to grow—as it happens sometimes. When it least is expected—and soon their mating was one of those marital crimes. That the devil considers a boon.

She stayed as she was—I'm not blaming her, no—And her life and his were a hell. Now tell me, would duty cry "Linger," or "Go?" Where, where is the wisdom to tell?

(The question is old as the earth has grown old, And the answer is yet to be found: Is it right to break loose, human gender from goose? When Dan Cupid's no longer around?)

A Misconception. "Give me a dollar's worth of belladonna, please." "A dollar's worth of belladonna! What in the world do you want with that much of such a drug?"

"I'm sick and tired of teaching kindergarten, and somebody told me belladonna would enlarge the pupils."
