

Albert Lane Knocked Out and Money Taken

BOLD HOLD-UP BY HIGHWAY-MAN IN CENTER OF TOWN SATURDAY EVENING

Albert Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Lane, and a member of the graduating class of the Tuckerton High School, was knocked down and robbed near J. J. Pharo's residence Saturday evening.

Albert was on his way home about 11 o'clock when a man stepped out and struck him on the head with a club or piece of pipe. The blow knocked him down and before he recovered from the effects of the attack which stunned him, the bandit had taken his wallet and was making his escape over the fence.

It is thought that this heaviest crime was committed by some one who was acquainted with conditions, as Albert received his wallet in the mail Tuesday morning with everything in it but the money.

This business if kept up is bound to bring serious results, either someone being shot or getting a long term in prison.

BIG REVIVAL STILL IN PROGRESS AT M. E. CHURCH

The revival meetings are still in progress at the M. E. Church and are meeting with excellent success. Under the leadership of Rev. Daniel Johnson, the pastor, there have been over fifty conversions and the interest is growing steadily. Visitors from nearby towns are present nearly every night.

Rev. L. V. Brewin of New Gretna, preached on evening last week and Sunday morning. Both his sermons were appreciated and enjoyed by large congregations. Tonight West Creek has sent word there will be a delegation present and New Gretna folks think they will probably be here again. We are glad to have them enjoy the good things with us, for it is truly a spiritual feast.

Next Sunday a chorus of ninety-nine men will sing the famous Sankey hymn "The Ninety and Nine," and Mr. Johnson will preach the parable from the same theme.

Everybody is welcome at all of these meetings. Come out and enjoy them.

To The Public

Advertising is the art of bringing to the attention of a prospective buyer in a convincing manner, the things which one has to sell.

The best advertisement tells nothing but the truth, in simple, attractive words.

The merchant advertises his wares.

The mechanic his skill as an artisan.

And money institutions their service and security—which they offer to their patrons in helping them to safeguard their treasure.

We point with just pride to thirty-two years of honest service during which time we have earnestly striven to deserve the confidence of the community and our customers and the result of which effort has been amply demonstrated by our present success.

We can truthfully state that our great desire is not only to uphold the standard which we have raised during these long years, but lift it higher and to render any possible service to others, consistent with safety and justice to ourselves.

Your patronage is respectfully solicited.

JUDGE GIVES SENTENCES IN LIQUOR CASES

Heavy Fines Imposed. Another Indictment in Parkertown Cases

On Wednesday of last week, the Toms River court was crowded as though for a famous murder trial, with prominent citizens from every part of the county and with representatives from the Philadelphia North American and Evening Bulletin, and all the county papers.

Soon after court convened, the judge heard Counselor Wilfred H. Jayne, Jr., who represented most of the defendants. His plea in behalf of Arthur A. Zimmerman, was one of the strongest and most impressive ever heard in this court. Judgments were pronounced by the Court on a number of cases awaiting sentence for various causes. The particulars of cases mentioned in last week's Beacon and which we did not have time to print last week are as follows:

Arthur A. Zimmerman, commonly known as "Zimmy," who was arrested quite some time ago for keeping a disorderly house in Point Pleasant, was fined $1,000 and is to stand committed until the fine is paid. Ralph Kruger, bartender at Zimmerman's Marion Hotel, upon judgment of the Court, was fined $250 for selling liquor contrary to the law and is also to stand committed until the final payment of the fine.

Albert Wolf, one of the proprietors of the Submarine Grill in the Lexington Hotel at Lakewood, was fined $800 for selling liquor at that place. John Geller, the other lessee of the grill, was fined $100, which fine is to be paid at the rate of $5.00 per month beginning April 1st, 1921. A similar fine was imposed upon Edward Schaeffer, one of the waiters in the grill.

Frank Deludibus, proprietor of the Italian Spaghetti house in Sixth street, Lakewood, was committed to the county jail for thirty days and is to remain committed until a fine of $1,000 is paid. His charge was selling liquor without a license.

John Ryno, $150 fine, to be paid $10 a month.

Ralph Bornholtz, who was convicted of selling liquor to the county detectives on December 3rd last, was fined $150 and is to stand committed until said fine is paid.

Harry Gross, who was held on several charges was also tried but sentence was suspended.

David Henryson was fined $250 and Andrew Anderson $100 both for bootlegging. Newell Yale, also convicted for selling liquor illegally, plead not guilty and is to be tried on March 16th.

Frank Russo, of Lakewood, and Bernard Bradley were each fined $150 for having slot machines in their shops. Both are to stand committed until payment of fines.

Miss Jean Brookins, the 20-year old colored girl, who was arrested on February 15th on a charge of forging the name of F. B. Barton to a check for $60, was sent to the New Jersey Reformatory for women where she will remain until her good behavior warrants her discharge.

The case of Ralph Downes, who had previously been ordered by the Court, to pay his wife $8.00 each week, was also heard and again warned that should he fail to obey the rulings of the Court he would be sentenced to a term in the state prison. Downes' charge is desertion.

SENATE AGREES TO $50,000 FOR BAY HEAD-SQUAN CANAL

Trenton, February 28.—Senator Hagaman has obtained the endorsement of appropriation committee for a $50,000 appropriation this year for the Bay Head-Mansquan river canal. It is believed that another $50,000 will complete the canal. The $50,000 Senator Hagaman says, is really $25,000 which was appropriated last year and not used, and which must be re-appropriated this year, plus another $25,000 for this year. It is believed however that the precedent of $50,000 in one year will allow that same sum next year, and finish the work.

The Senate has also put its O. K. on Senator Hagaman's bill to reimburse Ocean county $13,000 on the Surf City road. This road cost $13,000 more to build than the engineer's estimate, and the county had to foot the bill, though it should have come from the state in the opinion of the Freeholders.

Other bills that passed the Senate this week, in which Senator Hagaman was the moving spirit, was the Newman school bill of Lakewood, applying to private school management only; and the fox bill, making fox-hunting lawful the while year.

Senator Hagaman has been named chairman of the Senate committee to confer with the Governor on the plans for larger funds for state roads and for the state department of institutions and agencies. This committee will go over the plan to bond the state for $40,000,000 for roads, and another bond issue of $16,000,000 asked to house the unfortunates of the state.

WEST CREEK LODGE TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

West Creek Lodge, No. 77, K. of P., will celebrate their eighteenth anniversary at O. U. A. M. Hall, West Creek, on March 11th at 8 P. M. Members of that order will be accompanied by their wives and sweethearts, sisters, mothers, or friends as the case may be.

Parkertown Man Indicted

Isaac Horner of Parkertown, indicted on Monday of last week for receiving stolen goods, another of the Parkertown cases, pleaded not guilty on Thursday and was held in bail for trial.

ANOTHER TUCKERTON BOY GETS HONORED POSITION

J. Carrol French Elected President of New York Plate Glass Insurance Company

J. Carrol French, son of Francis and Ella French, formerly of Tuckerton (the former now deceased and Mrs. French making her home with her son in East Orange), has been elected president of the New York Plate Glass Insurance Company. This action was taken yesterday at the annual meeting of the board of directors.

Mr. French has been identified with the New York Plate Glass since 1894 and has served in various capacities, advancing by reason of his capabilities to the position of vice president and secretary which he held up to his selection as chief executive of the company. He has many loyal friends among insurance men, generally who will wish him success in his broader field. He also enjoys the confidence of the staff and the agency force of the company.

Mr. French spent his boyhood days in Tuckerton and has many friends here who rejoice with him in his success.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MINUTES

Tuckerton, N. J., Feb. 24th, 1921. A special meeting of Borough Council of the Borough of Tuckerton was called to order by the mayor, T. Wilmer Speck. Councilmen present were Messrs. Heinrichs, Marshall, Allen and Gerber.

The following resolution was read and adopted:

Be it resolved by the Borough Council of the Borough of Tuckerton, N. J., in session assembled that we borrow of the Tuckerton Bank on Tax Revenue note the sum of $2,250.00 to pay amount due Board of Education for year 1920 and 1921.

The budget ordinance as amended and approved February 14th, was read by the Clerk. Councilman Heinrichs move that the ordinance be taken up for final passage. Motion was seconded and carried.

By roll call the Ordinance was adopted as read by unanimous vote.

On motion of Council an order was drawn for $2,250.00 to pay Board of Education for amount of school money due.

There being no further business the meeting adjourned.

JOS. H. BROWN, Borough Clerk.

The men who say, "It can't be done," are apt to wake up sooner or later and find themselves pushed out of the way by the men who are doing it.

Official reports say that about half of the soil in Bolshevik Russia is covered with forests. And the other half is covered with whiskers.

Elwood Cummings, who has been in charge of Henry Gifford's milk route, has resigned. Clarence Gravatt is now doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Simpson of Amstel, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Spencer. Mr. Simpson is well known in this section, having been station agent at both the Manahawkin and Whiting's stations. He was a prominent man in church work at the former town.

A surprise party was given in honor of Marion A. Crowley at the home of her grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Falkenburg, on Saturday, February 19, it being the occasion of her 9th birthday. The table was decorated in keeping with Washington's birthday, color scheme red and green. A jolly hour or so of games and refreshments, the guests departed for their homes, wishing little Miss Crowley many happy birthdays.

LADIES PAY VISIT TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The regular meeting of Tuckerton Chamber of Commerce was held in Red Men's Hall Friday evening and had as their guests, members of the Woman's Town Improvement and Civic Association.

During the first part of the meeting the routine business was taken up and a lively discussion on a proposed fish net bill followed. A resolution was adopted in favor of a bill to prohibit the fishing with nets between May 1st and October 1 of each year instead of the bill to abolish net fishing entirely in our bays.

E. A. Horner, chairman of the Navigation Committee reported progress on the commercial report of Tuckerton Creek. (This report has been completed and forwarded to the War Department since the meeting.)

Louis Gerber reported for the committee, who attended a conference with railroad officials, in the matter of train connections at Whiting's. He stated that they were informed that owing to congested conditions at the Camden Terminal that no change could be made at this time, whereby the afternoon train from Philadelphia could be started later to connect with the Central Railroad train from New York. It is thought that better train service will be effected for the coming summer.

Nevin B. Frazier and William H. Eves were elected to membership at the above meeting.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Margaret Lippincott, president of the Civic Association, gave an interesting address on the work of that organization and gave an outline of activities now being carried on.

The ladies have started the preliminary work of building a concrete cemetery and when completed will be an improvement that has long been needed.

A short, but pleasing program was rendered as follows: "America" and "Singin', America".

Obituary

Mrs. Mary Jones, wife of W. Otis Jones, died at her home this morning after an illness of nearly a year. She was 69 years of age.

Mrs. Jones was a faithful member of the M. E. Church and a staunch Christian and was active in Church work when her health permitted. She was suffered from heart trouble for some time, which trouble was the cause of her death. Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, Mrs. S. J. Ridgway, to mourn her.

Funeral services will be held at her late residence on Monday, March 7th at 1 P. M.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The engagement is announced of Ada C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Broome, of Beach Haven, to Mr. Charles Harrison Sperry, of Richmond Hill, L. I., and Brooklyn. No date has been set for the wedding.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish herewith to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to my friends and neighbors for their many acts of kindness shown me during my recent bereavement.

Some Wise Burglars

WE WERE TALKING a few days ago with a merchant who has been reading these little stories about the value of good bank service. He told us of an experience he had that shows the value of the checking system.

Burglars entered his store one night and blew open his safe. It contained about $150, but most of this was in checks—less than $50 of cash.

They knew those checks would be worthless to them for if they tried to cash them they would be caught and easily proven guilty of the theft.

This merchant said he received $9 in checks for each dollar in cash and that he always worried when he had much cash on hand.

Think it over.

MRS. J. M. CRAIG, of Los Angeles, Calif., who says no one can feel more grateful for what Tanlac has done than she does. Declares she has gained twelve pounds and her health is now better than in years.

"Of all the people who have taken Tanlac, I don't believe there is anyone who feels any more grateful to it than I do," was the statement made recently by Mrs. J. M. Craig of 874 1/2 East Fortieth street, Los Angeles.

"Like so many other families during the influenza epidemic last year we all had it, and my own illness, together with the worry over the rest of our family, brought on a case of genuine nervous prostration.

"I was so weak I couldn't even sweep the floor, and during the day I would have to lie down four or five times. I tried to walk but found out half a block was all I could stand before I gave out. Nervous spells came on me often.

"Every medicine I tried failed to reach my case until finally my husband urged me to try Tanlac, and I am indeed thankful that he did, for it proved to be just what I needed.

"The first two bottles didn't seem to help me. I guess that was because I was so extremely bad off, but on the third bottle I could tell I was improving and that gave me more hopes than ever of getting well.

"My improvement from then on was rapid and by the time I had taken five bottles of Tanlac I was better and stronger than I had been in years. I was sleeping soundly at night and had gained twelve pounds in weight.

"That was several months ago and from then until now I have been in good health as I ever was in my life and have been doing all the housework by myself.

"It is simply remarkable how Tanlac has built me up and I have told everyone of my friends and relatives what a wonderful medicine it is."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. Catarrhal Deafness requires constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. Circulars free. All Druggists. F. J. MENUS ARRANGED FOR USING RICE

This Easily Digested and Mild-Flavored Cereal Deserves Popularity.

IS RELATIVELY CHEAP FOOD

Combines Exceptionally Well With Meat, Cheese and Fruit and Vegetables—Supplies as Much Food as Do Other Cereals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

American rice is as good as that grown anywhere in the world; and with last year's crop about a fourth larger than ever before the housewife should plan to use more rice in the family meals, advise specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Except in the South, rice has never been so popular in this country as it deserves to be. It is relatively cheap, easily digested, so mild in flavor that it combines exceptionally well with meat, cheese, and fruits and vegetables of pronounced flavor. Found for pound it supplies as much fuel for the body as does white flour, cornmeal and most of the other cereals. Moreover, rice can be served in so many ways that no family need grow tired of it.

Good Served Hot or Cold. As a breakfast cereal, rice is good served either hot or cold with milk or cream or with fruit. If the rice is cooked in milk in a double boiler (one quart milk to one cupful dry rice), it is especially nutritious and has a richer flavor than when boiled in water.

As a starchy food to eat with meat some persons prefer rice to potatoes, and many others would like it if it were always flaky and well-seasoned. Boiled rice is not sticky when washed thoroughly, cooked in plenty of water, and drained as soon as the grains become soft. Overcooking and using too little salt are common mistakes that have prejudiced many persons against rice as a part of the meat course.

Rice and Fruit Make a Good Salad.

For use in soups, rice is one of the best of all the cereals. It may be cooked in the soup stock, or left-overs of cooked rice may be added just before the soup is served. Soups or gravies may also be thickened with the water in which rice has been boiled.

As a basis for scalloped and stewed dishes substantial enough to be used as the main course of a meal, rice is excellent. Relatively small amounts of some of the higher-priced foods can in this way be made to go further.

Many attractive salads can be made by combining cooked rice with left-over portions of fish, meat, or vegetables.

Rice desserts have long been standards in the American household, but new ones are constantly being added to the list. Some of the simplest rice desserts are best, and are particularly good for children. For example, either hot or cold boiled rice is very good served with jelly, jam, or marmalade, maple syrup, or cinnamon and sugar, or a sauce of fresh, crushed fruits.

The following recipes for cooking rice have been tested in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Boiled Rice.
1 cupful rice. 4 or 5 quarts boiling water.
1 teaspoonful salt.
Wash the rice through several waters, until all the loose starch is removed, and drain it. Have the boiling water—salted—ready in a deep saucepan; slowly drop in the rice, and allow it to boil rapidly for about 15 or 20 minutes or until a grain pressed between the thumb and finger is entirely soft. In order to prevent it from sticking to the pan, lift the rice, if necessary, from time to time with a fork, but do not stir it, for stirring is likely to break the grains. When sufficiently cooked, turn the rice into a colander or sieve, and after the water has drained off, cover with a cloth and set over a pan of hot water on the back of the stove or in the oven; or turn the rice into a shallow pan, cover with a lid, and place it in a warm oven for a short time. Treated in this way the grains swell and are kept separate.

A small bristle brush is a great aid in cleaning celery. Never rub soap on flannels, but prepare a soapy water for them. For sewing on shoe buttons, use a straight, three-sided carpet needle.

Cream of Celery Soup With Rice.
1/2 pound celery or chopped parsley, or asparagus. 1/2 cupful rice. 1 quart cold water. 1 tablespoonful butter. 1/2 teaspoonful salt. 1/2 teaspoonful paprika. 1/2 teaspoonful pepper. 1/2 cupful milk.

Put the celery or asparagus in half-inch pieces. Cook the rice and celery or asparagus in the water until both are tender. Press them through a colander and add the fat, the seasonings, and the milk, and reheat. This will make five or six average servings.

Oysters Scalloped With Rice.
2 cupfuls cooked rice. 1 cupful milk. 1 pint fresh oysters. 2 tablespoonfuls celery. 1/2 cupful chopped flour. 1/2 teaspoonful salt. 1/2 teaspoonful paprika. 1/2 teaspoonful pepper.

Place alternate layers of rice, oysters, and celery in a baking dish and pour over them a smooth white sauce made by melting the butter and stirring in the milk, the flour, the salt, and the pepper. Bake for 20 minutes. This will make eight or ten average servings.

Savory Rice Omelette.
2 eggs. 1/2 cupful cooked rice. 1/2 cupful milk. 1 tablespoonful butter or other fat. 1/2 teaspoonful salt. 1/2 teaspoonful paprika. 1/2 teaspoonful pepper.

Beat the whites and the yolks of the eggs separately. Mix all the ingredients, folding in the whites of eggs last. Pour the mixture into a hot, well-greased frying pan, and when it is brown, fold it over with a flexible-bladed knife. Turn the omelette out on a warm platter and serve immediately.

Rice and Tuna Fish or Salmon Salad. Remove the bones and skin from a can of salmon or tuna fish, and mince it finely. Add an equal quantity of cold boiled rice, and season the mixture with salt, pepper, and vinegar. Stir in enough boiled salad dressing to moisten it and set it away for a while in a cool place. When ready to serve, add a little crisp celery finely cut, and shape the salad in molds moistened with cold water.

VEGETABLE CHOWDER RECIPE

Best to Learn the Type of Dish and Not Be Confined to Any Definite Formula. Vegetable chowders offer a good way of using up vegetables and skim milk. It is best to learn the type of dish and not be confined to any definite recipe, say food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, for materials are often wasted thereby which should be used. The following typical recipe is a good one and suggestive of the kind of dish one can easily make:

1/2 pound salt pork or 4 medium-sized potatoes. 1 onion. 6 medium-sized to 3 cupfuls of skim milk. 1 pint stewed tomatoes. 2 tablespoonfuls of flour. 1 green pepper. 2 teaspoonfuls salt.

Put the bacon or pork, onion and pepper through the meat chopper and cook carefully about five minutes. Add the water and tomatoes and cook until the vegetables are tender. Cut the potatoes and carrots into small pieces and cook in water until tender; drain and add with the skim milk to the other ingredients. Thicken with the flour mixed with a little cold milk.

REFRESHMENT FOR CHILDREN

Danger of Overeating Lessened if Food is Served at Time to Take Place of Regular Meal.

Children's parties present special problems because they give the mother the responsibility for feeding other people's children. One danger of such occasions—that of overeating—will be lessened if the refreshments are served at such a time as to take the place of one of the regular meals of the day. The same care should be taken in selecting foods as in the case of the ordinary meals.

No hard, tough, rich, or highly seasoned foods should be served, say food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Cocoa or some other milk drink, fruit, sandwiches, ice cream or a gelatin dessert, plain frosted cake, and simple candies make a good bill of fare.

TRY OMELET WITH CROUTONS

Recipe Given for Making Dish That Will Tempt Appetites of Great Many People.

A well-made omelet or soufflé is a dish that tempts most people. Try this omelet with croutons for variety. Make croutons by cutting stale bread into one-third-inch cubes; fry in butter until crisp and well browned. Beat five eggs slightly, add four tablespoonfuls of cream or milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, and the browned croutons. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a hot omelet pan, and when the butter is melted and hot turn in the mixture. As it cooks prick and pick up with a fork until the whole is of a uniform, creamy consistency. Increase the heat and brown quickly underneath, then fold and turn on a hot platter; garnish with sprigs of parsley and serve.

A white window curtain that has worn out at one end can be cut down to make a dainty embroidery apron.

Heavy suds are good for cleaning the cloth tops of shoes. Apply with a stiff brush and rinse with a sponge.

To prepare pumpkins for pies cut pumpkin in strips, remove rind; run pumpkin through food chopper and cook in double boiler. It requires no water and is much less trouble than stewing.

Blouses Play Many Roles

IN BLOUSES, as in suits, it appears that designers are in a gracious mood and have been generous in giving us a variety of styles, developed in the usual sheer materials or crepe de chine, or wash silks and satins. To these taffetas, either plain or changeable, have been added, providing the most promising innovation in the spring styles, with the charm of novelty to favor it. But nothing will rival the beautiful and dainty georgette in the affections of women, except these sheer cotton fabrics that resemble it.

The story of spring blouses therefore opens with those made of georgette, followed by lingerie blouses of voile, batiste, lawn or similar cottons and closes with a chapter on various other materials and styles. This is a brief summing up of a long story, for there is so much variety in the development of blouses that everyday presents something new in details for consideration. Lingerie blouses employ fine tucks, drawn work and other needlework for their decoration together with the lingerie laces, val, cluny, Irish crochet and flit. The best of them are hand made, with a considerable number of tailored styles among them having high necks and long sleeves.

The most notable new feature in georgette blouses is the introduction of the "tie-on" styles. These are blouses that form their own girdle, being cut to extend below the waist line at the front and to form a sash or girdle at the sides and back. The georgette blouse is called upon to give the dress its character, transforming a street suit or separate skirt into a formal costume. The blouse pictured is an excellent model for such a purpose, made with a long peplum and handsomely embroidered. Soft crepe de chine is treated in the same way and both these fabrics provide a wonderful medium for lovely and lively colors, but the long peplum is unusual in the styles—an exception to the rule of short blouses for spring.

Those Frilly Taffeta Frocks

DESIGNERS just cannot keep away from frills when the season brings in a vogue for taffeta—especially when colors are lively. Taffeta is a sprightly fabric that provides most of its own trimming, and when two-toned, or changeable silks are presented, the trimming effects possible with them are not to be resisted. Even in dark colors and black, taffeta and frills remain cheerful and alluring. In the picture above a light, changeable taffeta at the left and a black, embellished with lace at the right, are among the most pleasing of the new afternoon frocks.

Both these dresses are made with plain underskirts and long tunics. The tunic in the light dress is cut in long panels rounded at the bottom, that recall the much-admired petal skirts of last year. The panels are edged with double frills of the taffeta, but there are no frills on the bodice. Its only decoration appears in a little needle work at each side which extends below the waistline and is repeated on each of the panels. This absence of frills on the bodice makes opportunity for lace or net collar and cuffs. The crushed girdle about the waist is made of the taffeta.

Deep cream or ecru nets and laces that are now basking in fashion's smile, find themselves placed to the best advantage on black. The dress at the right is handsome and original with full skirt, long tunic, pointed at the bottom and a moderately wide flounce with frayed edges, cascaded down each side. Its bodice with square neck and elbow sleeves is extended below the waistline and finished with a little apron-flounce of lace, going away with a girdle, and there is a cluster of velvet leaves and cherries at the left side. Lace at the neck and frills of it finishing the sleeves, make this a becoming model that its owner will feel well dressed in on many occasions.

Girls' Party Frock. Girls like best, for a dancing dress, this season, taffeta with scalloped flounces or frills, either with or without a tulle overtunic, or a girdle in some contrasting color. The scalloped hem is the sign patent that the gown is of the winter's newest.

School Dress for Young Miss. A charming school dress for Miss Fourteen-year-old may be made of checked woolen material in blue and green. The dress is cut straight

ENVIED HIS SMALL DAUGHTER POINT HE HAD OVERLOOKED

Duck Hunter Would Have Given Much for the Power She Exercised Over Ducks. Until That Moment, of Course, Thug Had Not Realized He Was Breaking the Law.

Betty, four years old, lives in a modern apartment in Brooklyn, facing Prospect park. She knows all the squirrels in the park and the birds that stay there in the summer.

For several weeks Betty has been lonesome because all her feathered friends went in search of warmer weather, but now she has plenty of company again. Wild ducks are her newest friends.

The ducks coming alight in Prospect park lake and generally remain a week or two to rest and feed. They are wary of men, but not afraid of children, if Betty is an example.

The other day she was walking with her father, a duck hunter. Betty noticed she couldn't get near the ducks while she was with her father, but when she left him and ran along the shore alone she found she could approach them. After a little coaxing the ducks swam up and ate pieces of popcorn from her hand.

"And I have to crawl through a swamp on my hands and knees to get within gunshot of them," mused her father.—New York Sun.

Wireless on River Boats. The day of the jangle bell and manual steering in steamboning on the Mississippi river having given way to electric buzzers and power steering by levers, now comes the wireless as a means of operation, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The War department has shipped from Washington top wireless outfits to be set up in St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans and upon the six towboats which will comprise the new experimental power fleet for the St. Louis-New Orleans barge operation. Grounding on a bar will no longer mean a walk of many miles from the bank to the nearest telegraph station to summon assistance. The S O S will go out by radio from the boat itself.

Lead Lives of Austerity. There are two monasteries of Trappist monks in the United States. One 48 miles south of Louisville, Ky., and the other at Dubuque, Ia. These monks, when they receive full membership, consecrate themselves to five vows—poverty, chastity, obedience, stability and reformation of manners. They are under a vow of silence and are governed by these rules:

No meat, fish, eggs or wine at any time. Only one meal a day, consisting of vegetable soup and boiled bread and rice, about fifteen or twenty ounces altogether. During Lent, only one meal of bread and water.

Viewing Life Seriously. "Charley Dubkins has quit wearing silk shirts." "What's come over him?" "A stern realization that the nation must practice economy." "Is he going to work?" LOWER CALIFORNIA

Communication makes for civilization. The airplane promises to make accessible many hitherto obscure regions, not along main lines of steamer or railway travel.

For example, the average American had little reason heretofore to go to Lower California. Recently, however, this peninsula has been the resting place for airplanes in flights from the Pacific coast of the United States to the Panama Canal.

Frederick Slupch writes to the National Geographic society as follows: "The long, boot-shaped peninsula that swings down off the left-hand corner of the United States belongs to Mexico and is known on Mexican maps as 'Baja' or Lower California. Early Spanish maps of America showed California as an island, due, no doubt, to limited explorations of this peninsula.

"Scarcely known as it is to the average American, this 800-mile-long strip of rocks, peaks, brush-grown mesas, and rare, fertile little valleys is a favorite haunt for many Yankee naturalists, fishermen, and big-game hunters; and here and there, in the pure-favored, well-watered, grassy spots of the higher ranges, hardy American cattlemen have built their adobe homes, where they enjoy the limitless freedom of vast unfenced areas. The Circle Bar company of Ojos Negros Ranch runs cattle over a leased territory of two and a half million acres, and a British corporation holds title to something like fifteen million acres.

"Away down at peaceful, picturesque La Paz, where Cortez repaired his schooners and where, centuries later, Walker, the Yankee filibuster, raised his flag, another Yankee today runs a busy little tannery, turning out 600 sides of good leather every day, for an American shoe factory. Here and there, in hill and valley, Americans are delving for metals or growing the staple frijole.

"But the country as a whole, owing to its many desert, waterless areas, is but sparsely settled, and, as one writer says, 'in all its turbulent, romantic history, since the halcyon days when Sir Francis Drake dropped his pirate anchor in Magdalena Bay, no wheeled vehicle has traversed its rough and tortuous length.'

"Rich as are its mines and fat as are its herds of cattle, its chief source of wealth lies in the cotton-growing regions around Mexicali.

"At the Colorado delta, at the head of the Gulf of California, which separates the Lower California peninsula from Sonora, more than at any other point on the whole border, the interests of the United States and of Mexico are closely joined. This is due to the singular topography of that region (part of it is below sea-level) and to the diversion of water from the Colorado river. In the opinion of many irrigation engineers and political students, this peculiarly delicate problem of irrigation and water rights, as between planters on the American and Mexican sides of the line, respectively, can be solved satisfactorily only by some joint treaty between the two republics, involving either the fixing of a neutral zone or the sale of a small strip of territory."

WILL ELEPHANTS GO THE WAY OF BUFFALOES?

Will the African elephants soon have to be protected, as are buffaloes in the United States, lest they become extinct?

The peaceful progress of farming is the menace which the elephant faces. Already the South African Cape council has decided to exterminate the elephants because they despoil crops and sometimes kill agricultural laborers.

Sir Harry Johnston, famous African authority, tells of his experience with African elephants in a communication to the National Geographic society:

"If, after many years of trials, the African elephant is pronounced to be hopeless as a domestic animal (and it should be remembered that most male African elephants in captivity have shown themselves to be hopelessly savage), then at least for its magnificent ivory the creature is worth preserving as an asset to the state. If the Indian elephant shows himself to be more docile than the African elephant, it must be remembered, on the other hand, that he is of very little value for his ivory.

"One day a baby elephant was presented to me by an Uganda chief. It is a sad thing to relate, but three men were killed in attempting to capture the first elephant. I had expressed a wish one day for some elephants to experiment with in domestication, and the natives, with their usual desire to please me, were so ardent in their determination to gratify my wish and so determined in their pursuit of the young elephant that the mother elephant knocked over and killed three of them. But finally they succeeded in their object, capturing the calf, and to my great surprise it trotted into camp behind one of the men.

VALUE OF A NAME

In the days of the French empire there was an officer who had done such meritorious service in subordinate ranks that his superior recommended him for promotion to Napoleon. The young officer labored under the misfortune of having a very outlandish name. His parents had made an absurd patronymic even more so by adding to his baptism a ridiculous cognomen. When Napoleon

"This little creature was at the time only four feet high. In two days it had become perfectly tame, and would follow a human being as readily as his own mother. It was easy enough to feed him with milk, because all that was required was a bottle with a long neck. This bottle was filled with cow's milk diluted with water, and poured down the elephant's throat. Soon all that one had to do was to place the neck of the bottle in the elephant's mouth, and the intelligent creature would lift his trunk around the neck of the bottle, tilt it up, and absorb the contents. For several weeks the elephant thrived and became a most delightful pet. It would allow any one to ride on its back, and seemed to take pleasure and amusement in this exercise. It would find its way through diverse passages into my sitting room, not upsetting or injuring anything, but deftly smelling and examining objects of curiosity with its trunk.

"At the same time we had in captivity a young zebra, which was also to be the pioneer of a domesticated striped horse. These two orphans, the elephant and the zebra, became greatly attached to each other, though perhaps there was more enthusiastic affection on the part of the elephant, the zebra, at times, getting a little bored with constant embraces. Alas and alack! both elephant and zebra died eventually from the unwholesomeness, to them, of cow's milk."

MALMEDY: WALLOON ISLE RELINQUISHED BY PRUSSIA

In patching together the picture puzzle of European nations it is more nearly racial and historical units the peace conference commission on Belgium claims approved Belgium's demand for Malmédy.

Malmédy long formed one of those alien racial clusters that seem to cling like barnacles to many a European boundary line.

In the case of Malmédy and the region about that town a group of Walloons was left in Rhenish Prussia when the historic Benedictine Abbey of Stavelot-Malmédy was cut in two in 1815. Malmédy fell to Prussia, while six miles to the west, across the pre-war Belgian border, is Stavelot.

The latter town was the seat of the abbey which was independent until the Lunéville peace of 1801. The abbey fell to France until its partition 14 years later. The abbey was founded in the Seventh century and later its abbots ranked as princes. They ruled many small villages along the Ambleve, on which Stavelot is situated, and along the Warche, which flows through Malmédy.

Charles Martel, grandfather of Charlemagne, who ruled the Franks while he let their kings reign on, won a decisive victory over Neustria at Stavelot 1200 years ago.

Malmédy lies in a pretty valley of the afore-mentioned river, 20 miles south of Aix-la-Chapelle. The town had less than 5,000 population before the war. Dyeing, paper-making and tanning were its industries.

The term Walloon is used to designate those Belgians who speak either French or a French dialect. The Walloons of Belgium desired Malmédy's restoration for lingual as well as for sentimental reasons. In Liege and Namur a movement for the revival of Walloon as a literary language—for it had been so used until about the fifteenth century—was well under way when the war began. In the midst of German speaking neighbors Malmédy and its environs preserved the old Walloon dialect, whereas among many Belgian Walloons it has been supplanted by pure French.

THE STRAITS OF MESSINA

Between the rocky masses of Sicily and the "toe" of the Italian peninsula, there is but a narrow line of sea, known as the Straits of Messina. Yet this ribbon of water might be ocean-wide, judged by the diverse civilizations of Italy and its island neighbors.

The Sicilian and Italian banks, which border the Straits of Messina for nearly 25 miles to the east and west, are among the most luxuriant to be found in a cruise of the Mediterranean. Magnificent golden groves of lemon and orange, and orchards of pomegranate, with their brilliant red fruit, contrast wonderfully with the flowers of the almond trees which perfume the whole region.

The straits are entered from the Tyrrhenian sea, on the north, at the narrowest point, the distance between Punta del Faro on the Sicilian shore and the mainland lighthouse on Punta Pezzo being not more than two miles. The whole of the Calabrian coast is thickly sown with villages, some clinging to the beach, while others clamber up the sides of the well-wooded hills which culminate in the towering Montalto, rising to an elevation of more than a mile above the sea. Beyond the straits to the southwest, looms ever-threatening Etna, the highest volcano in Europe.

The most important city situated on the straits is the once magnificent seaport of Messina, which boasted a population of 150,000 inhabitants before "the world's most cruel earthquake" of December, 28, 1908, tossed nearly a hundred thousand lives away.

The harbor of Messina is the largest and safest in the kingdom of Italy, with a depth of more than 30 fathoms. Before the great calamity it was visited annually by more than 5,000 vessels which brought cargoes heard this name pronounced he straightway refused to grant the promotion on the ground that he did not believe that any one afflicted with such a name could become great or hold a high position with dignity.

Indians' Use of Oysters. Long before the advent of the white settlers on the shores of America the Indian tribes living near the Atlantic coast subsisted to a large extent on oysters. In fact, many of the Indians of that period not only made of wheat, cotton, wool and hardware, and took away in exchange lemons, oranges, almonds, wines, olive oil and silks.

Homer did not accord a definite habitation for his terrible sea-creatures, Scylla and Charybdis, but mariners familiar with the perils of the rocks on the Italian side of the straits and with the strong eddies near the harbor of Messina, saw in the mythical monsters an explanation of such dangers. Scylla was supposed to be a horrible creature with six heads and a dozen feet, who barked like a dog. She dwelt in a lofty cave from which she rushed whenever a ship tried to pass beneath, and she would snatch the unlucky seamen from the rigging or as they stood at the helm endeavoring to guide their vessels through the perilous passage. Charybdis dwelt under a rock only a bowshot away, on the opposite shore. The second creature sucked in and blew out seawater three times a day, and woe to the ship caught in the maelstrom of its mouth!

NEW REBELLION IN GARDEN OF EDEN

"Mesopotamia, Upper and Lower, vies with Egypt in claiming the honor of being the home of ancient civilization," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society, quoting from several communications concerning the land of Adam and Eve where the British recently sent more troops because of native uprisings.

"Mesopotamia comprises the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Here flourished the Chaldean, Babylonian, and Assyrian empires. The city of Bagdad, with all its glamor of mystery and magic, is in the heart of Mesopotamia.

"This was the richest land in the world, the granary of the ancients; yet, in spite of all that it has been, it today lies largely waste, the desert sands have encroached upon the fertile fields, while the clogged canals have turned other portions into swamps and marshes.

"What population there is—not more than one million—is of Arab origin and the Arabic language is spoken throughout. There is, in fact, a very distinct dividing line between the Arabic and the Turkish-speaking portions of the former Ottoman empire. This boundary corresponds with the line of the Bagdad railway from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf. It is for the exploitation of this rich land of Mesopotamia that the famous Bagdad line was built.

"Syria closes the east end of the Mediterranean and is bounded on the north by the Taurus mountains. The Syrian and Arabian deserts limit further settlement to the east and south. But in connection with world commerce it (Syria) has always been closely related to the fertile valleys of the Nile and the twin Mesopotamian rivers, and its commercial life of tomorrow cannot be divorced from that of Mesopotamia.

"Mesopotamia is as fertile today as when it was the birthplace of human history and when the civilization that developed there had only the Nile valley as a competitive field.

"Various factors delayed the inevitable reopening of the historic trade route across Syria and Mesopotamia in modern times.

"Nowhere, however, did trade follow the railway to a greater extent than along the Bagdad line, and in the spring of 1914 Aleppo was a thriving commercial center of German trade. At the hotels engineers and merchants crowded the dining rooms and talked of a mighty future in Mesopotamia. That summer, war came, and the burning question of styles was rapidly succeeded by one of food enough to keep body and soul together.

"Fifty miles west of Bagdad, along the Euphrates, lies the region now commonly regarded as the Garden of Eden. To irrigate this Eden and to reclaim millions of fertile acres around Bagdad was the stupendous task to which the Turkish government addressed itself.

"At Mussayeb, on the Euphrates, a pre-war traveler saw 4,000 Arabs digging like moles in the Babylonian plain, making a new channel for the river. In the dry bed of this artificial channel an enormous dam was built.

commendable use of oysters at meal time, but they actually used the shells as coin of the realm. These commercially inclined redskins of by-gone centuries converted their oysters into a medium of exchange by drying and smoking them. They would then string them on twigs and carry them to the tribes living in the valleys between the mountains considerable distances from the coast, where they would be used in purchasing buffalo meat and hides and various other articles that were unobtainable along the coast.

HOME TOWN HELPS

STICK UP FOR HOME TOWN

Really Good Citizen is the One Who Has Its Interests Close to His Heart.

There is something the matter with the man who doesn't care for the place he lives in; who doesn't come back to it with some degree of rapture and relief. The world citizen, who boasts that all places are alike to him and any place is home where he hangs his hat, misses out of his life one of the first and strongest incentives to decency and duty—which is the desire to win the general esteem and good opinion of the community in which one dwells. There is no reward in money which compares in value with the golden treasure of a good name. If a man cheats and lies and steals and bears false witness, he may build up a great fortune and still be plagued at night with the knowledge that those about him hold a low opinion of his worth and works. Doctor Elliot of Harvard has told us that it is the favorable opinion of a man's home town that is worth earning and retaining. One of the neighbors might be wrong; but if we take the summation of what many are saying, we probably shall arrive at a just estimate.

Merely to live in a place doesn't make one a citizen. Your heart will be where your work has been put in to help forward any good thing that is going. Of course, one must be true to the immediate family circle and look well to the roof-tree and the doorway of one's own household first of all. But that intimate indoor devotion, commendable as it is, may become a selfish sentiment that takes no thought for those measures of public welfare in whose benefits we all share.—Philadelphia Ledger.

WINTER AND SUMMER SHRUB

Evergreen is Recommended as the Best of All—Contrasts That May Be Made Pleasing.

Taking the United States as a whole the average time that deciduous plants are without foliage is at least five months. During this period the home is occupied as continuously as in summer, and the surroundings should be as attractive as possible, say landscape gardeners of the United States Department of Agriculture. Evergreen shrubs, both coniferous and broad leaved, maintain a color throughout the winter not otherwise obtained. Used in moderation, they are a distinct addition at this season. On the other hand, many deciduous shrubs have attractive winter characters, the most striking being those bearing bright-colored berries. Then there are barks of many shades of brown, green, and yellow, that if properly arranged make pleasing contrasts and add to the winter beauty.

The short blooming period of the average shrub makes flowers the least important of the characters to be considered. In spite of this the color, character, and time of blooming should be considered as well as the behavior of the dying flowers, whether or not they fade to a conspicuous and undesirable color and hang on unduly or pass away without a distinctly unsightly stage.

Concerning the "Knocker." The appeal to smite the "knocker" unfortunately is timely almost at any time, and in any community in the United States. It has been said that all kinds of people are required to make the world and apparently a few kill-joys cannot be avoided even in comparatively small bodies of population. Indianapolis has no more than its normal proportion, although some of the lot may be inordinately energetic, but even with all their activity they are relatively harmless. They are more annoying than hurtful and should be squelched more as public nuisances than as derelicts to the community.

Such is human nature that it is easy to get many people to listen to scandal or calumny, even though they do not believe what is said and have no respect for the source from which it comes. The "knocker" generally is pigmy-minded and has nothing to say that would be worth hearing. His only hope to get attention is to repeat some bit of disparaging information he has heard or to malign and abuse those whose names are sufficiently prominent in official, business or other circles to attract notice to his vapors.—Indianapolis Star.

HIGHEST ORDER OF SNOBBERY

Alleged Prayer Made by English Divine Would Have Made Great Hit With Thackeray.

A reporter, gathering material for a Sunday special on "Why Churches Are Empty," called on Bishop Leonard of Cleveland.

"I don't admit that our churches are empty," Bishop Leonard said. "Certainly the churches that are really democratic, really Christian, are full. Of course, we have a few churches that cater to the rich. In these a certain number of vacant pews are to be found.

"The kind of church I am referring to abounded in England in Queen Victoria's day. There's a story about one such church. It was in the domain of a certain baronet and the vicar used to conclude his Sunday prayer in this wise: "God bless Sir Peter; God bless also her dear ladyship; bless the tender youth of the two ladies likewise. We would furthermore unite in beseeching Thee, O Lord, to have mercy on the poor governess and all the miserable sinners of this parish. Amen."

Nothing Else to Do. "Algernon, I cannot be engaged to you any longer." "Why not? Some whim, I suppose." "Because yesterday I married Mr. Flubdub."

Object Lesson Given Prisoner Altered His Determination to End Life by Rope.

In a certain prison there have been several attempts to commit suicide. This desire to die has given the wardens much trouble and anxiety.

A few days ago a warden entered a cell to find the inmate preparing to hang himself. He was standing on his stool and trying to throw the end of a strip of torn blanket around one of the cell bars. The other end was around his neck.

"You're making a mess of it," said the warden. "Let me help you." In a trice the blanket rope was about the bar and the noose properly fixed.

The warden gave a tug. He tugged and tugged until the man was raised from the stool—until he was standing on air. There he was held until his eyes and hands made eloquent appeal for release.

"That's the way," said the warden, releasing him. "Now try it yourself." But the prisoner has not tried it. He had decided to live.

Rural Sarcasm.

It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache and neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a small trial bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment, you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.—Adv.

Better Convert the Enemy.

Any business act which nets one friend and one enemy is a bad proposition. For the enemy can accomplish more harm as a knocker than the friend can do as a press agent or booster.—The Nation's Business.

Barnegat

Mrs Theodore Herbert was a guest of Mrs. C. Brown at Seaside Park.
 Miss Rebecca Lewis, saleslady in Abramowitz' store, is spending a few weeks with her sister at Jersey City Heights.
 All signs are falling this winter, the ground hog included but we are apt to see changeable weather this month.
 Some of our early gardeners are preparing the ground for the spring planting. "The early bird catches the worm."
 B. M. Cramer has returned from a visit at Asbury Park and other localities nearby.
 Capt. Wm. H. Stevens of Staffordville was a week end business caller.
 Miss Sadie Randolph is recovering from her recent illness and is able to be about the house.
 Mr. and Mrs. Frank Somers were received in the M. E. Church on Sunday last.
 Mrs. Samuel Gaskill has returned to her home.
 The Sewing Guild of the M. E. Church met at Mrs. Stevenson's on Monday evening last.
 Rev. Pennington Corson requests all conference collections to be in by next Sunday.
 Mrs. Samuel Sprague has returned being absent from town on account of her health.
 Two stormy Sundays in succession. All other signs failing, we hope we will not have the third.
 Apples up in New York State are selling for $1.00 per bushel. Here they are at the rate of nearly $9.00 per bushel.
 The first prize speaking contest of the Barnegat Elementary School was held at the Opera House Friday evening last and was a decided success. The house was filled, many having to stand. Fifteen took part in the contest. The song and dance by grades 1 to 4 were very pleasing. The song "Rheumatism" by 10 boys and girls of grades 3 to 6 was encored and had to be repeated. The piano solo by Miss Virginia Blake was also well rendered. The judges were Dr. Joshua Hilliard of Manahawkin; Mrs. Jennie Cramer, Principal of Manahawkin school; J. Wade Wimer, Principal of Tuckerton High. The following prizes were awarded, presented by Dr. Hilliard:
 First, Beatrice Ridgway.
 Second, Alice Robbins.
 Third, Ethel Horner.
 Fourth, Kenneth Brown.
 Fifth, Francis Mills.
 Sixth, Virginia Blake.
 The contests were very close. Addresses were made by the judges and much praise is due the instructors for their tireless drilling and the presentation of such a fine program. Many from Manahawkin, Beach Haven, Waretown and other points were in attendance.
 Mrs. Sara B. Hornburg is attending a meeting, connected with school work in Atlantic City.
 Hilliard Allison of Cedar Run was a Monday business caller.
 Barnegat is in a progressive state, with a good Fire Department, Bank, with latest burglar alarm device, first class water system, High School and good fishing and clamming.
 The proceeds of the Measuring social held at the M. E. Church on the evening of February 22nd, was for the benefit of the organ fund and the result was very pleasing to those in charge. Frank Somers handled the measuring machine and Augustus Tolbert showed his skill as collector and added war tax according to his height, ranging from 5 to 10 cents.

Mayetta

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Cramer are visiting relatives in Philadelphia for a while.
 Ross Salmons, now employed in Washington, D. C., is here with his mother, Mrs. Lena Salmons for a few days.
 Benjamin Cramer of the C. G. S., was home this week with his family, as was also Clarence Robbins.
 M. L. Cramer is still making improvements rebuilding and painting.
 Ernest Ford is on the sick list. We wish him a speedy recovery.
 Alonzo Soper of Barnegat, was in town this week.
 S. O. Lamson is on the sick list. We hope he will soon be around again.
 Mrs. Della Cimore has been spending some time in the city, but has now returned to her home here.
 Fred Ward was a caller in Barnegat on Saturday.
 Mrs. Andrew Ramage is home from the hospital, much improved in health.
 John L. Salmons lost his horse a few days ago.
 Mrs. A. B. Salmons is quite ill. We hope she may soon recover. Her Philadelphia to take care of her and daughter, Miss Leona came home from her son, Earl, of Atlantic City, come home on Saturday.

The Old Roman Household.

In the days of old Rome the culinary department of an elegant establishment boasted pans lined with silver and pulls of various descriptions richly inlaid. There were egg frames that would cook twenty eggs at once, and pastry molds shaped like shells, and an infinite assortment of griddles, frying pans, cheese graters and tart dishes.

Cupid's "Shaft"

A honeymoon down a coal-pit sounds a bit weird and dark; but that, at least, was the first trip made by bride and bridegroom after the church ceremony. The bridegroom was a coal-pit manager, and his new wife had never been down a coal-pit, or even seen one, till the wedding day. At her own request they went from the church, donned suitable attire, stepped into the cage, and were taken to the bottom of the shaft, where they had a rousing reception from miners armed with pick and shovel.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME
 Eastern Europe

Americans who contribute to the Red Cross would feel amply repaid for their generosity if they could see what it means to hundreds of thousands of war weary sufferers in the Balkans. Here is a widowed Roumanian mother with her five children just after a visit to a Red Cross relief station. All are barefoot and the boy at the left is wearing clothes made of scraps from the battlefields. They have just received winter clothing, food and condensed milk for the baby. Similar work is being done for Russian refugees driven from home.

Long Railway Tunnel.
 The longest railway tunnel on the American continent is the Rogers Pass tunnel on the Rocky Mountain division of the Canadian Pacific line, which is five miles in length and runs under Mt. Macdonald, in the Selkirk range. It was constructed at a cost of more than $10,000,000. Previous to its being put through, the Hoosac tunnel on the Fitchburg division of the Boston & Maine railroad, 4 1/2 miles in length, was the longest tunnel in America.

False and True

By MARTHA Mc. WILLIAMS

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Why did they call me Linnet? Of all names! The rest of the world is saddest when I sing!" Linnet Ware said plaintively to her newest victim, Selden Moore.

He laughed, softly answering, "Praise be for that. In this day of musical prodigality, you're an oasis."

"In a desert of melody! Thanks for them kind words," Linnet flung back, settling herself comfortably in a nest of rainbow cushions. Yet even they could not make her look washed out, so vivid was the yellow of her hair, the violet of her eyes, the healthy scarlet of her very perfect mouth.

Her skin had the texture of a camellia petal—she was further shapely, and extra well finished. There was a look of race to accent all this.

What wonder that she had gone rather to the heads of her countrymen—at least that motley of them lucky enough to know her? This in spite of the fact that she danced without enthusiasm, was a dub at tennis, and refused even to look on at golf.

The spills were few—she had apparently as much influence over hunters as over men. Anything bittable became pliant to her will after a few miles—to the disgust of Amazonian horsewomen who got results with malice aforethought.

She was so confoundedly, so confoundedly feminine, with her side saddle, her soft collar, her picturesque untidy tangle that had always a bright knot tucked amid its folds, it was disgusting to have her almost always in the first flight, and not winning prizes solely through refusing to compete for them.

She mounted herself well but not extravagantly. "Any good horse will go—if you get the best in him," she explained more than once. Which moved her much tired mother to add: "If only you'd be as sensible about men as horses, it would take a load off my mind and heart."

Being interpreted, this meant, concretely, a shrinking estate, and the Wendell King millions. All through Linnet's bringing up Mrs. Ware had the millions in the back of her mind. Retrieving them was poetic justice, since they had been unjustly diverted from Linnet's father through his elderly uncle's marriage with the beautiful Widow King.

He had settled them upon her in the first flush of infatuation—when the pair went down with their ship upon a long wedding tour, the wrong was put beyond righting. Wendell, a quiet, kindly, dull-witted lad of fifteen, had inherited them from his mother in trust for possible children. So it had been out of his power to do more than make handsome gifts to the Wares.

Linnet, an elfin, no-colored child, had appealed only to his pity until at fifteen she bloomed with that beauty of the devil which works so many evil miracles. Seeing her round and flush and glow, his plan of life changed. When she was twenty she must marry him, and begin a fairy tale existence. Until then let her play to her heart's content—he knew he could trust her—besides, there was her mother.

Mrs. Ware was far from heartless—indeed, love for her child was the spur to her worldliness. She said nothing to Linnet of the future beyond advising a wise choice if any. She knew Linnet would rebel against a cut-and-dried family arrangement—much better let her continue to think of Wendell as a liberal pseudo-kinsman who regarded her as a child to be teased and spoiled. When she had had her fling playing with the youngsters Linnet might sensibly drift into love with her dotting fairy godfather.

Linnet showed a zest in playing with the youngsters equal to her zest cross-country, yet until the era of Selden Moore her mother had never been the least uneasy. For her girl had played the game with the fine reserve of a gentleman, making her safety in numbers and surrounding herself with an aura of untouchableness beautiful to see.

But Moore was different. Toward him she glowed as a gem, a star—often when he had left her she sat silent, smiling happily or rousing to hug her mother tight and whisper: "Is there anything like real love?" Moore was only rich enough to be a competent idler. Living was, he said, business enough for a gentleman—wherefore why swamp himself with the risks and the turmoil of active work; when he was so much more valuable as an example of moderation?

Linnet wrorely sensed the question, but her mother pondered it deeply.

To her it meant either that Moore had no thought of marriage, or that his wife needs must bring with her an income equal to his own. Linnet could not do that—already living expenses were trenching upon their modest principal—she must either marry money—or become a drudge, else a pensioner upon Wendell King. Impossible to think of either alternative—so impossible Mrs. Ware lost sleep and flesh in considering them. Watching Linnet narrowly, she noted a subtle change in her. She laughed more and smiled less—was by turns overbearing and overlistless—also, she had no more joy in playing the game of hearts. A bad sign, thought the anxious mother, especially now that she was well past nineteen.

She had not found Prince Charming, plus even a scant million—it was unlikely that she would find him before Wendell King required a decision. She could not blame him—he had been almost unreasonably patient and trustful. He would not try to force Linnet's inclination, but it would hurt him sorely to find he had waited in vain.

She sat thinking things over upon a stormy afternoon when Moore was the only caller at tea time. Despite a lovely flush of greeting Linnet had gone to the window and stood looking wistfully out into the rainy muck. Suddenly she said: "I wish everybody could be home now, warm and comfy, with dry feet and good dinners ahead. That's what ought to be—"

"Agreed—we'll make it so—when we come into your fortune," Moore said teasingly. "We may not have to wait very long—I heard yesterday the insurance folk are worrying a lot over Uncle Wendell's million-dollar policy."

"I don't know what you can mean," Linnet cried, coming toward him white and shaking. "He mustn't die—he is so good—I'd rather die myself—"

"What! When you're his only heir?" Moore bantered.

Mrs. Ware looked at him fixedly. "You are—misinformed," she said drily. "Wendell King could not leave Linnet his fortune—it is strictly entailed, falling direct heirs, it goes to distant cousins."

Moore's face was a study. "I—I am—sorry—I thought I knew," he said, stammering. "Now I must be going. Au revoir."

Linnet did not hear him. She was at the phone calling breathlessly a number her mother smiled to hear. She shut her ears against her daughter's voice, but her heart sang at the timbre of it—something new and wonderful rang there. Presently Linnet came to her, becoming like a rose, to say: "Mother, he is perfectly, splendidly well. We are to dine with him and go to the opera. I'm so happy, hug me tight!"

"You are going to be happier, darling," the mother murmured softly—in her heart a mute thanksgiving that her daughter's heart had gone through the false to the true.

Few Pence Once Day's Wage.
The use of beaver in making hats came into being about 1200, for Chaucer mentions it. Flanders turned out the first. Hatters' guilds began to appear in England, and apprentices were taught the art of making felt hats and decorating these. Nine cents a day was then a hatter's wage.

In the sixteenth century the first hat stores began to do business, and hats, heretofore as widely decorated as poetic fancy, began to be standardized. In other words—style became to rule. By 1600 styles were very changeable. Shakespeare's plays speak of varied types of hat then worn.

Our Books and Ourselves.
We should ask questions of our book and of ourselves; what is its purpose; by what means it proceeds to effect that purpose; whether we fully understand the one, and go along with the other? Do the arguments satisfy us; do the descriptions convey lively and distinct images to us; do we understand all the allusions to persons or things? In short, does our mind act over again from the writer's guidance what his acted before; do we reason as he reasoned, conceive as he conceived; think and feel as he thought and felt; or, if not, can we discern where and how far we do not, and can we tell why we do not?—Dr. Thomas Arnold.

Brazil Rises to Emergency.
The federal government of Brazil is considering plans for the issuance of $50,000,000 in bonds to be used for the erection of homes for working people in Rio de Janeiro to relieve the housing shortage. The homes are to be sold on payments spread over a period of 20 years, with very low interest charges.

well authenticated are these: That in winter, under the ice is heard a rumbling, groaning sound. So much so that, although the winter trail lies straight across it, the Indians refuse to travel it, and go all the way round. That in summer there rise periodically great bubbles of gas of some kind, that bubble, and bubble, and finally die away. I talked with those who have seen this phenomenon. Then two things I found for myself. First, the lake is very deep. It is sparkling and clear, and shelves rapidly, a few feet from shore, to an unknown depth. Second, it does teem with fish, because I saw them, although I do not know the variety, for having no proper tackle, we did not catch any. The ones I saw would average two to three pounds. No monsters. But who can say what may inhabit those sparkling depths? Ugh!"

All Sorts of Queer Beliefs Cluster Around What is Known as Wonder Lake, in Alaska.

"I think the next thing I wanted to speak of was Wonder lake," says H. H. Lumpkin, writing of "A Hike in Alaska" in Boys' Life. "It is not such a tremendous sheet of water. Not nearly so large as many other Alaskan lakes, being some three miles long by a half mile wide. It lies in a sort of depression, its surface about three or four hundred feet above the level of Moose creek. Its bed was evidently scooped out by glacial action somewhere back in those dim ages they tell us about. You can see, even now, the evidences of the glacial moraines. Some plow, those glaciers!"

"Now, here are the things they tell of that lake. One, that it has fish so large that a specimen that a man hooked pulled him out of the boat into the water. If that isn't a good fish story, then you try to go me one better. Other stories that I think are

THE SANDMAN STORY

FOX'S HEALTH HINTS

S AID Mr. Fox one night as he ran over the hill to the farm, "Those chickens do not know what is good for their health and I must tell them." Now, the chickens were living in a house by themselves and Mr. Fox knew right well they were foolish and too old enough to know anything about him; so he crept up to the window and looked in by standing on his hind legs.

"You poor little dears," he said in a loud whisper, "it is a sin and a shame the way you are treated." The chickens were all light sleepers and open came their eyes at once, and there stood Mr. Fox smiling in the most friendly manner, and how were they to know he was not as kind as he looked?

"Peep, peep," cried all the chicks. "We want some mush." "Of course, you do, you poor little dears," said Mr. Fox. "but don't make such a noise for all the old hens will eat it all up; now be quiet." The little chicks stopped at once, for they well knew that the old hens often ate all their dinner when no one was looking.

"You are badly treated, indeed," said Mr. Fox. "Here you are shut up in this very unhealthy place while all the old hens live in a nice, big house."

"You all want to live to be big hens or roosters, don't you? I know you do," he said, without waiting for an answer.

How It Started

THE first stamp for letters as a revenue-producing agent was introduced into Great Britain by Sir Rowland Hill in 1840. For a while the stamps were simply bits of paper, which had to be pasted on the letter by the purchaser. The first adhesive stamp was the English "one-penny black." It was not until 1854 that perforated stamps came into use. Before this all stamps had to be cut apart.

THE HAIR

A LUXURIOUS head of hair will make even a homely face lovely, and will redeem an otherwise hopelessly plain woman.

It seems curious that so small a percentage inquire about the hair. Its bad arrangement can spoil a face. Its good arrangement make a plain one attractive. When people emerged from a state of savagery, hair began to be something more than a protective covering. In biblical times it was a disgrace to be bald, and the word "baldhead" was a term of reproach. The ancient Britons were so proud of their blonde flowing hair that the worst punishment they could devise for an unfaithful wife was to cut off her hair. It is written that Caesar's most cherished privilege was that of wearing his laurel wreath all the time, as he, poor man, was bald!

"Nope; not more'n ten feet," said the boy, and the city chap moved on.

Rich "Poor Lo" Keeps His Wife

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN.

Young "Poor Lo" keeps his wife—which is to say that the marital complications of Jackson Barnett, wealthy Cherokee Indian, have now been straightened out by the courts and he will continue indefinitely to live with his bride of last May in their vine-covered cottage at Henryetta, Okla. And why pick on them for a story? Well, because—

Jackson Barnett is the John D. Rockefeller of the race.

He is 72 years of age, illiterate and an incompetent in the eye of the law.

His wife, white and about half his age, was accused of kidnaping him and forcing him into marriage.

He has defeated Uncle Sam's court action to have the marriage annulled and to restore him to the care of his guardian, after proceedings unique in the history of the courts.

He has topped off a long list of benefactions by establishing and endowing the Jackson Barnett Hospital for Indians.

Barnett's original allotment of land was near Glen Pool. Six years ago oil was struck on his land and riches began to pour in on him. The federal government protected his rights, since he is an incompetent in the eye of the law. Later Uncle Sam further safeguarded his wealth by appointing as his personal guardian Carl J. O'Hornett of Henryetta, Okla.

O'Hornett took his ward to Henryetta. There he established him in a comfortable home on 36 acres of farm land. He provided him with a housekeeper, body servant and cook. He stocked up the farm with livestock and poultry. He saw that the richest old Indian lacked nothing within reason.

Then Anna Laura Lowe appeared upon the scene—white, about half his age and good looking. Just how she managed things nobody seems to know. But last May she and Barnett left Henryetta in an automobile, sped over the state line into Kansas and were married in Arkansas City.

O'Hornett and Cato Sells, United States commissioner of Indian affairs, brought suit to have the marriage annulled and the old Indian restored to the care of his guardian. It was charged that the white woman was an adventuress, had kidnaped the aged redskin and had forced him into marriage.

The Oklahoma supreme court appointed Judge A. M. Jackson commissioner to hear evidence in the case. On the report of the commissioner the court dismissed the case. Commenting on the decision, the commissioner said:

"The Indian and his bride appear to have stood the test of matrimony. It was agreed that Barnett and his wife be permitted to go on a honeymoon of a month. The honeymoon over, they still maintain they are satisfied, so after conference with all parties concerned, it was agreed to recommend to the supreme court that the case be dropped."

Presumably the Interior department and Commissioner Sells know how rich is Jackson Barnett. But outside of certain known amounts any estimate is guess-work. In the court proceedings to annul Barnett's marriage O'Hornett alleged that his wealth was in excess of $1,000,000.

One estimate is that in the six years since oil was struck on Barnett's land the wells have yielded 14,000,000 barrels, and that his royalty is one-eighth. This would represent 1,750,000 barrels, in addition to bonuses. This estimate places Barnett's income at about $50,000 a month.

Jackson Barnett is believed to be the richest Indian alive. And that is saying a good deal, for many of them in Oklahoma have "struck oil" and are very wealthy. In the 1920 report of the secretary of the Interior are found these facts and figures:

The Indians in Oklahoma constitute nearly one-third of their race in the United States and about five-sixths of them are members of the five civilized tribes.

There are on the Osage reservation in Oklahoma nearly 6,000 oil wells, producing from 2 to 1,800 barrels per day each, with a daily total production of about 50,000 barrels. During the year three oil-lease sales were held, offering at each sale approximately 200 quarter-section tracts. Approximately 98,886 acres were leased at these sales for a bonus consideration of $12,110,100. Oil leases embracing 540,868 acres are included in lands leased for gas. In addition to bonus, a royalty is paid on oil of 16 2/3 per cent and upward, and the same on gas based on a value of 18 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for gas at the well. Nearly $18,000,000 were received by Osage Indians from oil and gas during the fiscal year.

As to the five civilized tribes, the superintendent's receipts and disbursements for the year were nearly $48,000,000, the largest of any year in the history of that office. There were 3,500 oil and gas leases disposed of during the year. Nearly $4,800,000 in bonuses and royalties were received by the restricted Indians. Federal income tax in excess of $350,000 was paid by 242 restricted Indians.

When America entered the World War, the Indian was a willing volunteer. The American Indian is—or used to be—the finest natural fighter the world ever saw. The bucks of service age enlisted in large numbers, made splendid soldiers and covered themselves with glory. Many were decorated for extraordinary gallantry under fire.

During the war Barnett showed his martial spirit in the only way it was possible for him. While others of his race shouldered arms and marched away to France, there to do battle side by side with their white brethren, Barnett was too old to heed the war dance. He soon showed, however, that while age prevented him from taking an active part in lowering the colors of the Hun, he could do the next best thing and support Uncle Sam through the medium of his vast riches.

When the government, after entering the World War, issued the call for financial assistance Jackson Barnett answered as readily as the younger members of his tribe answered the call for men. He was one of the first of Oklahoma county citizens to show his patriotism in the purchase of Liberty bonds, and by most liberal contributions to all of their war aids. As each successive bond issue was placed on the market, Barnett became a heavy purchaser, with the result that today he is a millionaire in Liberty and Victory bonds alone, owning more than $1,500,000 worth of them.

A GREAT GIRL

By HATTIE OXFORD.

Five animated wearers of sweaters which in hues approximated the perennials of Mrs. Bayle's old-fashioned flower garden, were bending over the beds with delighted exclamations. These five young women, Mrs. Bayle's roomers, were saturating themselves with the summer morning outside before going to their respective places of business.

The postman handed Miss Old Rose Sweater the mail for the house. She separated a card from the rest, an announcing: "That's for Dwight Elwood, our interesting new roomer from the West. Want me to read it to you?"

"That would be awfully cheeky," Miss Lavender Sweater objected.

"Oh, do, do," coaxed Miss Orange Sweater and Miss Blue Sweater, with mischievous dancing eyes.

"All right, here goes: "Dwight, my dear boy—Yesterday for one happy—"

"I'm not homesick any more," he said. "You folks here are just like the good, curious folks 'way back home."

He picked up the card and handed it to her. "Go on, Miss Analle, the girls want to hear the rest."

"I don't want—I won't read another word," Miss Analle declared, blushing and looking extremely uncomfortable. She handed back the card.

"Very well, then," he said briskly. "I'll read it to you."

"Dwight, my dear boy—Yesterday for one happy moment I thought I heard your footsteps on my veranda. Then I remembered the thousands of miles between us. I am thinking of you constantly and wishing all kinds of good things for you. I will answer your nice, long letter soon. Don't let any of the New England girls take away my place in your heart. Devotedly, "Your Chum Next Door."

"There," he exclaimed with a satisfied smile, "aren't you glad I have a girl back home who isn't ashamed to let the world know how much she thinks of me?"

The girls murmured with a conspicuous lack of enthusiasm that his girl was certainly worth having.

Just then four of the girls got on the electric car. Ruth Holt, in the lavender sweater, started to walk, as her office was barely half a mile away. Dwight Elwood asked permission to walk with her.

"I work in the building opposite yours," he said; "so glad I can have company."

The young man spoke at length on the excellence of the girl back home as they walked along, on her cool quick-witted management of her car in emergencies, on the quantity, quality and diversity of the work she did for her country in war time—

"And her letters, Miss Holt—I'm going to read you extracts sometime. They are so bright in spots they'd fairly put your eyes out. Oh, I tell you, Priscilla Arden's a great girl. She lives right next to where I live with my father and aunt—my mother died when I was a baby—and has always been my jolly good chum."

Not long after this Dwight began to act as if he had forgotten Priscilla Arden. He stopped reading extracts from her letters to Ruth, and rarely mentioned her name. Ruth wondered a great deal.

Three seasons passed and spring came. Dwight sought until he found Ruth in a vine-covered summer house in the lower end of the garden one day. He had something on his mind. Off it rolled right then and there. It seemed to him as if a million ar lights were making luminous the fact that Ruth and himself were just made for each other. He spoke his convictions. He was bound that the girl should see as he saw and agree to his life-together proposition.

But the girl jumped up and faced him squarely, eyes flashing: "Confess you made a similar fervent speech to your girl back home before you left. No doubt you'll make another to still another girl before long. Shame on you for forgetting that fine girl."

"Ruth," the young man said, "I could tell you something which would immediately set your mind at rest, but I want to feel you trust me without any more explaining."

"Miss Holt, a letter for you."

Ruth took the letter from the maid. She opened it, and read the signature first: "Priscilla Arden." Surprised? She was. She was absurdly apprehensive, too. So, Dwight had told the girl and the girl was going to upbraid her. She started to read:

"My dear Ruth—You are Ruth to me already. So glad you have decided to make Dwight happy; but you can't take my place in his heart—no one can. You will have a big place of your own. How tired I used to get before the boy went away, trying to be youthful. Oh, the strain of autoing and tramping with him; for I'm growing old. I'm old enough to be his grandmother—in fact, I am his grandmother."

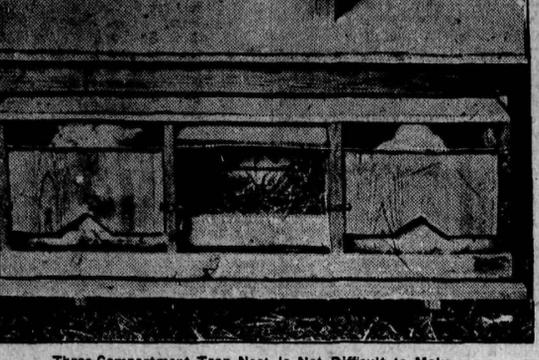

Ruth stopped reading. "His grandmother, his dear old grandmother," she cried out, feeling as if she would burst with joy. "Oh, oh, oh!"

After she had shown Dwight the letter, she heard him singing: "Oh, my grandfather's girl was a great old girl."

QUALITY OF HEN FLOCK VASTLY IMPROVED BY USING TRAP NEST

Three-Compartment Trap Nest is Not Difficult to Make.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The most prepossessing hen is not always the most industrious layer. She may be the loudest cackler, but if her owner uses trap nests she cannot fool him. He can check up on results. The trap nest is so arranged that when the hen enters she is confined until released by the attendant. Specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say that trap nests may be used to advantage by the best breeders of hens. It adds mechanical precision to judgment and experience in developing the flock and maintaining it at a high standard of egg production. It tames the birds and tends to stimulate laying. It furnishes definite knowledge of the traits and habits serve as a top. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire at a sharp angle should extend from the front of the nest to the wall to prevent hens from roosting on the top.

The trap nest is so constructed that when the hen enters, her back raises the door. This releases the catch or trigger and allows the door to close. The catch, regulated by a screw or nail at the lower inside edge, should be set so that it just holds the door. It should have a washer on the screw to prevent sticking, and a guard to keep away the nesting material. A variation may be made for large or small hens by shortening or lengthening the catch which supports the door or by adjusting the size of the triangular notch in the door itself.

The following directions are given by the department's poultry specialists for constructing a three-compartment trap nest:

Cut four 3/4-inch boards for ends and partitions, 12 inches wide by 19 inches long; enough 1/2-inch boards, 3/8 inch long, laid lengthwise, to cover the top, back and bottom; and one strip, 8 1/2 inches long and 1 1/2 inches wide, for the front of the nests. Cut three pieces of 3/4-inch boards, 12 inches long and 3 inches high, to hold the nesting material away from the door.

Nail the top, back and bottom to the ends and partitions, insert the 3-inch strips in the nests, and make the guard, nailing it to the left side of the nest. Bore a hole in the catch large enough that the catch will move freely when screwed into position on the side. Place a washer on the screw between the catch and the side of the nest. Insert a screw at the lower edge of the catch to stop it when set, so that the catch will just hold the door.

Build Seven-Eighths-Inch Doors. Make the doors of 3/4-inch material, 12 inches by 6 inches, and cut a triangular notch in the center, 4 inches wide at the bottom. Put two screw eyes in the top of the doors and bore holes in the front of the nests, 2 inches below the top (inside measurement), through which a 3-16-inch wire is run to support the doors.

Attach to the front of the nests a narrow strip upon which the hens can jump. Place a button or block of wood on the front of each partition to hold the door when the nest is closed.

If the nests are to be placed directly below the dropping board, a wire top should be used with a 5-inch strip of wood on the front edge of the top to stiffen them.

MAKE WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS

Tendency to Eradicate Disease in Areas Containing Many Farms is Latest Development.

A noteworthy development in bovine tuberculosis eradication is the tendency to free from that disease areas containing many farms. The annual report of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, just issued, lists the following reasons, which made tuberculosis tests of all cattle within their boundaries during the last fiscal year: Clay county, Mississippi; Island county, Washington; Clatsop county, Oregon, and the District of Columbia. Department officials believe that eradication of tuberculosis will proceed more rapidly, even than in the past, when it is taken up on the area basis.

WINTER SHELTER FOR DUCKS

Breeding Fowls Must Be Furnished With Some Protection Against Cold Rains and Snow.

Although adult ducks are so well protected by their feathers that they can stand a great deal of dry cold weather, the breeding birds must be furnished protection from the cold winter rains and snows and they must have a dry floor on which to roost. Therefore a suitable shed or building should be made available for the fowls before the coming of winter. The building may be quite simple in construction and much less expensive than one for hens.

BLACKHEAD IS MOST DEADLY

Cases of Infection Are Few Where Turkeys Are Given Free Range at All Seasons.

Of the infectious diseases of turkeys, blackhead is the most destructive. It is notable that whenever the climate and range conditions are such as to permit of the turkeys foraging for most of their feed from the time they are hatched until they are marketed, cases of blackhead are infrequent. No positive cure for blackhead has been found, but free range and care not to overfeed are very important factors in raising turkeys successfully.

SOY BEANS RANK VERY HIGH

Practical Value as Forage and Grain Warrants Much Greater Use, Says Ohio Station.

Soy beans rank very high in feeding value. According to the Ohio station 20 bushels of soy beans will carry 40 per cent more protein and 25 per cent more fat than 50 bushels of corn, or 80 per cent more protein and 65 per cent more fat than two tons of clover hay. The practical value of soy bean forage as well as grain warrants a much greater use of the crop.

EXCELLENT FEED FOR SHEEP

Silage Made From Corn on Which Grain is Just Beginning to Harden is First-Class.

Finely cut silage, made from corn on which the grain is beginning to harden, is first-class sheep feed, and may be fed in limited quantities with the best of success. About a pound and a half to three pounds daily to a ewe weighing around 150 pounds will supply about the correct amount of silage. At no time should you attempt to feed silage spoiled in the least, or of inferior quality.

Vanity in Animal's Custom. The investigating scientist who has been studying wild animals has learned that members of the feline tribe do not play with their long claws on the bark of trees to sharpen them, as is popularly supposed, but the antics are a display of vanity on the part of the male, to show how agile and powerful he is.

RESILVERING MIRROR

It is usually safest to send the mirror to a resilvering works. It may be repaired by making use of another mirror as follows: Clean the bare portions of glass by rubbing gently with fine cotton, taking care to remove any trace of dust and grit. With point of penknife cut upon back of other mirror around a portion of the silvering of required form but a little larger; upon it place a small drop of mercury. The mercury spreads immediately, penetrates the amalgam to where it was cut with the knife, and the required piece may be lifted and removed to place to be repaired. Then press lightly the renewed portion with cotton; it hardens almost immediately and the glass will present a uniform appearance.

PAYING ON THE "NAIL"

The English expression is to pay on the nail. It is said that in the center of the Limerick exchange is a pillar with a circular plate of copper about three feet in diameter, called the nail. On this the earnest money of all stock exchange bargains must be paid. A similar custom prevailed at Bristol, where four pillars called nails stood in front of the exchange and were used for the same purpose.—London Mail.

SCOTTISH LEGEND

The ancient stone, where the Scottish St. George is supposed to have slain his dragon is still to be seen over the door of Linton church. The glen where the alleged slaying took place is about 200 yards from the main road, close to the Cheviot Hills and about four miles from Linton. According to tradition the "worm," or serpent, a monstrous creature, lay in the glen, and did havoc amongst the cattle, sheep, and other animals for miles around and many attempts were made by the knights of old to slay it, with disastrous results to themselves, until a certain William de Somerville came along and successfully accomplished the feat. For this act he was granted all the lands in the parish of Linton.

TUCKERTON FOLKS ENJOYING PLEASANT SOUTHERN WEATHER

Frank R. Austin and his niece, Miss Sophie Morey, who are at Fort Myers, Florida, for the winter are enjoying their trip. Mr. Austin in a letter to a business associate in Tuckerton writes as follows:

ON SANIBEL ISLAND, GULF OF MEXICO,
February 28, '21
Your letter received and as I spent two days at the Lee County Fair and the next three days at the Chautauqua, which closed yesterday. This is the first chance I have had to write. Today we drove from Fort Myers down the Boulevard 15 miles to Punta Rosa, and there took the boat to Sanibel Island out in the Gulf of Mexico. I have four ladies in the party, Sophie and a friend and two ladies from Canada that we met on our trip down from Jacksonville. This island is made up entirely of shells, in mounds from 4 to 10 feet high, I judge it was formerly a vast reef of small shell mounds, and the drift and sand filled them all in, making one solid island. There is a light house, three or four cottages and a factory for tanning shark and porpoise hides. We saw 9 big sharks from 6 to 10 feet long besides lots of smaller ones that had just been landed. I have just finished my dinner under the shade of a clump of palm trees that are growing in one of these small shell mounds, close to the water line of the gulf, the shells are from the size of a dime to as big as a couch, all shapes and sizes but mostly fluted and from a quarter to a half dollar in size. Our folks are now all busy on the strand gathering the pretty ones and so I am improving this chance to rest and write you. I hear you are having the heaviest snow storm of the season. We are keeping in the shade at 85 as the sun is too hot to stand long. Our nights average 60 degrees and days about 80 but it is a little warmer here on the gulf until the wind springs up. I see several fishing parties nearby. They are catching mackerel and sea bass. I had a mess of soft crabs last week but they are not shedding much yet and I have been so busy I don't go very often. We are eating peas, beans and new potatoes out of our own garden, planted in December. They surely do taste good. I helped pick 200 oranges and 100 tangerines the other day and have had a photo taken in the grove where we got them. Sophie helped to hold down the limbs while we cut the tangerines, as they are now very scarce. I have a bunch of grapefruit with 7 on one stem or from one bunch of blossoms. They weigh 15 lbs. and stem is about size of a lead pencil, so you see we are living on the fat of the land or in this case it is fruit juice. I shall be glad, however, when the cold weather is over up there and I can return to good old Tuckerton as there is no place like home. Kind regards to all.

COMMITTEE REPRESENTING OCEAN COUNTY AT DAYLIGHT SAVING HEARING

A committee representing the Ocean County Board of Agriculture consisting of Fred Webster and Cornelius Thompson, and County Agent White, attended the hearing at Trenton on daylight saving on Monday, February 14.

There was a very large delegation of farmers from all over the State present to protest against the enactment of the Daylight Saving Law. Many prominent farmers spoke against this act and showed where it would cause hardships to the farmers.

None of the men speaking in favor of the act could give any other reason for the passage of such an act than that it would give a great many people an extra hour in the day for pleasure.

The Pennsylvania Railroad had a large delegation representing its interest. These men showed where daylight saving would be a great hardship to the railroad industry of the country, unless it were a National Law.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Bee Schools
Community Bee Schools were conducted at Manahawkin on the evenings of February 15 and 16 and at Greenville on 17 and 18, by F. G. Carr, Deputy State Bee Inspector, co-operating with the County Board of Agriculture.

These schools gave an excellent opportunity for all interested in bees to come in close touch with the newer methods of bee-keeping.

BETTER FOOD AT LESS COST FOR WISE BUYERS
"Eat it in season; buy it in quantity."
Coined by the Bureau of Markets of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture in combating high cost of living as it affects food supplies, this slogan is held by market officials to indicate the quickest solution of many of the ills and wastes in the every day method of supplying the home table with fresh farm products. It is being adopted by women's clubs throughout the state in their domestic science educational work.

Investigations by Market Bureau agents and by the State Federation of Women's Clubs have shown that the city family which can afford it the least often pays the most for fruit and vegetables because the average housewife buys in disregard of seasons and further because prices in small quantities always are high she forms the habit of purchasing apples, potatoes, onions and other farm produce by the quarter-peck or in other small measures. Price investigations have shown that there is often a spread of 300 or 400 per cent. between the price at which farm products can be purchased in the original package of a half-bushel or larger and the rate paid for the same products in smaller packages.

The Bureau contends that the buyer for the average family can feed her household better and cheaper if she acquaints herself with the seasons during which different crops are most plentiful and then buys as often as possible in the baskets or original packages. Where a basket of fruit or vegetables is too large to be consumed by one family while fresh, neighbors can buy it between them, saving cost and assuring freshness.

Not only the consumer but the farmer is helped by this rule, the Bureau shows, for the public is ready and expectant for each crop as it ripens and comes into market. This provides a good demand for food crops at the peak of the season, gives the buyer a fair price, the farmer a fair profit, and eliminates the enormous waste in gilded markets that are due to lack of intelligent demand.

The Modern Funeral

THIS is a day of ideals. In every profession and walk of life a standard has been raised—a standard of honor and right dealing that is based upon our most noble instincts and appeals to the best that civilized humanity knows and cherishes.

It has led to betterment all along the line—the worker, the merchant, the scientist—all know and acknowledge a purer and nobler creed of dealing with their fellow-man than the conditions of older days and cruder habits of thought sometimes made possible.

But, even yet, there are all too many—even though they be in the minority—whose ideas of professional ethics are still framed upon the old, crude lines framed when might made right and "caveat emptor" was considered the soundest of all business maxims.

more confusion as it did last year, and the railroad companies feel they are unable to bear the strain, both financially and mentally.

It is sincerely hoped by the farmers of New Jersey that such a law is never reported favorably from the committee.

FORD TON TRUCK CUTS DELIVERY COSTS

THE Ford One-Ton Truck has cut "delivery costs" for thousands of business houses, farmers, factories, corporations, etc. Thousands of owners attest to its economy of operation and maintenance. They call the Ford a real "necessity" in their business. Ask us for a copy of the "Ford—A Business Utility." Read what pleased owners say. It will cost you nothing.

Built of tough Ford Steel with the ever-dependable Ford motor transmitting power to the aluminum-bronze worm-drive, with demountable rims and pneumatic tires, front and rear, together with the mechanical simplicity, have helped to give the Ford Ton Truck the lowest possible operating and maintenance cost. It is the lowest-priced one-ton motor truck on the market. Add to these practical merits our after-service organization, which insures every truck owner of genuine Ford parts and skilled Ford mechanics, so that the Ford Truck need never be out of service.

To sum up: Serviceability, flexibility, power, durability, lowest first and operating costs, service, all together, are the Ford qualities which cut down expense and will help you cut your "delivery costs."
