"LET GEORGE DO IT"
or
The Editor's Roof

George Hickman broke the drought in this locality. When he opened the roof of the Beacon Building on Monday, to put on new shingles, it began to thunder, and in a few hours we had a refreshing shower and it made George work like "Time" to get the new shingles on. Tuesday, he tried it again, tearing off a wide strip, in an hour or so, the rumbling in the sky commenced again and by four o'clock there was a "regular" shower, almost a cloudburst. As we are in the process of preparing the type for the Beacon tomorrow (Thursday) another shower is advancing rapidly. If we had known George was such an important person, we would have started on that roof three or four weeks ago. However, it wasn't our fault, as George has been so very busy he couldn't come until this time. We will have to ask your pardon for delaying the much needed rain—the roof isn't finished yet.

The arrival of Walter Entwistle and Ben Dayton on the scene to give the Beacon Building a much needed coat of paint, was the probable cause of the cloudburst on Tuesday. Thursday—More rain.

Towns Threatened by Big Woods Fires

FLAMES SWEEP THOUSANDS OF ACRES IN ONE OF THE BIGGEST FOREST FIRES EVER SEEN ALONG THE SHORE. CLOSE CALL FOR TUCKERTON.

One of the biggest forest fires ever witnessed by residents along this section of the shore, raged on a stretch several miles in length in the woods north of Tuckerton all day Friday. Fires in several sections had been burning for three or four days previous to Friday and were not considered dangerous as there had been only a light southerly wind. Early Friday morning a heavy northwest wind developed and within a few hours it was seen that Tuckerton was in danger. The fire, which reached enormous proportions in a short time, swept toward the town at a rapid pace. Every condition was favorable for it as there had been no rain for several weeks and the woods and underbrush were exceedingly dry.

The apparatus of the Tuckerton Fire Company was taken to Grassmere on North Green street and it was only through the heroic efforts of hundreds of men that this section of the town was saved, as it was here that the big fire came through.

Several hundred volunteer fire fighters under the direction of Firewarden Joseph E. Abbott, put up a gallant fight all day Friday—their work of back firing along the New Bridge road leading to Nugentown, prevented the fire from reaching other sections of the town. It was estimated that a thousand men were on the job.

About 11.30 just when the men were having their hardest fight to prevent the fire from getting started in the town, a slight change of the wind to a westerly direction took place and was probably a big factor in saving several homes. No buildings were burned.

At Nugentown the flames swept around the Buelow farms and several buildings caught fire and here, it took a number of men to save their homes.

During the day the fire crossed the Tuckerton Railroad above Greenwood Cemetery and swept the entire stretch between Tuckerton and Parkertown and at the Ball Park, it crossed the main road and went through Price's swamp to the Bay.

Nearly all day Friday Tuckerton was covered with a blanket of smoke and when the blaze was at its height many people packed their valuables preparatory to a quick flight to safety.

There were fires in several sections of the county last week. On Monday, Beachwood, near Toms River, was threatened and on Tuesday Ocean Gate residents had a difficult time stopping a stubborn fire near that town.

A force of men worked all Friday night back firing the old stage road between Tuckerton and New Gretna to prevent a fresh outbreak of the blaze. This work proved effective and the fire was stopped at this point.

The fire, which burned over thousands of acres and destroyed an enormous amount of valuable woodland and timber, was hard on wild game and it is said that several young deer were caught. It is thought that many rabbits were burned. All day Friday these animals were seen running before the fire looking for places of safety. A fox was seen near the New Bridge and numerous turtles were found in roads and open spaces.

It is not known where the fires in this section started.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the residents of Grassmere, wish to take this opportunity for expressing our thanks and appreciation to our friends in Tuckerton, who so valiantly assisted in saving our homes from destruction from the forest fire last Friday. # MEANS BIG CROP

Wheat in Western Canada Has Excellent Start.

Germination, in the Rich Soil of That Country, is Speedy—Farmers on Road to Wealth.

It was on the 18th of May that the writer received a letter from a friend in Western Canada dated the 15th of the same month. Information was conveyed in the letter that its author had traveled over a considerable portion of Western Canada. He had covered most of the settled portions, and from those he had not covered he had secured information that amplified his own observations of conditions throughout all the vast area of that country. He found seeding of wheat practically completed, and placed in a bed of earth that was in a condition that warranted speedy and healthy germination. This was borne out by evidence that he was a witness of wheat that had been in the ground four days that was already breaking through, and that which had been seeded for a week was well above the ground, the field being as green as a new pasture plot. Everywhere this condition existed. It will be pleasing information for those who have friends in Western Canada—in any part of it, no matter where they may be—to learn that conditions have opened up in such a splendid way, and to be advised that the prospects were never brighter than now. When it becomes known that conditions are so satisfactory, many who were waiting, uncertain what to do in the matter of moving, will doubtless now come to a decision. With the opening of thousands of homesteads, which took place on the 1st of May, there was a rush to take advantage of the opportunity to secure 100 acres of excellent land free, within speaking distance of a railroad. The low railway rates granted by means of a certificate issued by Canadian government agents, located at different points in the States, make it possible to make a trip of inspection at small cost.

Oat and barley farming are branches that add considerable to the wealth of the farmer who desires to make money quickly. That these grains can be grown so successfully, and easily, makes it possible to go into other branches of farming industry, that give stability to it, wherever they are carried on. They are dairying and cattle-raising. There is an excellent market for the product, and the climate aids materially in assisting it, while the native grasses, as well as cultivated varieties, bring the cost of production to a much lower figure than is possible on lands that are much higher in price, with no better yielding qualities. Then, again, it is amply shown that fodder corn can be grown with great success, and that sunflowers, which it has been fully proven are little behind, if any, in food quality, thrive wonderfully. In fact, these two fodders, in addition to which may be added that of alfalfa and sweet clover, in which Western Canada farmers are well ahead with growers elsewhere, have brought about a period of silo-building which promises to eclipse any effort in this line made anywhere on the continent. In Manitoba alone, one firm is building two hundred this year. In Saskatchewan, many orders have been placed; in one small district in Alberta, where fifty were erected last year, another fifty will be built this summer. That there will be a thousand silos erected in the three provinces this year seems to be a conservative estimate. To the farmer in the States, who knows the advantage of the silos, who is interested in the fodder to be grown to fill them, what does this mean?—Advertisement.

Declarations of Independence

MECKLENBURG COUNTY COURTHOUSE, MADE DECLARATION MONUMENT

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN.

HERE is of course but one Declaration of Independence—the Declaration of Independence we celebrate on the Fourth of July. It makes no difference that Richard Henry Lee's resolution "That these united colonies are and of right ought to be, free and independent states—" was introduced in congress June 7, 1776; that it was adopted July 2, and that the document itself was not made public until July 5, and was not signed by the members of congress until August 2. It was on July 4, 1776, that the vote on the Declaration itself was taken, and the document ordered "authenticated and printed." So the Fourth of July it is—and ever shall be.

Nevertheless, there are other Declarations, and some of them come pretty near being Declarations of Independence, except that they were not adopted by congress. The truth is that independence was in the air for some time before July 4, 1776. The leaders preferred to say that they were "petitioners in arms," even after Lexington and Concord and Bunker Hill, and many of them doubtless had no determination for independence. But the people in many localities were ripe for independence. So it is not to be wondered that some of them made declarations.

One of the earliest of these Declarations was that of the people of Mendon, Mass., March 1, 1773. It speaks for itself, and here it is:

"That all men have naturally an equal right to life, liberty and property.

"That all just and lawful government must originate in the free consent of the people.

"That the good, happiness and safety of the people is the great end of civil government.

"That a principle of self preservation, being duly planted by the God of Nature in every human breast, it is necessary, not only to the well-being of the individual, but also to the order of the universe, as attraction and cohesion are to the preservation of material bodies and the order of the natural world.

"That a voluntary renunciation of any power or privileges included in or necessarily connected with a principle of self preservation is manifestly acting counter to the will of the great Author of Nature, the Supreme Legislator, that a right to liberty and property is absolutely inalienable.

"That the claim of the parliament of Great Britain to the power of legislation for the colonies in all cases whatsoever is abhorrent to the spirit and genius of the British Constitution, to the letter of our charter and to the most obvious principles of reason and to the essential natural rights given us by God Almighty; and, finally,

"That the introduction of standing armies in a free country in time of peace, without the consent of the people, is a violation of their rights as free men."

Then there is the Declaration of the people of Hanna's Town, May 16, 1775. On that day the men of that portion of the colony of Pennsylvania lying west of Laurel Mountain and embraced in the present limits of the county of Westmoreland, then, and for long afterwards claimed by Virginia to be within the limits of Augusta county, in the Old Dominion, assembled at Hanna's Town, then the seat of justice, to take counsel on the situation. The first two paragraphs of the document adopted are as follows:

Bats Breed in Cave

In a mountain near Montaban, Luzon, Philippine islands, there is a large cavern, with many branching chambers, and a central dome 200 feet in height, perforating the mountain top, from which, in December last, an American officer saw issue a solid column of bats, which flew rapidly, in a straight line, for 15 minutes, disappearing over a mountain range in the direction of Manila, without a single bat having left the column, says the Christian Science Monitor. American engineers stationed there told the officer that the flight of the bats had occurred at practically the same time each day during two years. From other sources it was learned that the phenomenon had been observed for at least 30 years.

The Keokuk dam at Keokuk, Ia., the largest power dam in the world, is located at the foot of the Des Moines rapids. The rapids are about 12 miles long, and have a fall of 24 feet. There are 30 turbines and electric generators, which produce a total of over 300,000 horsepower. The high power transmission lines run to various cities in the Mississippi valley, furnishing industries with power created by the Father of Waters. The cost figure was $27,000,000.

INDEPENDENCE HALL, PHILADELPHIA

habitants of Westmoreland county, held at Hanna's Town, on May 16, 1775, for taking into consideration the very alarming situation of the country occasioned by the dispute with Great Britain, resolved unanimously, that the parliament of Great Britain by several late acts has declared the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay to be in rebellion; and the ministry, by endeavoring to enforce said acts, has attempted to reduce the said inhabitants to a more wretched state of slavery than ever before existed in any country; not content with thus violating their constitutional and chartered privileges, they would strip them of their rights of humanity, exposing their lives to the wanton and unpunishable sport of a licentious soldiery and depriving them of the very means of subsistence.

"Resolved, unanimously, That there is no reason to doubt but the same system of tyranny and oppression will, should it meet with success in Massachusetts, be extended to other parts of America; it is therefore become the indispensable duty of every American of every man who has any love for his country, or any bowels for posterity, by every means which God has put in his power, to resist and oppose the execution of it; that for us we will be ready to oppose it with our lives and fortunes. And the better to enable us to accomplish it we will immediately form ourselves into a military body to consist of companies, to be made up out of the several townships under the following association, which is declared to be the Association of Westmoreland County."

And, finally, there is the famous so-called "Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence," adopted at Charlotte, Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, May 20, 1775, of which the first three resolutions are as follows:

"Resolved, That whosoever directly or indirectly, abetted, or in any way, form or manner, countenanced the unchartered and dangerous invasion of our rights, as claimed by Great Britain, is an enemy to this country, to America and to the inherent and inalienable rights of man.

"Resolved, That we, the citizens of Mecklenburg county, do hereby dissolve the political bonds which have connected us to the mother country, and hereby absolve ourselves from all allegiance to the British crown, and abjure all political connection, contact or association with that nation, who has wantonly trampled on our rights and inhumanly shed the blood of American patriots at Lexington.

"Resolved, That we do hereby declare ourselves a free and independent people, and of right ought to be a sovereign and self-governing association, under the control of no power other than that of our God and the general government of the congress; to the maintenance of which independence we solemnly pledge to each other our mutual co-operation, our lives, our fortunes, and our most sacred honor."

Brightening the Home

A coat of stain with two coats of varnish, after the old finish has been removed, will do wonders to any old article of furniture. Or paint and enamel with a dainty design stenciled on a bedroom suite will make it a thing of beauty. What could be prettier than a bedroom set stained in walnut, a light gray wall for a background with pink drapes, white curtains, old rose and white rag rugs with a little touch

FEARLESS GINNY

By JACK LAWTON.

Stewart's aunt was the solver of most of his problems. When either his bachelor household or his literary labors were going agley, he went to Aunt Sue for advice, and found it. His latest trouble was a failure to concentrate in the noisy apartment he had recently rented. When photographs or pianos were at peace, other distractions would arise claiming his annoyed attention.

"I'll quit the place soon as I can find other quarters," Stewart said. "But in the meantime—"

"In the meantime," Aunt Sue interrupted, "you shall go on with the writing of your book in Doctor Jessup's suburban bungalow. Doctor has long been a friend of mine and left the key of the place with me, while attending some medical convention. It's the very spot for quiet work, beautifully isolated in a walled garden."

As usual, Aunt Sue's solution was a wise one. Stewart Ogden felt a sense of relaxation the moment he entered the silent, tasteful living room.

Stewart's book grew steadily in volume and interest, as the evening passed. He was enjoying himself immensely.

"Only twelve," he mused as a chime caught his ear. "I shall be able to work on for two hours yet."

Then Stewart beheld a strange tableau. It was as though he, in the shadowy living room, with its shaded light above the desk, were gazing at a movie screen, with actors registered there, instead of into the severe white laboratory. For into this laboratory came suddenly a man stockily built, with a cap drawn down on his face, and as, instinctively, Stewart snapped off the solitary light, the capped and cloaked figure sank to the floor before the safe, and began with directed torch to study its casings. Stewart, breathlessly observing, could read the inscription "Doctor Jessup" on the safe; noiselessly he slipped into the square opening beneath the desk and awaited developments. The next move of the picture was more surprising. A girl came swiftly into the square of light, and as the man worked on at the safe's combination she made quick inventory of both office and living room. Her cursory glance about both momentarily lighted apartments apparently reassured her.

"You were right, Steve," she said. "There is no one here. I looked through the rest of the house as I came. Now, hurry!"

The man jumped to his feet impatiently.

"I can't make it," he grumbled. "Must have mixed the numbers. Try it, Ginny, and—hurry yourself!"

Instantly the girl was upon her knees. She laughed a triumphant, whispered sort of laugh as the safe-door responded. Skillfully she drew from the interior various packages.

"There you are, Steve," she murmured. "And that had better be all for tonight. Get on your way quickly!"

The man stood looking down upon her as she dropped the securities into a bag he held.

"Please, come along, Ginny," he said.

"Silly!" she exclaimed. "You will be able to make that train easier if I am not with you. And if you cannot get back all right, I am not afraid of anything."

"Fearless Ginny, you know," she quoted to him.

Reluctantly, the big fellow lingered. "Sometimes," he complained, "I wish you would be afraid, Ginny."

Before Stewart in his hiding place could realize what to do, the girl had pressed her companion out through the door and locked it after him.

Stewart's decision was promptly made. Though the actual culprit had been allowed to escape, he determined now to hold safely the accomplice; to him "Fearless Ginny" should make both explanation and restoration.

When his arms closed swiftly about her, after one sharp glance into his face, Fearless Ginny bore out her name. Calmly she rested against Stewart's shoulder.

"Well," she asked amusedly, "what are you going to do with me?"

"I am going," he decidedly answered, "to telephone the police."

"The police have no terror for me," she mocked. "In two minutes I can make them believe me innocent."

She looked up at him saucily.

"They'd be more likely to suspect you," she said.

Awkwardly, Stewart Ogden led his charge over to the divan; the telephone was within reach. The girl curled her fingers in friendly manner through his detaining arm.

"I would not call up if I were you, Mr. Author," she advised. "I'm not such a desperate character after all. Fearless Ginny is just brother Steve's name for me. To your dear Aunt Sue I am known as Miss Doctor Virginia Jessup. Returned unexpectedly from a medical convention. Brother Steve scolded me about leaving all that money in my office safe. He intends to take it on to his own house until morning."

"I recognized you at once, Mr. Ogden," smiled young Doctor Jessup, "from the pictures your Aunt Sue has shown me."

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of those fortunate women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after it had been decided an operation was necessary:

Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do a thing. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work and have a small child. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. R. SHARON, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women who are there for surgical operations, and there is nothing a woman dreads more than the thought of an operation, and the long weary months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is successful.

It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but most of the common ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

NOT HARD TO MAKE CHOICE HER LOVE DREAM SHATTERED

Probably Lester Could Have Determined Without the Appeal to His Physical Feelings.

Two men passed away. One had been born, and in due course admitted to the bar, soon ran for office, was elected a continuous Hon. until at last he went to his reward, such as it was. And the local paper gave him an obituary as long as your arm.

The other man followed in the footsteps of his brassy sire, and became a maker of harrows. He was industrious and honest, and for years the Hilligoss harrows which he whacked out by hand were known nearly all over the country as reliable utensils.

By-and-by, he, too, passed on. The paper announced his demise in a few lines and spelled his name wrong.

Now, tell me, Lester, which of those men would you rather have been? Do not say the former, or I'll slap your jaws for you and not let you go to the picture show, either.—Kansas City Star.

"Please, come along, Ginny," he said.

"What, already!" said his mother, in consternation. "It doesn't seem possible. How late does he stop out, dear—very late?"

When your husband comes home rather late and tells you he had an important business engagement all you have to do is to try it on the sphygmomanometer. Professor Marston says that when a person tells a lie, especially if he is under oath, there is an emotional reaction, affecting the breathing and the blood pressure. . . . The breathing of married men is seldom affected by a mechanical lie.—Syracuse Herald.

Why Alice Golightly No Longer Bored People With Long Recital of Her Physical Ailments.

Pollie Dear and Mollie Love met out shopping one morning and immediately forgot all about shopping, time, hungry husbands at home, etc., in a "few minutes" chat.

Just then Alice Golightly passed by. Each smiled sweetly at the other, and murmured:

"Good morning."

As soon as Alice had passed on, Pollie turned to Mollie and said:

"I notice Alice doesn't go around boring other people with her ailments as she used to."

"No," smiled Mollie; "she met a man who cured her completely."

"Oooh!" purred Pollie. "Who was he? Was he a doctor?"

"Oh, no!" answered Mollie. "She was telling this man some of her symptoms when he remarked, 'It's strange how many of these things afflict people as they begin to grow old.' Since then she has held her tongue about them."

CONDENSED CLASSICS

THE WOMAN IN WHITE

By WILKIE COLLINS

Condensation by Alice Fox Pitts, New Bedford, Mass.

William Wilkie Collins, the son of a landscape and portrait painter, was born in London, January 8, 1824.

He died September 23, 1889. After some private education at home he spent three years in Italy with his father. On his return he became a clerk with a firm of tea merchants in London, but tea was not to his taste; he studied law at the famous Lincoln's Inn and was called to the bar in 1851. But he was still drifting; he was not attracted to the law, though he found his studies of great use to him in later days.

The death of the elder Collins in 1847 put the son partly in the way of finding himself, for he published his father's life in two volumes the next year. He had been turning over his experiences of three years' life in Italy, and in 1850 appeared his first novel, "Antonina, or the Fall of Rome," "Basil" was published in 1852, and "Hide and Seek" in 1854. He had not attracted the attention of the public as yet. The great event of his life, however, came in 1857 when he made the acquaintance of Charles Dickens.

IT WAS a close and sultry night early in August. And I, Walter Hartwright, master of drawing, aged twenty-eight, was walking from Hampstead to London. In one moment every drop of blood in my body was brought to a stop by the touch of a hand laid gently on my shoulder. There, in the middle of the high road, stood a woman dressed from head to foot in white garments. She asked me the way to London. I told her; and we parted.

Ten minutes later a carriage passed me and a few yards beyond stopped near a policeman. A man put his head from the window and asked: "Have you seen a woman pass this way—a woman in white? She has escaped from my asylum." At a shake of the policeman's head, the carriage drove rapidly on.

The next day I was at Limmeridge house, Cumberland, in the service of Frederick Fairlie, Esq. I was there to instruct his two young nieces in the art of painting. I found Marian Halcombe to be dark and ugly, but intelligent. Laura Fairlie, her half-sister, was light, pretty and dependent. They were devoted to each other, and before my engagement was up, I admired the one and loved the other.

My feelings were the cause of my leaving Limmeridge house. Marian Halcombe brought to me a realization of my own heart. "You must leave," she said, "not because you are only a teacher of drawing, but because Laura Fairlie is engaged to be married." A few days before I left Cumberland, while walking alone in the evening, I was confronted by the same face which had first looked into mine on the London high road by night. But I was startled less by its sudden reappearance than by my immediate recognition of an ominous likeness between this fugitive from the asylum and my fair pupil at Limmeridge house. Still greater was my consternation when the woman admitted having come to the neighborhood for the sole purpose of thwarting the proposed marriage of Laura Fairlie.

I left Limmeridge house, and soon after embarked on an expedition to Central America. The same year Laura Fairlie became the bride of Sir Percival Glyde, Bart., and with her sister went to live at Blackwater park, her husband's country estate. Count Fosco, an audacious and domineering Italian, and his wife were guests of the household. But all was not as harmonious as an English country party should be. Lady Glyde and her sister, as inseparable and confiding as ever, felt a perceptible coolness rising between them and the two gentlemen. Coolness turned to suspicion and soon to fear.

Then it was that Lady Glyde met the woman in white. The mysterious person stole noiselessly up to her in the twilight one evening and whispered: "If you knew your husband's secret, he would be afraid of you. He would not dare use you as he has used me. I ought to have saved you before it was too late." But before the secret was told there were footsteps in the distance and the woman moved stealthily away.

Sir Percival learned of the brief interview, and was afraid of his wife. He demanded, begged, threatened her to tell him all she knew. What had been a battle of wits between the two sisters and the two men became a struggle of strategy, and the women lost the fight. Lady Glyde was decoyed into leaving Blackwater park for Count Fosco's London home. Less than two weeks later a tombstone in Cumberland bore this inscription: "Sacred to the memory of Laura, Lady Glyde."

On my return from Central America

the same year, I heard of the death, and immediately visited the grave. As I approached it, two women came towards me. One was Marian Halcombe, the other was veiled, but when she raised this covering from her face, there looking at me, was Laura, Lady Glyde. She was pale, nervous and depressed—more perfect than ever in her resemblance to the woman in white.

Marian Halcombe told me what she knew. She had found her sister in an asylum, and in the grave at our feet was her mysterious double. Sir Percival's boldness and Count Fosco's cleverness had succeeded in exchanging the destinies of the two women. The circumstance had netted these two gentlemen some 30,000 pounds, derived from the estate of Lady Glyde.

The fortune was gone beyond recall, but Lady Glyde's true identity might yet be established in the face of such evidence as her death certificate and tombstone, and the incredulity of her friends and relatives. This I determined to do. Cast upon the world alone, the sisters readily agreed to allow me to take up their fight, and I determined that Laura should one day re-enter her father's estate recognized by all.

It soon was apparent that Sir Percival and Count Fosco were the persons I must fight. I worked secretly, but directly, for I had no funds with which to carry on a fight through the courts. The secret with which the woman in white had threatened Sir Percival seemed to me to be the key to the whole situation. Through a series of inquiries, working always under the watch of spies, I found it opportune to look up the marriage registration of Sir Percival's parents. I found it in a little country church—and it was forged. I was no sooner in possession of the knowledge of his illegitimate birth than Sir Percival, in furious desperation to destroy the evidence, entered the little church by night, set fire to the structure, and through the agency of his own stupidity and an old-fashioned wooden lock, trapped himself into an awful death.

Laura was free of her husband, but she remained an outcast—a woman dead to her friends and relatives. I was still determined this should not be. My only hope of success lay in Count Fosco, who alone had her legal existence. But to acknowledge Lady Glyde's identity would be to admit his guilt of one of the greatest of crimes. My task looked difficult, but an unknown agency came to my aid.

Count Fosco was a traitor to one of the world-wide Italian secret societies. The knowledge came to me by chance, but it served me in good stead. I went to his house one night and bartered my silence for the evidence of Laura's existence. Count Fosco, in a long exposition, gave the details of his own and Sir Percival's cunning. Then he left England forever. To clear up the last shred of mystery surrounding the woman in white, I sought out her childhood home. I pieced together her story from her old friends and relatives. Fate had made her the illegitimate half-sister of her counterpart and the chance possessor of Sir Percival's secret.

My labors ended, Marian Halcombe and her sister, who was now my wife, returned to the happy companionship of those days at Limmeridge house before Sir Percival's cunning had usurped the consummation of our love. On the death of Laura's uncle some months later, her son and mine became the heir of the estate and fortune of the house of Limmeridge.

BIRD'S FUN WITH SQUIRREL

Cheerful Little Nuthatch Caused Resident to Lose His Temper and Use Bad Language.

A red streak flashed down the limb on which the nuthatch was working. That was the squirrel. A fraction of a second ahead of the squirrel there was a wing of gray and white. That was the nuthatch, Samuel Scoville, Jr., writes in Yale Review. Before the squirrel could even recover his balance there was a cheerful rat-tat-tat behind. As the squirrel turned, the rapping sounded on the under side of the branch. His bushy red tail quivered, and using some strong squirrel language, he dived back into his hole. He was hardly out of sight when the nuthatch was tapping again at his door. Once more the squirrel rushed out chattering and sputtering. Once more the nuthatch was not there. Then he tried chasing the bird around the limb, but the nuthatch could turn in half the time and space, and moreover, did not have to be afraid of falling, for a drop of 50 feet to frozen ground is no joke even for a red squirrel. The irritating thing about the nuthatch was that no matter how hard the squirrel chased him he never stopped for a second tapping away at the branch, feeding even as he ran. Finally Mr. Squirrel went back to his house and stayed there while the nuthatch, tapped in triumph all around his hole, although muffled chattering from within expressed the squirrel's unvarnished opinion of that nuthatch.

HOME TOWN HELPS

STRONG PLEA FOR GARDENS

United States Commissioner of Education Urges That Last Year's Good Work Continue.

Last year more than 2,000,000 boys and girls in cities, large towns and industrial villages in the United States cultivated gardens under school direction and supervision and produced many millions of dollars' worth of vegetables and small fruits to be consumed where produced without cost for transportation and handling and without loss from deterioration on the markets. There were many thousands of boys and girls who produced more than $50 each in what would otherwise have been idle time, and thousands of acres of land that would have lain idle if it had not been cultivated by the boys and girls yielded more than $500 an acre.

The educational value to the children was far greater than the value of the food products. That value included health, physical vigor, habits of industry, knowledge of plant life and of the phenomena and forces of nature, and the beginning of the understanding of the fundamental moral principle that every one should gladly contribute to his own support by his own labor.

"The United States bureau of education will not be able to follow up this work this year as fully as it has for several years past," writes P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, "but I hope the interest of children, teachers, superintendents and school boards will not lag and that the time will soon come when this school-directed home garden work will be recognized as a necessity and an essential part of the education of children in all cities, towns and industrial villages."

FOR BOYCOTT OF BILLBOARD

Speaker Advocates Strenuous Action Against What is Generally Recognized as a Nuisance.

Declaring the automobile has made the billboard a countryside problem, R. T. Hartman of Boston, member of the Massachusetts Civic league, addressing a meeting of the American Civic association, said that there is no best law or method for dealing with the problem presented by the de-facement of both the city and the country by outdoor advertising.

The public, he said, can bring remedies to bear when it chooses to make the effort. He suggested that one effective method would be to withhold patronage from persons and firms employing this method of publicity, and said this would settle the whole problem in a year.

MAKE FENCE ATTRACTIVE

A few morning glories or cardinal climber vines will cover that bare or unsightly fence and make it attractive.

Memorial for Heroic Dead.

The prince of Wales has brought back with him from the Antipodes a very beautiful conception of a form of memorial for the soldiers who have fallen in the great war.

He approached Ballarat, the great gold mining city in the Australian colony of Victoria by means of a broad avenue, some fifteen miles long, lined on either side by trees, which are flourishing, and that did ere long to form a sort of foliage domed roof for the entire thoroughfare.

Each tree, planted within the last three or four years, and there are about five thousand of them, commemorates a Ballarat boy who gave his life for the empire at the front in France, on the peninsula of Gallipoli and in Palestine. Each of the trees bears the name of the soldier lad whose supreme sacrifice it is designed to recall to his kith and kin at Ballarat—London Mail.

Fight Well Worth Waging.

It pays the community to make a battle for tree treasures. It is a fight which should employ many different tactics and arms. First, perhaps, should be the selection for city planting of trees that are most nearly immune to the more dangerous pests. Next is good care, and the fostering of birds which do so much to check insect plagues. Finally comes scraping and spraying to get rid of the enemies which, like the oyster shell scale, have broken through the other lines of defense.

A good tree is worth fighting for.

Always Good Investment.

The cost of living has dropped, not so much as it might, but considerably. Yet a garden remains just as good an investment this year as last.

A garden saves money, promotes health, makes for contentment, supplies food more delicious, because fresher, than any that can be bought in the markets, utilizes ground that otherwise would lie idle or serve as a receptacle for tin cans and an experiment station for weeds. Whether prices be high or low, it pays to have a garden.

EVERYBODY SEES A CHANGE IN FATHER

Grateful Son Says His Father Looks Like Different Man Since Taking Tanlac.

"My father has suffered from chronic stomach trouble for over twenty years and has paid out thousands of dollars for medicines and doctors," said G. W. Slayton, a well-known Cobb County farmer, living a short distance out of Atlanta, Ga. "We tried nearly everything trying to cure him and he went off to the Springs, thinking maybe the water might help him, but it just looked like nothing would reach his trouble. Then he tried dieting and lived on liquid food until he almost starved, but even that failed to do him any good and he just kept going from bad to worse.

"I don't guess there ever was a case as stubborn as his, and if there ever was a confirmed dyspeptic he was one of them, and I guess he would have been one yet if it hadn't been for this Tanlac.

"The first we heard of this medicine was when my father saw an advertisement in the papers from parties he knew in Tennessee, who were friends of his and he knew what they said about it was the truth, so he got it right away and began taking it. Well, sir, it acted just like magic—everybody notices the change in father. Why, he is just like a different man and sits down to the table and eats like a farmhand. Only yesterday he ate pork and turnips for his dinner and ate so much we were actually afraid he was going to overdo the hurt, but he laughed and said nothing but he was going to eat and make up for lost time.

"Now, when a medicine will do things like that I think people ought to know about it, and I want to say right now that I would not give one bottle of Tanlac for all the other medicines and health resorts in the country put together."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

Beware! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package of tablets you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for twenty-one years and proved safe by millions. Take Aspirin only as told in the Bayer package for Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago, and for Pain. Handy tin boxes of twelve Bayer Tablets of Aspirin cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Opulence. Parke—Well, I've just had a considerable increase in my income.

Lane—Wonderful! Must be a great help.

"It is. It has extended my credit so much that my wife can run into debt twice as much as she could."—Life.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Parke in Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Another Excuse. Hub—That button is still off.

Wife—Yes, dear, I am economizing on thread.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Paternalism. "You seem very much afraid of paternalism in affairs of government?"

"I am," replied Farmer Corn-tassel. "I've tried paternal authority on Josh, and if it doesn't work any better in a government than it does on a farm I'll say it ain't safe to fool with."

SAVE SHOES AND STOCKINGS

They will last twice as long if you shake them. Four Shakes A Day. Shake the powder for the feet. It takes the friction from the shoe and gives quick relief to Corns, Bunions, Callouses, sore, itching, swollen, tender feet. Shake Allen's Foot-Powder into your shoes and enjoy the bliss of feet without an ache.

Off. Marla—"I heard that you were engaged to a shimmy dancer." Montague—"I was, but she shook me."

Hon. D. G. Conrad and wife were recent guests at Joel Wainwright's New Egypt.

Walter Perrine of Barnegat City, was in town on Monday. Many auto drivers rush through town as if their lives depended on getting there. The State has provided laws for speed limit and they should be enforced before someone is hurt.

Rev. Daniel Johnson of Tuckerton, exchanged pulpits with Rev. Pennington Corson on Sunday morning last. The members of the Masonic Fraternity will attend Divine service at the M. E. Church Sunday evening next, July 3rd in a body.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Corlis attended service at the M. E. Church Sunday evening last and heard Rev. H. N. Amer preach.

Miss Alma Corliss is at her home here after spending the past winter as Teacher of Music at Franklin, N. J. A few weak fish are being caught in the bay.

Mrs. George Inman of Red Bank, is a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cranmer. Rev. Pennington Corson motored to Whitesville and called on Rev. Linwood Miller the pastor there, the past week.

Walter Brouwer expects to open his Barber shop soon. A number from Barnegat motored to the Republican Dinner at the Marion Inn at Toms River on Wednesday, June 22 and spent a pleasant evening.

Miss Grace J. Parker of Parkertown, was a caller in town the past week. J. H. Perrine, our boat builder, received a letter from Cairo, Egypt, in regard to a boat. His reputation as boat builder must be wide.

Samuel Taylor is spending a few days in Philadelphia. Sheriff Chafey and Under-Sheriff A. W. Brown have asked the Board of Chosen Freeholders for an appropriation for the purchase of guns and revolvers for the use of all who are attached to the Sheriff's Office. The request was granted and the necessary articles will be purchased. The Sheriff and Deputy mean business.

Joseph Predmore spent the week end and Sunday with his family on Maple avenue. A large congregation greeted the pastor at the M. E. Church last Sunday evening.

Fresh clams are plentiful and cheap. Services will be held at the Friends' meeting house at 8:30 P. M. next First Day. William Bishop will speak.

J. Paul Bowker of Jersey City, was a visitor with his family here Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Esther Gaynor, who spent the winter in Trenton, has returned and is now at the Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John Haines are guests of their son at Asbury Park. At a meeting of the members of John Wesley Taylor Post of the American Legion and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Post Monday evening, the following officers were elected: Acting President, Mrs. Sara B. Hernburg; Vice President, Miss Phyllis Rutger; Secretary, Mrs. Augustus Tolbert; Treasurer, Mrs. Augustus Tolbert; Executive Committee, Mrs. Andrew Kilpatrick, Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Jennie Conrad.

Mrs. George Eayre of Roselle, is spending a few days with her mother. Irving J. Cranmer, had charge of the services at the M. E. Church at Cedar Run in the absence of Adolphus Pharo. He gave a very interesting address to a full house. His brother, William of this place accompanied him.

The members of the American Legion will play two games of ball on July 4th--one at 10 a. m. and the other at 2:30 p. m. with the Chatsworth team.

At noon a Chicken Dinner will be held at the M. E. Church, price 50 cts. Supper will be served from 5 to 6 at the same place. The days program will end with a first class movie at 8 p. m. at the Opera House, followed by dancing. Ice cream and cake will be for sale. Everybody welcome to spend a day with the boys.

Verse Writing Taught in School. In Chinese schools, just before the noonday recess, the teacher writes a sentiment, a proverb, or a proposition upon a slip of red paper and pastes it upon the door. Each boy as he goes out reads the lines, and in the afternoon gives to the teacher another line which will, with the first, make a couplet.

"HONEST ABE"

Synopsis.—Samson and Sarah Traylor, with their two children, Josiah and Betsy, travel by wagon in the summer of 1881 from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the Country of the Sangamon, in Illinois. At Niagara Falls they meet a party of immigrants, among them a youth named John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. All of the party suffer from fever and ague. Sarah's ministrations save the life of a youth, Harry Needles, in the last stages of fever, and he accompanies the Traylor. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young "Abe" Lincoln. The Traylor are introduced to everyone and decide to settle at New Salem.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.

"Welcome! and here's the best seat at the fireside," he said to Samson. "My wife and daughter are away for a visit and for two days I've had the cabin to myself. Look, ye worshipers of fire, and see how fine it is now! The homely cabin is a place of beauty. What a heaven it is when the flames are leaping! Here is Hogarth's line of beauty; nothing perpendicular or horizontal."

He took Abe's hand and went on: "Here, ye lovers of romance, is one of the story-tellers of Ispahan who has in him the wisdom of the wandering tribes. He can tell you a tale that will draw children from their play and old men from the chimney corner. My boy, take a chair next to Mr. Traylor. Mr. Traylor, you stand up as proud and firm as a big pine. I believe you're a Yankee."

"So do I," said Samson. "If you took all the Yankee out of me I'd have an empty skin."

Then Abe began to show the stranger his peculiar art in these words: "Stephen Nuckles used to say: 'God's grace embraces the isles o' the sea an' the uttermost parts o' the earth. It takes in the Esquimaux an' the Hotentots. Some go so far to say that it takes in the Yankees but I don't go so far.'"

Samson joined in the good-natured laughter that followed.

"If you deal with some Yankees you take your life in your hands," he said. "They can serve God or Mammon and I guess they have given the devil some of his best ideas. He seems to be getting a lot of Yankee notions lately."

"There was a powerful prejudice in Kentucky against the Yankees," Abe went on. "Down there they used to tell about a Yankee who sold his hogs and was driving them to town. On the way he decided that he'd sold them too cheap. He left them with his drover in the road and went on to town and told the buyer that he would need help to bring 'em in."

"How's that?" the buyer asked.

"Why they git away an' go to runnin' through the woods an' fields an' we can't keep up with 'em."

"I don't think I want 'em," says

Began to Speak the Lines in a High-Pitched Voice.

the buyer. "A speedy hog hasn't much pork to carry. I'll give ye twenty bits to let me off."

"I guess that Yankee had one more hog than he'd counted," said Samson.

"Whatever prejudice you may find here will soon vanish," said Kelso, turning to the newcomer. "I have great respect for the sturdy sons of New England. I believe it was Theodore Parker who said that the pine was the symbol of their character. He was right. Its roots are deep in the soil; it towers above the forest; it has the strength of tall masts and the substance of the builder in its body, music in its waving branches and turpentine in its veins. I thought of this when I saw Webster and heard him speak at Plymouth."

"What kind of a looking man is he?" Abe asked.

"A big erect, splendid figure of a man. He walked like a ram at the head of his flock."

Abe who since his story had sat with a sad face looking into the fire now leaned forward, his elbows on his knees, and shook his head with interest while his gray eyes took on a look of animation. The diary speaks often of the "well of sadness" on his face.

"He is a very great man," Abe exclaimed.

"Have you learned that last noble fight of his in the reply to Haynes, as you promised?" Kelso asked.

"I have," said Abe, "and the other day when I was tramping back from Bowlin Green's I came across a drove of cattle and stopped and gave it to them. They all let go of the grass and stood looking."

"Good! Now stand up and let us see how you imitate the great chief of the Whig clan," said Kelso.

The lank and awkward youth rose and began to speak the lines in a high-pitched voice that trembled with excitement. It lowered and steadied and rang out like noble music on a well-played trumpet as the channel of his spirit filled with the mighty current of the orator's passion. Then, indeed, the words fell from his lips "like the winter snows."

"They shook our hearts as the wind shakes the branches of a tree," Samson writes in his diary. "The lean, bony body of the boy was transfixed and as I looked at his face in the firelight I thought it was handsome."

"Not a word was spoken for a minute after he sat down. I had got my first look at Lincoln. I had seen his soul. I think it was then I began to realize that a man was being made among us 'more precious than fine gold; even a man more precious than the golden wedge of Ophir.'"

The Doctor gazed in silence at the boy. Kelso sat with both hands in his pockets and his chin upon his breast looking solemnly into the fire.

"Thank you, Abe," he said in a low voice. "Something unusual has happened and I'm just a little scared."

"Why?" Abe asked.

"For fear somebody will spoil it with another hog story. I'm a little afraid of anything I can say. I would venture this, that the man Webster is a prophet. In his Plymouth address he hears receding into never-returning distance the clank of chains and all the din of slavery. It will come true."

"Do you think so?" Abe asked.

"Surely—there are so many of us who hate it. These Yankees hate it and they and their children are scattering all over the midlands. Their spirit will guide the West. The love of liberty is the salt of their blood and the marrow of their bones. Liberty means freedom for all. Wait until these babies, coming out here by the wagonload, have grown to manhood. Slavery will have to reckon with them."

"I hate it, too," said Abe. "If I live I'm going to do something on the head some day."

"Do you still want to be a lawyer?" Kelso asked.

"Yes, but sometimes I think I'd make a better blacksmith," said Abe. "I'm trying to make up my mind what's best for me."

"No, you're trying to decide what is best for your friends and your country and for the reign of law and justice and liberty."

"But I think every man acts from selfish motives," Abe insisted.

Doctor Allen demurred as follows: "The other night you happened to remember that you had overcharged Mrs. Peters for a jug of molasses and after you had closed the store you walked three miles to return the money which belonged to her. Why did you do it?"

"For a selfish motive," said Abe. "I believe honesty is the best policy."

"Then you took that long walk just to advertise your honesty—to induce people to call you 'Honest Abe' as they have begun to do?"

"I wouldn't want to put it that way," said Abe.

"But that's the only way out," the Doctor insisted, "and we know nothing would have to call you 'Sordid Abe.'"

"There's a hidden Abe and you haven't got acquainted with him yet," Kelso interposed. "We have all caught a glimpse of him tonight. He's the Abe that loves honor and justice and humanity and their great temple of freedom that is growing up here in the new world. He loves them better than fame or fortune or life itself. I think it must have been that Abe whose voice sounded like a trumpet just now and who sent you off to Mrs. Peters with the money. You haven't the chance to know him that we have. Some day you two will get acquainted."

"At this moment there was a loud rap on the door. Mr. Kelso opened it and said: 'Hello, Eli! Come in.'"

A hairy-faced, bow-legged man, bent under a great pack, partly covered with bed ticking, stood in the doorway.

"Hello, Mr. Kelso," the bearded man answered. "The poor wandering Jew has come back ag'in—hey? I think I haf to take de hump off my back before I gits in."

Staggering beneath his load he let it down to the ground.

"Bring in your Trojan horse and mind you do not let out its four and twenty warriors until morning. I'll have some bread and milk for you in a minute. Gentlemen, this is my friend Eli—a wandering pioneer of trade."

"I haf a wonderful line o' goods—wonderful! wonderful!" said Eli, gesturing with both hands.

"First supper—then open your Trojan horse," said Kelso.

"First I must show my goods," Eli insisted, "an' I'll bet you take dem all—everything vat I have in dot pack an' you pay my price an' you tank me an' say 'Eli, vat you have to drink?'"

"I'll bet you four bits I don't," said Kelso.

"You are my friend; I would not take your money like dot so easy. No! It would not be right. These are Scotch goods, gentlemen—so rare an' beautiful—not'ing like dem in de world."

He began to undo his pack while the little company stood around him.

"Gentlemen, you can see but you cannot buy. Only my friend can have dem goods," he went on glibly as he removed the cover of the pack.

Suddenly there was a lively stir in it. To the amazement of all a beautiful girl threw aside the ticking basket it had covered. With a merry laugh she threw her arms around Jack Kelso's neck and kissed him.

The men clapped their hands in noisy merriment.

"That's like Bim, isn't it?" said the Doctor.

"Exactly!" Abe exclaimed.

"I stop at David Barney's an' dere she took de goods out o' my pack an' fix up dis job lot fer you," said Eli with a laugh.

"A real surprise party!" the girl exclaimed.

She was a small-sized girl, nearing sixteen, with red cheeks and hazel eyes and blonde hair that fell in curls upon her shoulders.

"Mr. Traylor, this is my daughter Bim," said Kelso. "She is skilled in the art of producing astonishment."

"She must have heard of that handsome boy at the tavern and got in a hurry to come home," said the Doctor.

"Ann Rutledge says that he is a right purty boy," the girl laughed as she brushed her curls aside.

CHAPTER IV.

Which Presents Other Log-Cabin Folk and the First Steps in the Making of a New Home and Certain Capacities and Incapacities of Abe.

Next morning at daylight two parties went out in the woods to cut timber for the home of the newcomers.

In one party were Harry Needles carrying two axes and a well-filled lunch-box; Samson with a saw in his hand and the boy Joe on his back; Abe with a saw and ax and a small jug of root beer and a book tied in a big red handkerchief and slung around his neck. When they reached the woods Abe cut a pole for the small boy and carried him on his shoulder to the creek and said:

"Now you sit down here and keep order in this little frog city. If you hear a frog say anything improper you fetch him a whack. Don't allow any nonsense. We'll make you mayor of Frog City."

The men fell to with axes and saws while Harry limbed the logs and looked after the mayor. Their huge muscles hung the sharp axes into the timber and gnawed through it with the saw. Many big trees fell before noon time when they stopped for lunch.

While they were eating Abe said: "I reckon we better saw out a few boards this afternoon. Need 'em for the doors. We'll tote a couple of logs up on the side o' that knoll, put 'em on skids an' whip 'em up into boards with the saw."

Samson took hold of the middle of one of the logs and raised it from the ground.

"I guess we can carry 'em," he said. "Can ye shoulder it?" Abe asked.

"Easy," said Samson as he raised an end of the log, stepped beneath it and, resting its weight on his back, soon got his shoulder near its center and swung it clear of the ground and walked with it to the knollside where he let it fall with a resounding thump that shook the ground. Abe stopped eating and watched every move in this remarkable performance. The ease with which the big Vermont had so defied the law of gravitation with that unwieldy stick amazed him.

"That thing'll weigh from seven to eight hundred pounds," said he. "I reckon you're the stoutest man in this part o' the state an' I'm quite a man myself. I've lifted a barrel o' whisky and put my mouth to the bung hole. I never drink it."

"Say," he added as he sat down and began eating a doughnut. "If you ever hit anybody take a sledge hammer or a crowbar. It wouldn't be decent to use your fist."

They hewed a flat surface on opposite sides of the log which Samson had carried and peeled it and raised its lower end on a cross timber. Then they marked it with a chalk line and sliced it into inch boards with a whip saw, Abe standing on top of the log and Samson beneath it. Suddenly the saw stopped. A clear, beautiful voice fung the music of "Sweet Nightingale" into the timbered hollow. It halted the workers and set the woodland ringing. The men stood silent like those hearing a benediction. The singing ceased. Still they listened for half a moment. It was as if a spirit had passed and touched them.

"It's Bim—the little vixen!" said Abe tenderly. "She's an odd child and as pretty as a spotted fawn, and about as wild. She's a kind of a first cousin to the bobolink."

When they were getting ready to go home that afternoon Joe got into a great hurry to see his mother. It seemed to him that ages had elapsed since he had seen her—a conviction which led to noisy tears.

Abe knelt before him and comforted the boy. Then he wrapped him in his jacket and swung him in the air and started for home with Joe astride his neck.

Samson says in his diary: "His tender play with the little lad gave me another look at the man Lincoln."

"Some one proposed once that we should call that stream the Minnehaha," said Abe as he walked along. "After this Joe and I are going to call it the Minnehoo-hoo."

The women of the little village had met at a quilting party at ten o'clock with Mrs. Martin Waddell. There Sarah had had a seat at the frame and heard all the gossip of the countryside. The nimble-fingered Ann Rutledge—a daughter of the tavern folk—had sat beside her. Ann was a slender, good-looking girl of seventeen with blue eyes and a rich crown of auburn hair and a fair skin well browned by the sunlight. She was the most dexterous needle worker in New Salem.

John McNeil, whom the Traylor had met on the road near Niagara Falls and who had shared their camp with them, arrived on the stage that evening. He was dressed in a new butternut suit and clean linen and looked very handsome. Samson writes that he resembled the pictures of Robert Emmet. With fine, dark eyes, a smooth skin, well-moulded features and black hair neatly brushed on a shapely head he was not at all like the rugged Abe. In a low tone and very modestly, with a slight brogue on his tongue he told of his adventures on the long shore road to Michigan. Ann sat listening and looking into his face as he talked. Abe came in, soon after eight o'clock, and was introduced to the stranger. All noted the contrast between the two young men as they greeted each other. Abe sat down for a few minutes and looked sadly into the fire but said nothing. He rose presently, excused himself and went away.

DRIED CORN IS MOST SUPERIOR

Canned Vegetable Can Be Used for Wide Variety of Purposes in Cooking.

GATHER WHEN IN MILK STAGE

Any of Sweet Varieties Having Qualities Desirable for Table Use Will Make Good Product—Sun Is Factor in Drying.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A vegetable which, when dried, is above criticism even by the most critical, is corn. Other kinds of garden products may or may not be liked by many people, but dried corn is the equal if not the superior of canned corn and can be used for practically as wide a variety of purposes. The following directions for drying it are those advised by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Any of the varieties of sweet corn having qualities desirable for table use will make a good dried product. Corn intended for drying should be gathered when in the milk stage, before glazing and hardening have begun and when the corn is in an ideal condition for immediate table use. It should be gathered only as it can be prepared for drying, as corn deteriorates rapidly.

Careful Preparation Essential.
Husk the ears and trim with a knife to remove any injuries. The silk need not be removed, as it can be readily separated from the corn after drying. Place the ears in wire baskets or wire-bottom boxes and plunge into boiling water for eight to twelve minutes, or until the milk is set. A little salt may be added to the water if desired. Divide the corn into older and younger lots before blanching, as the younger ears require somewhat longer cooking than the older ones.

After cooking, remove corn from the water, allow it to drain and cool sufficiently to be handled and cut from the cobs with a strong, sharp knife, taking care that none of the cob is removed with the kernels. The glumes or the hull attachments at the tip of the grains are easily screened out after the corn becomes dry. Spread the kernels upon trays to a depth of 1 inch if drying is done in a drier, or 1/2 to 3/4 inch, if the corn is to be dried in the sun. Stir the grains thoroughly several times during the drying to break up any compact masses.

Sun Factor in Drying Corn.

It is practically impossible to bring corn to a sufficient degree of dryness by the unaided heat of the sun. If corn is dried in the sun it should be finished by pouring into bread pans, placing in the oven of the stove, and warming to 160 to 165 degrees Fahrenheit for two hours. Whether the drying is done in the sun, in a cook-stove drier, or in a commercial drier, it should be continued until the grains are hard, semitransparent, and will break with clean, glass-like fractures if crushed.

Before storing free the corn of silks, glumes, and bits of cob. This may be done by pouring the corn from one vessel to another in a strong draft.

One Very Satisfactory Way of Drying Fruits and Vegetables at Home.

When the corn is dry, store in closely woven muslin bags or heavy paper bags. Tie tightly at the neck and place within a larger bag, which also should be tightly tied.

Do not allow the drying process to stop from the time it is started until the corn is fairly dry. Corn is a product which contains considerable sugar and protein, and if the drying process is allowed to stop bacteria are apt to develop and souring take place. Protect it from insects. If sun drying is interrupted by cloudy weather or showers, remove corn to the stove and continue drying or the product may spoil.

GOOD CARD-TABLE COVERS

Thin Patent Leather With Smooth Surface Is Slippery and Smooth, a Decided Advantage.

There are card-table covers made of thin patent leather, bound with heavy corded silk at the edges, with ribbons to tie them securely in place. These are admirable, for their highly varnished surface makes them slippery and smooth, an advantage always in a card-table cover.

Stuffed Eggs Are Good.
Stuffed eggs are good rolled in bread-crumbs and beaten egg and then again in crumbs and fried in hot fat. Drain and serve with tomato sauce.

Utilize Left-Over Crust.
Tarts are not the only way of utilizing left-over pie crust. Try making party shells, for serving creamed meat puddings.

Good Social Center.
A fireplace is a splendid ventilator and a good social center.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR POISON IVY RELIEF

Grease or Oil Tends to Dissolve and Spread Infection.

Specialists of Department of Agriculture Favor Applications of Solutions of Cooking Soda or of Epsom Salts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the early stages of ivy poisoning remedies having a fatty or oily base, such as ointments, should not be used, as the grease or oil tends to dissolve and spread the poison, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Instead they advise simple remedies such as local applications of solutions of cooking soda or of Epsom salt, one or two heaping teaspoonfuls to a cupful of water. Fluid extract of grindella, diluted with four to eight parts of water, is often used.

Solutions of this kind may be applied with light bandages or clean cloths, which should be kept moist, and should be changed and discarded frequently to avoid infection. During the night, or when moist applications cannot be used, the poisoned surfaces should be carefully cleaned and dried and left exposed to the air rather than tightly bandaged. In the later stage, after the toxic material has exhausted itself, zinc-oxid ointment and similar mild antiseptic and astringent applications hasten healing.

These are a few of the helpful hints concerning ivy poisoning contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1166, which tells also how to distinguish between poison ivy and poison sumac. The bulletin is illustrated with pictures of the two plants, which are often confused.

PROTECTION AGAINST MOTHS

Few Cents' Worth of Tar Paper Placed in Boxes and Closets Will Prove Efficient.

Pieces of tar paper laid in fur boxes and in closets are a protection against moths. Five cents will buy enough for all the packing boxes and closets of a large house for a year.

Household Questions

A pitcher of cold water in the room will absorb gases.

More food is required in cold weather than in hot.

Keep your house clear of rubbish and keep disease germs down.

Alternate layers of noodles and jam baked until brown make a good dessert.

Green corn, radishes, cucumbers and tomatoes should not be fed to children under six years of age.

Celery stuffing for meats is delicious. Walnut meats and bread crumbs should be used in the stuffing.

Never heat or stir cereals or rice with a spoon; use a silver fork. A spoon makes them pasty.

To heat milk properly, it should be heated over boiling water.

Sirloin steak is good served surrounded with fried apples.

Put a cross-stitch in red on tiny children's garments, to indicate the middle front, and they will have less trouble in dressing.

White cotton or linen clothes become whiter when dried in strong sunlight. Woolens become yellow when exposed to direct sunlight.

Filmy Frocks for Graduates

DESIGNERS have succeeded in writing "youth" into all the lovely frocks designed for this year's graduates. They have chosen filmy fabrics and made them up in styles that are as dainty as the flowers of spring, and these same flowers are made much of in their decoration. In fabrics organdy is a long way in the lead of a list that includes net (plain and dotted) to silk or cotton, fine voile, lace, swiss, crepe-de-chine and other crepes. One reason for the success of organdy is that it provides its own trimmings. Frills, ruchings, flowers, petals and other decorations made of it are not outvalued by any other kind of ornament. Tucks and hemstitching are suited to it and it makes the most buoyant and youthful of dresses. The graduation frock pictured is an example of its translation into just the right character of dress for the young maid. In this frock narrow tucks and val lace edging make a setting for embroidered daisies done in mercerized floss, with white petals and yellow centers. Daisies made of white organdy are set about the girdle of another pretty frock and on a model having a long tunic made up of several panels, they appear, embroidered in white and yellow, at the bottom of each panel. Strips of organdy picoté on the edges are gathered along the center to four ruchings that edge the panels. Organdy frocks have wide hems often cut in shallow scallops at the top and headed with frills. These frills, with picoté edges, are used alone for decorating many frocks and often placed in festoons running in parallel rows on the skirt and bodice. Wide, hemstitched tucks or narrower ones edged with narrow lace are perhaps the best liked of all decorative features. Nearly all net dresses are tucked and the tucks bordered with narrow satin ribbon stitched to their edges, or with narrow lace.

Frolic Frocks Are Afield

BEGINNING at two years old, to wear amusing little bloomers, or a modern maid progresses through her frolicsome years, up to her fifteenth birthday, in clothes that invite her to vie with her brothers in strenuous play. Until she is five at least waists, with peg top or other bloomers buttoned to them, made of strong materials, give her all the freedom she needs. Frocks to be worn over the bloomers need not be reckoned with before her sixth year, unless they are a matter of personal preference on the part of her mother.

Frolic frocks are made of plain chambray, satin and of heavier cottons, of small plaid and checked gingham and of sturdy white cottons. Medium and dark blues—including navy—medium and dark greens, light purple, browns and yellows in the plain weaves, and the popular colors. In checked gingham a color with white are favored and in small plaids several light colors are combined. The bloomers are plain, full and knee-length, the frocks usually cut with kimono sleeves. Nothing is so popular for the sparingly-used decorations

Lace Is Good.

Summer dance frocks are clouds of lace. It ripples in points at the skirt's edge, or frills enchantingly at the waistline, perhaps it even zigzags dizzily up and down—but it's there. If it is lace you are fashionably goaded for the dancing party.

New Scarfs.

The newest thing in scarfs is the chiffon alpaca kerchief. It is crocheted in mall-link mesh and fastens with a slide of tightly woven wool.

Ribbon Rosettes.

Large rosettes of ribbon are often the sole trimming on crepe de chine afternoon gowns. These rosettes are scattered here and there and everywhere—around the waist line, on the panels at the hem—and they prove very chic.

No High Collars.

The Parisienne firmly refuses to adopt high collars and in consequence this modern form of torture is an absent quantity in the spring openings.

TWO WOODEN DOLLS.

ONCE in a shop window hung by a string a little wooden Boy-Doll, and not far away by a string hung a little wooden Girl-Doll.

As they were both made of wood, Boy-Doll thought it would be a very proper thing for him to do if he asked Girl-Doll to marry him, for he had long been in love with her.

But when he told his love one night when all was still, Girl-Doll turned up the tip of her little painted nose and tossed a wooden head. "I shall marry no one beneath me," she said, "but some one nearer my equal."

"But we are both made of wood," pleaded Boy-Doll, as he looked up at his sweetheart, hanging above him.

"That makes no difference," said the haughty little Girl-Doll. "I am above you; that you can plainly see."

Boy-Doll had to admit that this was true; he also knew that on the same line with Girl-Doll hung a Worsted Boy dressed in blue, and toward him Girl-Doll had looked when she spoke of marrying one who was her equal.

Wooden Boy-Doll was very unhappy, for he knew no way of getting up where Girl-Doll was hanging and he was sure she never would come down to where he sat on the floor of the shop window.

At night he could hear Girl-Doll and Boy-Blue talking and he heard her tell him that all that separated them was the Jumping Jack that hung between them.

"Oh, dear," thought Wooden Boy, "instead of one rival I have two. I never will be able to win her. Even if I could be hung on the same line, there would be many between us."

So little Boy-Doll sat very sad and lonely on the floor and thought of his sweetheart, far above him, at whom she could only look, but not once did she lower her proud little wooden head to look at her true lover.

But one day, when all seemed lost to little Boy-Doll, for Jumping Jack had been sold and now there was nothing to keep Girl-Doll and Boy-Blue apart, the spring that held Girl-Doll broke and down she tumbled right beside Boy-Doll.

Girl-Doll looked up at Boy-Blue, but he did not lower his head; she was too far beneath him to be noticed.

That night, when all was still, Girl-Doll sat close to Boy-Doll, for the shopkeeper had placed her there. "It is very pleasant down here," she said. "I think I shall like living here."

Then the heart of little Wooden Boy went pit-a-pat and he grew quite bold. "We are equal now," he said, "don't you think we might get married?"

"Of course, silly Boy," answered Girl-Doll, "that was why I came down."

WHEN HE DRINKS TEA.

IN THE minds of a good many young men afternoon tea drinking is essentially a feminine pastime and the young man who is versed in the genteel ceremony is by these looked upon as a Miss Nancy sort of person. But many of our soldiers who had been in England came home with quite a taste for the cup that cheers but does not inebriate, and before long tea will be quite the most stimulating beverage that any one can get, anyway. The prediction is made that the custom of tea drinking in the afternoon—already as popular among men as women in England—will become much more general among all classes of Americans. The large hotels are preparing to see many more men in their tea rooms. So the up-to-the-minute young man had better become fairly expert in the gentle art of drinking tea.

The idea used to be that when one drank tea in the afternoon one must hold one's cup and saucer deftly in the left hand. It was considered quite incorrect to let it rest on a conveniently placed table or stand. But now, although we certainly do not sit at a table when we drink tea in our homes, we do not spurn the assistance of the little individual stands that come in sets of five or six and form a "nest" when not in use. At hotels and "tea rooms," however, one takes afternoon tea from a table just as one takes any other meal.

Now, of course, one is not supposed to "make a meal of it" at afternoon tea. If one does, one is served a couple of cakes and one or two crackers, with sometimes or sweet jam with the toast. Waffles, or served, it is usually placed in small portions on a bit of toast. When a is served, of course a plate must be used. Otherwise the cake or biscuit is very often simply placed on the saucer.

"What's in a Name?"

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel.

By MILDRED MARSHALL

ROSE.

ROSE by any other name would still be a rose, according to etymologists. The fortunate possessor of one of the most popular flower names has a charmingly fragrant origin. It seems that all countries and languages agree in expressing a rose by its color. Even the Syrian name for the oleander (rose laurel) is rodyon. Greece produced a Rhoda, which has since come to be a modern name of wide vogue.

The first feminine names to be connected with the fragrant flower called a rose were Rohais and Roelsa, which, curiously enough, are said to come from the French and Latin of hros, meaning fame, rather than from the flower. England's most famous Rohais was the wife of Gilbert of Gaunt. There were many Roelsas among the De Bohuns and De Veres and the wife of Fulbert of Dover in the reign of Henry II was so called.

Ireland adopted the English form and changed it to Rose, whereupon it found vogue in all classes and is still one of the most popular peasant names. Germany took it and made from it the diminutives, Rosi and Roschen, Rosita is a lyric form found only in Peru, but is none the less charming. Our own women of Latinizing our short feminine names, following the Spanish-American war, has made Rosita almost equivalent to Rose; certainly every Rose has an etymological right to call herself Rosita if she so fancies.

Everyone is familiar with the Rose of Tennyson's "Gardener's Daughter": Who has not heard Of Rose, the Gardener's daughter? Where was he,

So blunt in memory, so old at heart, At such a distance from his youth in grief, That, having seen, forgot? The common mouth.

So gross to express delight, in praise of her Grew oratory. Such a lord is Love, And Beauty such a mistress of the world. The moss agate is Rose's talismanic stone. It insures a bold heart and freedom from danger, if worn as an amulet. Tuesday is Rose's lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"GENTS" AND "PANTS."

DESPITE the fact that all critics—and even many writers who are not disposed to be very critical—have condemned the use of the word "gents," for "gentlemen," the former word is still used in common speech and in numerous advertisements. "Clothing for ladies and gents" is advertised, and in announcements of entertainments we are told that "Gents' tickets are $1, ladies' 50 cents." The following was overheard recently: "Oh, Mary, did you see the man who picked up my purse?" "Yes; he looked like a perfect gent."

Never say "gent" say "gentleman." The word "pants," as an abbreviation for "pantaloons," is also condemned by critics; but "pantaloons" is now seldom used, so the only word that is left when one wishes to describe a man's nether garment, is "trousers."

How It Started

CHEWING GUM.

ORIGINALLY men chewed spruce gum, which exuded from the trees; later pure paraffin wax became popular. The modern gum, with the chic base, comes from the Indians, who used to chew chicla to quench their thirst. The growth of the industry may be seen from the fact that while in 1885 the United States imported 929,959 pounds, in 1910 5,000,000 pounds were imported.

CEDAR RUN

Recent Dodge automobile sales were made by W. S. Cranmer as follows: one each to Chas. Frank, Lakewood; Dorothy Peck, Lakewood; Jos. M. Thompson, New Egypt; Mr. Forest, Lakehurst, Samuel Volpin, Lakewood; Wm. Lord, Lakewood; Kosher Meat Market, Lakewood; Miss Park, Beach Haven; 2 to Archie Estell, Lakewood; Mr. Bradley, Lakehurst.
Other cars to Mr. Forest, Lakehurst, Myers Williams, Toms River; Rev. Norris, New Gretna and others. Since the drop in the price of Dodge cars the demand is great. Folks waiting for the expected drop have completely swamped the agent at Cedar Run and Lakewood. Their real worth and value are recognized by all.
W. S. Cranmer has made the following transfers in real estate: C. Van Vorst's farm at Cedar Run to Mr. Johnson, New York; Amariah Cranmer, Cedar Run to Hagenson, New York; C. S. Cranmer, Cedar Run to Mr. Yeager, Yonkers, N. Y.; A. E. Salmons, Staffordville, to Mr. Stropenbach, Corona, N. Y.; Jonathon Cox, West Creek, to Mr. Berkshire, Plainsfield, N. J.; Wm. Faust, Barnegat to Mr. Batchelor, Bayonne, N. J.; C. R. LeCompte, Lakewood to Mr. Hovius, Bogota, N. P. Ensign Miller, West Creek to a gentleman from New York, and some others. All these transfers were farms. He claimsto have a big demand for good cheap farms at bargain prices. Persons having same should list immediately.
Mr. Yeager is making very noted improvements in his farm, recently purchased and it will soon be among our finest farms. He brings with him his Pennsylvania knack and initiative.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

ANNOUNCEMENT
Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, gives out the following statement:

"Another reduction has been made in the list price of all types of Ford cars and the Ford truck to take effect immediately. The list prices, f. o. b. Detroit, are now as follows:
TOURING CAR ..... $415.00
RUNABOUT ..... 370.00
COUPE ..... 695.00
SEDAN ..... 760.00
CHASSIS ..... 345.00
TRUCK-CHASSIS ..... 495.00
TRACTOR ..... 625.00

The big reductions last fall were made in anticipation of low material costs which we are now getting the benefit of, and this fact together with increased manufacturing efficiency and the unprecedented demand for Ford cars, particularly during the past three months permitting maximum production, have made another price reduction possible immediately.
Ford business for April and May 1921 was greater by 56,633 cars and trucks than for the same two months in 1920; in fact, the demand has been even greater than the supply, so that our output has been limited, not by unfilled orders but by manufacturing facilities.
During May we produced 101,424 Ford cars and trucks for sale in the United States alone—the biggest month in the history of our company—and our factories and assembly plants are now working on a 4000 car daily schedule for June.
The FORDSON Tractor is still being sold at less than the cost to produce on account of the recent big price reductions, and it is impossible, therefore, to make any further cut in the price of the Tractor.

Can you afford to go without a car any longer when Fords are selling at these new low prices? There is no reason now why you should delay purchasing a Ford car, Ford truck, or Fordson tractor.

We will gladly advise you concerning the delivery of a Fordson tractor or the particular type of car in which you are interested. Just 'phone us or drop us a card.
