vorably.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found an advertisement for a special election of this school district for the purpose of enlarging the Tuckerton school.

purpose of enlarging the Tuckerton School.

This step is necessary as the school was crowded last year and there will probably be more scholars next term.

Our school system is among the best and it behooves every good citizen to support this project. While it may seem that this extra expense is an added burden to the taxpayer, it must be remembered that the fees from outside scholars is a big help toward running the school.

The members of the Board of Education are careful, conservative men; they have found it necessary to enlarge the school building and the cooperation of the town folks should be unanimous and the necessary support willingly given them.

No better inheritance can be given our shildren than opportunity for a good education under favorable conditions and we believe the volves will be almost unanimous for this improvement.

BARNEGAT H. S. PRINCIPAL EDITOR OF NEWSPAPER

A copy of the Inter-Borough Press published at Royersford and Spring City, Pa., has reached our desk. It is an attractive weekly and is edited by William H. Brown, former principal of the Barnegat High School.

Mr. Brown became well known along the shore as a successful educator, he is an energetic young man and will, no doubt, be successful in the newspaper game.

Go to it, Brother Brown. You have the best wishes of a host of friends in Ocean county.

By MM. ERCKMANN-CHATRIAN

Condensation by Charles E. L. Wingate

 Erckmann-Chatrian is the joint name of two French writers whose collaboration made their work that of, so to speak, one personality; the former writing chiefly and the latter editing and adapting for the stage. Emile Erckmann was bors on the 20th of May, 1822, at Phalabourg; and Louis Gratian Alexandre Chatrian, on the 18th of December, 1826, at Soldatenthal, Lorraine. They began their work together in 1847 and continued doing so until 1889.

ong their first publications are ce et Genie," "Schinderhannes" movels to which Erckmann-Chatrian owe in great part their reputation includes "Le Fou Yegof," "Madame Therese," "Histoire d'un Conscrit de Homme des Peuple," and many others.

Their dramatic compositions and adaptations are "Georges le Chasseur des Ruines," "L'Alsace en 1814."

Their stevies, dealing with the veel.

Their stories, dealing with the real-ties of the times, are distinguished by simplicity and a genuine descriptive power, particularly in battle scenes and those of Alsatian peasant life.

THERE was joy unbounded when Louis the Eighteenth returned in 1814. Yes, everybody was delighted, except the old soldiers and the fencing mas

Living with Father Goulden in Pfalzbourg, of old Lorraine, I was happy in the belief that conscription was now over, and that at last, I should be able to marry Catherine and live in

So, when the marriage permit came I rushed at once to her with the news I kissed her again and again and we both wept for joy.

And then, after the happiness of marrying Catherine, my greatest de-light lay in thinking that I should be a tradesman for the rest of my life. Ah, what a happy life! what satisfaction to be young and to have a simple, good, industrious wife! We shall never be old! We shall always love one another and always retain about us those whom we love.

Thus days and weeks went by. But. later on, we found that the returning royalists, the ministers and the princes, Napoleon's banishment, adopted the people. And as to their treatment of Napoleon's former soldiers I can still hear the commandant expostulating, "They are starving us; they are treating us like Cossacks; only they are

What happened afterward, how a married mad, settled as I had hoped for a life of peace. For I was called to the colors. Aunt Grethel, who had always been like a mother to me, sobbed aloud. Catherine passed into a

Yet, in spite of all, I needs must leave for the army with my old veter-an soldier friend, Zebede, and at once we were rushed to the front.

One day, as we halted, the empero came to our lines and the whole division shouted "Vive l'Empereur!"

I had a good view of him as he advanced with his arms crossed behind his back and his head bent. He had grown stouter and more sallow since the days of Leipsig. He looked much ere nabby. Little wonder, also, that he appeared wor-ried—for had he not lost everybody's confidence? The old soldiers alone retained their love for him; they were ready to conquer or to die in his be-half. But for my part I cared much But for my part I cared much more for Catherine than for the emperor. Of her I thought with greatest tenderness, the more so knowing that she would soon become a mother. And

I prayed to God to preserve my life. At last we came upon the Prussians and, driving them back at Ligny, marched on against the British.

I thought I should drop every moment from weakness, but finally near Waterloo, on mounting a little ridge. we saw the English pickets through

Is it not an abomfor honest men? ination to think that a king or an em peror, instead of encouraging commerce and diffusing liberty, should reduce us to this state by hundreds of thousands? I know that this is called them? glory, but people are foolish to glorify such men who have lost all sense of right and heart and religion. When I awoke in the morning, the church-bells were ringing and I thought:

Today is Sunday, a day in peace and rest. Father Goulden, dressed in his best coat and on the bed and weep has taken her praye to mass." As I pictur quiet, happy life, I But the drums began

And I thought as he did. I believed that not a single Englishman would escape. But bad luck pursued us that day; though, had it not been for the Prussians, I think we should have exterminated them all. Down into the little valley we pour ed, right into the face of the English fire, and shouting all the time "Give them the bayonet!"

The batteries hurled their grape-shot point blank upon us. It was then, for the first time, I saw the English close at hand. They had fair skins and vere clean shaven like respectable izens. They can fight well, too-but we are as good as they. Every shot of the English told; and this forced us to break our ranks, for men are not mere palisades.

And almost at the same moment we saw a mass of red dragoons, on gray horses, sweeping along like the and sabring our stragglers without mercy. It was one of the most terrible moments of my life as we were driven back.

What a fearful thing is a battle! Then out came Marshal Ney waving his sword in the air. Older, thinner and more bony than when I saw him but still the same brave soldier with the clear eyes that seemed to "Forward." he cried. "I shall lead you myself!" And we rushed ahead, one after the other like a pack of wolves, until we gained the principal outpost of the British.

But suddenly the rumor spread that the Prussians were coming. I felt myself grow pale.

At that moment cries of "Vive l'Empercur!" rose from thousands or throats behind us, and looking back I saw all our cavalry of the right wing advancing to attack the solid squares of the English. It was an awesome ed pell-mell again and again upon the red-coats. Twenty such charges they made, until the hors of our culras-siers, exhausts could no blonger even walk—anthere still firmly great at lines, steadfast as stood the Now all that remained for attack

And Ney commanded them! Upon the Guard fell the concentrated hail of bullets. In twenty minutes every officer had been dismounted and Guard, reduced from three thousand men to twelve hundred, slowly

Now the entire English army fell upon us. And, as the remnant of the Old Guard fell backward, across the field fled hussars, cuirassiers, artillery and infantry like an army of savages

What can I tell you more? It was utter rout. And in the valley old Blucher, with forty thousand Prussians, was looming up.

The end had come-and I went like a child.

Back we scurried, borne down with fatigue, hunger and despair.

"Keep on," cried Buche, "the Prussians take no prisoners. Look! they are cutting down everyone."

So back, back, even to Paris we fled, and there we learned that hostilities were to be suspended, that the emperor had gone, and that the king was returning to the throne. Desertions began.

I hurried on from village to village and at last reached Pfalzbourg-and my home. Up the stairs I sprang; Catherine was in my arms. I fell to sobbing so violently that one would have thought misfortune had come upon me.

The first words of Catherine were Joseph, I knew that you would come I had put my trust in God."

Thus happiness finally reached us. Now I have lived to see the return of the flag of liberty and to see the nation increase in wealth, in education and in happiness. People begin to understand their rights. They know that war only brings increase of tax ation and suffering; and when the people, as masters, shall say, "Instead of sending our sons to perish by thousands beneath the sword and the cannon, we will have them taught and made men!" who will dare gainsay

In this hope I bid you farewell, my friends, and I embrace you with all my heart.

-The theory that Bolccaneers, agents or sympathizs responsible for the disappearance of more than twenty merchant vessels off the Virginia and Carolina coasts during the last six months received a decided impetus when officials investigating the case came possession of a detailed official account of the seizure of the Cuxhaven fishing steamer. Foes of Opium Ask That China Stop the Cultivation of the Plant.

Washington.—Support for recomnendations in the report of the com mission on the opium traffic of the League of Nations has been urged oferences here with government officials and others by Mrs. Hamilton Wright, one of the experts attached to the commission. Mrs. Wright asisted in the preparation of the report submitted to the league council. Many messages have been sent to Geneva by American organizations urging favorable action on the recommendation as the only means of pre venting the revival of the opium traffic.

While the report itself has not yet been made public, it is understood that it includes two principal recommendations:

1. The council is requested to seek permission from the central government of China for consuls of league members to address themselves in that country directly to the leaders of the Chinese military forces, urging them to give up the cultivation of the poppy.

2. The council is requested to appoint a special commission of inquiry point a special commission of inquiry the provinces in to visit person y the provinces in China where the poppy is grown to ascertain the expent of the cultiva-tion and the methods of marketing the

FINDS A LABELED TURTLE Kentucky Farmer Picks Up One Upon Which His Neighbor Carved.

Initials Years Ago.

Lenoxburg, Ky.—Forty-four years ago J. T. McClanahan, who at that time owned a farm near here, carved his name on the shell of a small land turtle that he had caught. He then liberated the turtle. A few days ago Peter Sheppard, who now owns the adjoining farm, caught a turtle, and upon examining it closely learned that it was the same turtle on which McClanahan had carved his initials forty-four years ago. Recently he found another turtle on which Sheppard's father carved his name, John Sheppard, twenty-eight years ago. The shells of the turtles had been Admiral Sims, whose recent remarks in London about the Sinn Feiners worn almost smooth, but it still was easy to discern the carving of the criticism, is here shown names.

"Accidents will happen in the best-regulated families." In spite of the most careful protection from dust, flies, or exposure to the sun, milk occasionally turns sour in the refrigerator during the hottest months. It may be that there is more left-over milk than usual, or that the ice supply is low, or that heat or thunder have affected the milk, Sour milk, nevertheless, has the same food value as it had originally, specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say, because it is still a source of lime for bone building, of protein for tissue repair.

Lactic Acid Considered Healthful. The bacteria which have caused souring are not necessarily harmful, if the milk was properly cared for, and the effect of those which caused the development of the lactic acid in the milk is thought by some to be beneficial. VINEGAR USEFUL IN VEGETABLE CANNING

Time of Processing May Be Somewhat Reduced.

Two Years of Experimental Work or Subject Made by Home Economics Kitchen-Much Corn Reported Spoiled Last Year.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-ment of Agriculture.)

A little vinegar added to beans, corn, peas, asparagus, or spinach when canned by the water-bath method, will add materially in the reduction of loss by spoilage. Moreover, the time of processing these vegetables may be somewhat reduced when a sufficient amount of acid is used, the home economics kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture reports after two years of experimental work on the subject.

In certain sections of the country in 1910 and 1920 canned sweet corn did not keep well, whether processed continuously or intermittently. In the home economics kitchen quart cans of corn processed for less than six hours continuously spoiled, while others canned at the same time, with the addition of four tablespoons of vinegar to one quart, did not spoil either year, although given only two hours process. ing. If only three tablespoonfuls of vinegar are used, process four hours; two or three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice to a quart have equally good results when processed three hours. Corn should always be boiling hot when packed into the jar.

With spinach and string beans the addition of two tablespoonfuls of the acid proved equally effective in reduc-ing spoilage. Vinegar or lemon juice in the small amounts used modifies some degree the natural flavor of the vegetable, but the acid taste is not objectionable to most persons Moreover, much of the acid taste can be washed off before the vegetables are served. Experiments with vinegar and other acids in canning vegetables will be continued in the kitchen next portant Mineral Matters, Mild Acids and Vitamines.

Fruit is food. It supplies some sugar and the important mineral matters, mild fruit acids, and vitamines, say experts in the United States Depart ment of Agriculture, office of home economics. These food substances help to keep the body in good health and to prevent constipation.

Use fresh fruit whenever possible and can the surplus. Apples, pears, plums, peaches, cherries, oranges grapefruit, grapes, bananas, avocados, berries—the list is very long. Somewhere in the United States some of them are always in season, and some are in market everywhere much of the time.

Use dried fruits, either home dried or those on sale almost everywhere Soak prunes, dried apples, dried apricots in water overnight and cook them long enough to make them tender.

Properties in Union, Stafford and several other townships have been changing hands and many more are expected to ere the year closes. Folks are getting tired of the high rents in the cities. Some proposes the cities. Some propose to go in the chicken business.

The political pot is beginning to boil and soon we shall see numerous candidates for each office. We would be pleased to see some of the ladies out electioneering as well as the men. There is one already and there is no reason why there should not be more. The Interborough Press of Spring City, Pa., published by our former H. S. Principal, W. H. Brown, is in our hands and is a fine paper. It contained an account of an automobile collision, in which there were 3 deaths and 40 injured, and Mr. Brown was among the injured, receiving body bruises but not seriously hurt and was able to resume his duties at the office. We are glad he was not seriously hurt.

THE FORD ONE-TON TRUCK

A S a matter of fact we might almost as well call it a Three-Ton Truck, for it very rarely carries a smaller sized load. The owners of the Ford truck take advantage of the high qualities of materials which are known to be put in the Ford car, take advantage of the high quality of Ford workmanship which characterizes Ford cars and they overload to the limit. Well, the Ford truck has never broken down with any of these overloads. It delivers expectations and double expectations, so far as carrying capacity is concerned, and while that is not fair to the truck, still the owners are satisfied.

But the Ford one-ton truck, with its aluminum bronze worm drive, its greater weight and strength of frame and its incomparable power plant, is without a reasonable competitor in price, in service, in cost of operation. It is the lowest priced truck on the market, of equal capacity. No other truck on the market operates so economically and we believe there is no other truck that will give as satisfactory and profitable re-sults. Our allotment is limited. Better leave your order without delay.

BIGGS AND BIM.

Synopsis. — Samson and Sarah Traylor, with their two children Josiah and Betsey, travel by wagon from their home in Vergennes, V., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the Country of the Sangarnon, in Illinois. At Niagara Falls they meet John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangarnon country. Sarah's ministrations save the life of Harry Needles, and he accompanies the Traylors. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young Abe accompanies the Traylors. McNeil is markedly attentive to Ann Rufledge. Lincoln is in love with Ann, but has never had enough currage to tell her so. Harry loves Dim. Traylor helps two slaves, what run away from St. Louis. Eliphalet Biggs, owner of the slaves, has his arm broken by Traylor.

In a frontier newspaper of that ime it is recorded that the minister and his dog kept the slaver on the roof all day, vainly trying with prayer and exhortation to convert his soul. The man stopped swearing before dinner and on his promise not again to violate the commandment a good meal was handed up to him. He was liberated at sundown and spent the night with Samson spoke not more than a dozen words on his way back to New Salem. Amazed and a little shocked by his own conduct, he sat thinking. After he had heard and seen, the threat of the young upstart had provoked him beyond his power of endurance. The sensitive mind of the New Enghad been hurt by the story of the fugitives. Upon this hurt the young man had poured the turpentine of haughty, imperial manners. more he thought of it the less inclined he was to reproach himself for his violence. Slavery was a relic of ancient imperialism. It had no right in free America. There could be no peace with it save for a little time.

The stories would travel like fire in So, swiftly, the thoughts of men were being prepared for the great battle lines of the future, Samson saw the peril of it.

The Missourians would tell their friends of the lawless and violent men of the North, who cared not a fig for the property rights of a Southerner.

As they rode along young Mr. Biggs complained of pain and Samson made a sling of his muffler and put it over the neck and arm of the injured Biggs and drove with care to avoid jolting, For the first time Samson took a careful and sympathetic look at him. He was a handsome youth, about six feet tall, with dark eyes and hair and a small black mustache and teeth very white and even. In New Salem Samson took him to Doctor Allen's office and helped the doctor in setting the broken bone Then he went to Offut's store and found Abe reading his law book and gave him an account of his adventure.

"I'm both glad and sorry," said Abe. "I'm glad that you licked the slaver and got the negroes out of his reach. I reckon I'd have done the same if could. I'm sorry because it looks to me like the beginning of many troubles. The whole subject of slavery is full of danger. Naturally Southern men will fight for their property, and there is a growing number in the North who will fight for their prinwonder what will become of the coun It reminds me of the man who found a skunk in his house. That evening Samson set down the events of the day in his book and quoted the dialogue in Offut's store in which he had had a part. On the first of February, 1840, he put these words

Young Mr. Biggs remained at Rutledge's tavern for three weeks with his arm in a sling under the eye of the good doctor. The Rutledges were Kentucky folk and there the young man had found a sympathetic hearing and tender care.

It had done him good to be hurled against a barn door and to fall trembling and confused at the feet of his master. He had never met his master until he had reached Hopedale that morning. The event had been too long delayed. Encouraged by idleness and conceit and alcohol, evil passions had Restraint had been a thing unknown in which he had lived by a sense of divine right. "Bim, I saw you fly up that ladder. Come back down. Here's a right nice young man come to see you."
"Is he good-looking?" Bim called,

"Oh, purty as a picture, black eyes and hair and teeth, like pearls, and tall and straight, and he's got a be-e-autiful) little mustache."

"That's enough!" Bim exclaimed. 'I just wish there was a knot hole in this floor"

"Come on down here," Ann urged. "His cheeks are as red as roses and ne's got a lovely ring and big watch

In a few minutes Bim called from the top of the ladder to Ann. The latter went and looked up at her. Both girls burst into peals of merry laughter. Bim had put on a suit of her father's old clothes and her buffalo skin whiskers and was a wild sight.

"Don't you come down looking like that," said Ann.. "I'll go up there and 'tend to you."

Ann climbed the ladder and for a time there was much laughing and Blackstone in Offut's store that afterchattering in the little loft. By and by Ann came down. timidly she gave her hand to Mr. Biggs.

"It's just the right dress," he said. "'Ye know,' says Eb. glad to see you. I have never seen a come and see you often, if your mother will let me."

"No," said Mr. Biggs.

"I was afraid," Bim exclaimed, "My Uncle Henry does." She looked into Mr. Biggs' eyes. Mr. Biggs laughed. "That smile of yours is very becoming," he said.

At this point Mr. Kelso returned with his gun on his shoulder and was introduced to Mr. Biggs.

"I welcome you to the hazards of my fireside," said Kelso. "So you're from St. Louis and stopped for pairs in this land of the ladder climbers. Sit down and I'll put a log on

Soon after the supper dishes had young Mr. Biggs rapped on its door and sat down with Mr. and Mrs. Kelso at the fireside,

"I have come to ask for your daughter's hand," he said, as soon as they were seated. "I know it will seem sudden, but she happens to be the girl I want. I've had her picture in heart always. I love your daughter. I can give her a handsome home and

Kelso answered promptly: "We ar glad to welcome you here, but we cannot entertain such a proposal, flatter-ing as it is. Our daughter is too young to think of marriage. Then, sir, we know very little about and may I be pardoned if I add that it does not recommend you?"

The young man was surprised. He had not expected such talk from

"And now and then something that you don't want," said Kelso, a bit nettled by his persistence.

"You ought to think of her happiness. She is too sweet and beautiful for a home like this."

There was an awkward moment of silence. The young man said goodnight and opened the door "I'll go with you," said Kelso,

He went with Mr. Biggs to the tav ern and got his daughter and returned

Mrs. Kelso chided her husband for being hard on Mr. Biggs.

HOW TO RETAIN YOUTH LONG

Learn to Employ the Passing Years With Constantly Increasing Wis-dom and Discretion.

Youth is a quality, a spiritual energy. and, properly speaking, there is no "old age," but spiritual decay. "The foot less prompt to meet the morning dew" is no valid evidence of growing old, any more than to lose a leg in Fussy physical activities are tests of youth, writes Richard Le Gallienne in Harper's Magazine. That brain of Sophocles which gave us the greatest play at 90, is more saying recorded of him, in reference cooling of the passions with the years, that to grow old was like being set free from service to a band of madmen. Because we grow wiser and stronger less selfish and generally more useful years is not to say that we have lost have learned how to employ it. We did. fruits and vegetables are of more inof short-measure packages at the full-measure price, which is inevitable if the difference in the size of the packages is not easily detected, but also the cost of marketing is increased by the greater expense of manufacturing a large number of unnecessary style and sizes and by breakage in transit, sometimes directly attributable to the difficulty of loading odd-sized containers. These losses constitute an unnecessary tax on the fruit and vegetable industry that the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture, is endeavoring to cut down by fostering the use of standard containers.

Old-Time Units Cause Confusion.

Local package units that came into use long ago are most largely responsible for present difficulties. Such packages may have been satis to a limited territory, but of late years rapid transportation and the use of special refrigerator and ventilator cars have brought the products of another, make serious errors in selectevery section of this country into our great marketing centers, where the di- is naturally poor, but largely because versity of styles and sizes of containers have resulted in unnecessary con-

There are in common use today about 40 sizes of cabbage crates, 20 of the United States Department of styles of celery crates, 30 lettuce crates or boxes, 50 styles and sizes of hampers, 15 styles and sizes of round stave baskets, and market baskets, varying in size from 1 to 24 quarts, whereas relatively few standard sizes would satisfy all the demands of the trade.

The unfair competition of shortneasure containers has been another unsatisfactory factor. Certain shrewd packers have found that by slight modifications in the shape of pack-ages the cubical contents can be reduced substantially without noticeably affecting the appearance.

Short-Measure Package.

Commodities sold in these containers can be offered at a lower price per package than those sold in standard packages, but the price by unit of weight is, of course, higher. Often this has caused the general adoption of the short-measure package, and there is no end to this procedure, for once the short measure is recognized as the standard a still shorter one is put out by an unscrupious minority.
The six-quart market basket, the 14-quart peach basket, the seven-eighths-bushel bean hamper, and the five-peck lettuce hamper are confused with peck, half-bushel, bushel and 1½-bushel baskets.

Another factor which has caused the addition of many unnecessary packages is the lack of a unit which age standards. If a manufacturer ducing section normally using the barrel instead of using the bushel unit, the tendency is to offer a barre ent time the crates and boxes are be ing manufactured in sizes based or the United States standard barrel (105 quarts) with its subdivisions, United States cranberry barrel 45-64 quarts) with its subdivisions, the weight bushel, the heaped bushel, and the volume bushel. The heap has been referred to as a cone, the base being the top of the measure, and the height depending upon the nature of the article when piled "as high as may be without special effort or design." Such vegetables as sweet potatoes under this definition might be piled so high

Many farmers, especially the youner men, in moving from one region to ing farms, not because their judgment they know only one set of conditions and are not all to weigh accurately all the new factors that must be taken into account, say specialists Agriculture. Here the science farm management is helpful, in that the farm-management from point the farm is put on a business basis.

In doing this, however, the home side of the question must always be kept in mind. The farm home and the farm business are inseparable. A desirable farm, from a business standpoint, is nevertheless undesirable if it has no social or community advantages. On the other hand, desirable living conditions are of little or no advantage unless accompanied by a successful farm business.

PICK AND PREPARE BERRIES

Care Must Be Exercised by Grower in Snipping Blackberries by Parcel Post.

If a grower wishes to ship blackperries by parcel post, he should exercise care in picking and packing the berries. Carelessness in picking and handling blackberries sometimes causes more injury to the fruit than does the treatment given while in transit, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Success in shipping blackberries is dependent largely on favorable weath er conditions and the way in which the fruit is handled in transit.
