CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT AT THE M. E. CHURCH

One of the best Christmas entertainments ever given in the M. E. Church, was held on Monday night last and everyone present gave a standing vote of appreciation.

The decorations, arranged by Harry White and Jennie N. Pharo, were beautiful with Christmas greens, including a number of cedar trees and an abundance of holly. Joseph H. Brown was also on the scene with his ever-ready automobile to help haul the trees.

The entertainment was under the auspices of several leaders, including Mrs. Walter Hoey, with her Sunday School class, Mrs. Archie Pharo, Jr., Mrs. Ida Spencer, Mrs. Malinda Stiles and Miss Sara Mathis. The children were never in better trim and were present almost without an exception which was very unusual. Remarkable talent both in song and elocution was displayed by the many who took part.

Little Mary Headley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Headley, aged six, not a member of the Sunday School, but living in our midst, rendered two recitations, showing unusual talent and ability. Her little sister, Elizabeth, spoke a little piece at the close of the service and she bids fair to equal her sister.

Mrs. Hoey's class sang very well in a special selection. They also rendered a little Christmas play. Another number was given by Mrs. Hoey and one of her pupils, Dorothy Gale, who marched slowly up the aisle of the darkened church robed in pure white and singing "In the Cross."

As she came to the platform on which stood a beautiful electrically lighted white cross, Mrs. Hoey sang "Rock of Ages" while Dorothy demonstrated the song before the Cross as she sang.

The program was as follows: Hymn from the Hymnal Prayer Rev. Daniel Johnson Song "Welcome," Primary Department

CAPT. O. R. DARBY IN CHARGE OF CRAFT GOING SOUTH FOR WINTER

The Mariette Will Put in Winter Off Coast of Florida

The following was published in a recent issue of the Boston Traveler: "The Mariette, a 90-foot houseboat, the last word in craft of that type, owned jointly by J. Fred Brown of Boston and C. L. Perrin of New York, coast off on their moorings at the army base pier, South Boston, late Friday afternoon, starting on a cruise that will end in a three months' stay in the balmy climate off the coast of Florida.

"The Mariette is a composite vessel a combination of the speedy yacht and a comfortable houseboat. Its underbody has the characteristics of the fast-moving yacht, while its superstructure and its interior accommodations are designed for the same of comfort. It is 90 feet long, 20 feet beam, and has a draught of 3 foot 6 inches. It can maintain an average speed of nine knots an hour with its two Winton 80-horsepower gasoline engines. The light and heat are furnished by electricity, supplied by a 110-volt Winton generator and an ample reserve of storage battery. There is also a refrigeration plant and condensing system.

Cabins With Private Baths

"The interior of the boat is a marvel in its perfection of ship architecture and delicately harmonious coloring. There is a spacious dining saloon that will accommodate a score of guests, beautifully decorated in old ivory and old rose, and equipped with all the up-to-date conveniences that go to make up the modern nautical dining room; electric dummy elevator, cool cooled refrigerator, a sideboard of antique mahogany and chairs and tables of the same design. There are five cabins with sleeping accommodations suitable for eight persons, all finished in old ivory and decorated in delicate tints of old rose and gold and pale blue and gold, each being connected with a private bath of the latest design and equipment.

No Space Wasted

"In the kitchen there is an electric range, electric dish-washing machine and other apparatus that go to make up the ideal kitchen. All over the ship one is impressed by the order and compactness of everything. No space is wasted.

"Mr. Brown, one of the owners of the Mariette, is also the owner of the big auxiliary schooner Mariette; in fact he has owned four yachts of the same name. It is intention to spend three months aboard the houseboat, with a party of friends, in Florida waters. The Mariette is commanded by Capt. O. R. Darby, of Tuckerton."

Popcorn and Pink Lemonade

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"Well," said Uncle Jack at the breakfast table, as he unfolded his napkin with one flick, "I suppose next week I have to make a sacrifice of myself, neglect my business, and waste the whole of a rare June afternoon. How about it, Billy?"

His young nephew, at the sound of his name, lifted uncomprehending eyes from his maternal egg-toast-cocoa combination. "What you say, Uncle Jack?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing. Nothing at all. At least, nothing of importance. I merely remarked—here this exasperating young man paused, then added impressively—that the circus, the really, truly circus, stupendous, unparalleled—"

"Circus, Uncle Jack? Circus? Oh, gosh, Uncle Jack, going to take me?" Now the reader must be immediately disabused regarding Uncle Jack's apparent reluctance to go to the circus. Uncle Jack would rather go to the circus than do almost anything else, unless it were to spend the equivalent hours in the company of Miss Caroline Prescott—an alternative, however, which was out of the question.

For only yesterday Jack with considerable vehemence for him, had told that tantalizing young woman that he was bestly sick of being fifth vice president in the firm of devoted Fitch & Carriers for her ladyship and was ready to sell out all shares at once to the latest comer. Caroline had returned a retort discourteous, and, another one of the vice presidents arriving inopportunely, Jack had taken an abrupt departure.

Now the question reasonably arises as to just why Jack should have expected any special consideration. He did not on the grounds of having squired Caroline ever since he had first held her miniature umbrella over her head on the way to kindergarten and of having asked her to marry him semi-annually ever since she was seventeen and he nineteen—some five or six years ago. But with each passing year she had added new charms and piquancies which attracted new admirers until it looked as if her old-time companion would be crowded out of the running.

So much for the preliminaries which helped to bring about Billy's circus trip. Sailor-suited and exuberant, he trotted along by his uncle's side and explored the dusty environs of the grounds, poked peanuts at the trunk-waving elephants, gazed rapturously at South American anteaters and Australian marsupials suddenly and unscientifically become neighbors, and finally in the awed silence of expectancy, entered the big tent and headed for grandstand seats.

"Wait, uncle. There's Jean. Wait, Uncle Jack!"

"Now Billy, if we expect to get our seats before someone else does—never sit in my own seat at a circus yet, Bill!"

For Billy was tugging backward at his uncle's hand. "Wait for Jean. She's hurrying like everything. Her Aunt Caroline—"

At the name, Jack halted abruptly, and somewhere in the back of his mind an association of ideas began to form. Jean—Caroline's niece! Yes, there they were, sure enough, although from Caroline's unconcern he felt sure she had not seen him. Fresh and cool in green linen and wide hat. Lord! how attractive she was and what a darn shame he couldn't follow his impulse to rush wildly over. Yet dignity demanded that he stick by his guns.

Through the performance which followed, Jack was quite as conscious that Caroline was sitting directly in back of him, three rows up, as if he had had eyes in the back of his head, or as if Billy hadn't told him. He held himself stiffly and refused to relax even at the utmost efforts of near-human monkeys or bouncing clowns. Why had Caroline come to the circus without bringing along at least one of her escorts?

The afternoon seemed as long to Jack as it was brief for Billy, but the moment finally arrived when the last chariot race had been won, the spangled beauty had defied death and the laws of gravity for the last time, and the greatest show on earth, in a blaze of trumpets, was over until evening. Jack rose, determined not to glance around, yet somehow or other in the slowly-moving crowd jamming the aisles he managed to keep always in sight a bit of green linen. Half-way to the entrance one of those inexplicable occurrences took place which arise from very small beginnings. A muffled explosion from an automobile outside, the roar of a hungry lion in its cage—something alarmed the mob at one of the exits. Immediately the spirit of panic permeated the atmosphere.

There. People who had been patiently waiting space to move, pressed forward. Common sense indicated that in a moment the place couldn't help but empty itself. Yet in that moment how much could happen!

Somewhat, Jack got Billy on his shoulder, elbowed a bit ahead, and slipped his arm about a figure in green linen. "Keep tight hold of the youngster," he urged, and managed to draw the two of them out on to a row of seats.

"There! That's better!" he said. "Although the trouble's over, I imagine." Then he began to feel embarrassed and avoided looking directly at Caroline, whose own cheeks were rosy.

Billy unintentionally increased the tension. "I guess," he began importantly, "you're glad, Miss Caroline, I told you my Uncle Jack was going to take me to the circus. I guess—"

"Caroline! Did you—did you know—"

"It was a satisfactory circus," said Caroline. "Wasn't it?"

"Oh, Caroline," said Jack humbly, so low that the children couldn't hear, even if they had not been comparing notes. "I'm sorry for all I said that afternoon. Take me back and I'll—I'll be office boy!"

But Caroline, who still retained a thrilling memory of the feel of Jack's arm about her waist, shook her head gently. "Let's go into partnership," she murmured, "and freeze out the others!"

"Don't forget, Uncle Jack," reminded Billy, whose upbringing was dietetically perfect. "I can have some popcorn and pink lemonade. It's a special occasion, you know!"

"A special occasion? I'll say it is, old man!" exclaimed his uncle fervently.

Giant Butterflies. It is said that in the northern part of New Guinea there are butterflies so large that the natives hunt them with the bow and arrow. They belong to the species Troides chimaera and they are not only among the largest, but among the rarest butterflies in the world. Some specimens measure eleven and one-half inches across the wings.

The males, which are very shy, are found only at certain hours of the day and at the tops of lofty blossom-bearing trees. The natives sometimes shoot the butterflies with four-pronged arrows, and sometimes capture them in nets made of spiders' webs. The first specimens were taken to London not so long ago by Meek, who had spent more than twenty years in New Guinea hunting rare varieties of birds and insects for American and European collections.—Washington Star.

Monosyllabic Language. In the monosyllabic languages the words are composed of simple monosyllabic roots isolated, and, as a rule, independent of one another. In this elementary form of language, the root words correspond in their essence with general conceptions only, and are unrestricted by any notions of person, gender, number, time, mood, or relationship.

The principal monosyllabic languages are the Chinese, Annamese, Siamese, Burman and Tibetan. To these may be added the Pegu in British Burma, and the Kasia, confined to a district in the south of Assam.

True Way to Make Discoveries. "Never refuse to see what you do not want to see or which might go against your own cherished hypothesis or against the views of authorities. These are just the clues to follow up, as is also and emphatically so the thing you have never seen or heard of before. The thing you cannot get a pleonhole for is the finger point showing the way to discovery."

This advice to scientists and others was given in a lecture by Sir Patrick Manson, the celebrated British physician who discovered that malaria is caused by mosquitoes.

Water Creatures Live Long. Among fishes and creatures that live in the water, great age is sometimes attained. The carp has been known to live 200 years. Common river trout have been confined in a well 30 to 50 years and a pike was caught in 1407 in a lake near Heilbronn in Swabia with a brass ring attached to it recounting that it was placed in the lake in the year 1230.

A Property Car. "You'll never make a motor salesman." "Why not, sir?" "You tried to sell that movie actor a flivver, instead of showing him the most expensive cars we carry." "Don't misjudge me, boss. He just wanted something on four wheels to drive over a cliff."

First Olympian Games. July 1 is the anniversary of the awarding of the prize in the first recorded Olympian games in 776, B. C. On that occasion Charoebus won the coveted trophy for the foot races.

as many as 15,000 undergraduates at Berkeley—boys in corduroy trousers and class caps, girls in pink and sky-blue silk sweaters, in all sorts of costumes, from severe black and white collars to French heels and picture hats.

In the pause between recitations you will see a great covey of these airy, fairy coeds laughing at one end of a broad marble entrance, while a crowd of boys, with an earnestness and abandon impossible at 11 o'clock in the morning in the more self-conscious East, are roaring "close" harmony at the other. To anyone accustomed to the stern monasticism of Cambridge or Princeton, it is like a scene from a musical comedy.—Arthur Ruhl in Harper's.

Legacy Is Now 231 Years Behind

Will of Col. Lewis Morris Left Six Pounds Sterling Annually to Quakers.

DISCOVERED IN OLD RECORDS

Arrears Without Any Interest Total $6,468—No Record in Found of Any Payment From Bronx Lands of Testator.

New York.—Through a search of one of the oldest records of the Surrogate's court, it has just been discovered that in the will of Col. Lewis Morris, dated December 7, 1691, an annual legacy of $6 was bequeathed to the Society of Friends in New York.

Members of the Friends were very much surprised to hear of this old bequest, as there is no trace today of any such fund among the records of either the meeting on Twentieth street or in the minutes of the Sixties on Fifteenth street.

An investigation is planned to aid in the payment of past and future amounts due from such a bequest, in the event that it should be possible to collect it. John Cox, Jr., the custodian of the records of both meetings, was very much interested in the news of the old legacy, and stated there had never been received such a sum from the Morris estate.

As 230 years have elapsed since the will was filed, the total amount due, without interest, would be $6,468.

Col. Lewis Morris was one of the most distinguished men of his day, and was the predecessor of a long line of noted statesmen, through his brother, Capt. Richard Morris, who fought under Cromwell. Among the descendants were Lewis Morris II, chief justice of New York and governor of New Jersey; his son, Robert Morris, governor of Pennsylvania and chief justice of New Jersey; while the four sons of the succeeding generation included Morris III, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and a general in the Revolutionary war, and his brother, Gouverneur, minister to France, patriot and United States senator.

Converted by George Fox, the founder of the Quakers, during a successful venture in the West Indies at Barbados, where Colonel Morris and his brother, Richard, had large plantations, the legacy to the Friends in New York was a result of the conversion of Colonel Morris to that faith.

The will reads, in part as follows: "I give and bequeath to my honored friend, William Penn, my Negro man, Yaff, provided the said Penn shall come to dwell in America."

"I give and bequeath unto the Meeting of Friends in the Province of New York the Sum of six pounds per annum, to be paid out of my Plantation over against Harlem in the same Province, by whomsoever shall enjoy same . . . on every twenty-fifth day of the month called March, Yearly and every Year, forever until such Persons . . . as shall be appointed by the General Meetings of Friends (called Quakers) in ye said Province, to be employed as they shall judge on Truth's account."

It is especially interesting to note, in view of the high offices and influence wielded later on by his nephew, Lewis Morris II, in what low esteem he was held by his uncle, Colonel Morris, for the will continues: "And whereas I formerly intended to have made my nephew, Lewis Morris . . . my whl. Executor, his many and Great Miscarriages and Disobedience towards me and my wife, and his causeless Absenting himself from my house and Adhering to and Advising with those of Bad Life and Conversation, Contrary to my Direction and Example . . . following which, Colonel Morris leaves him 2,000 acres in the Shrewsbury district in New Jersey, "one of my best mares running in the Woods" and 2,000 acres of land known as "Bronxland" on the north of the Harlem River.

Charged Against "Bronxland." It was from this property that the six pounds left annually to the Friends Meeting was to be drawn. Jonas Bronck, the original settler in 1639, had received a charter from the Dutch West India company, and Lewis Morris, on receiving his inheritance, procured from Governor Fletcher in 1697 a royal patent and founded the Manor of Morrisania.

Whether the bequest to the Quakers was ever made is difficult to say, and almost impossible to trace at this late date, as the New York records of the Friends do not go back that far. There undoubtedly was ample provision in the estate left by Colonel Morris, for in the accounting made following the proving of the will 1844 alone was due from the total of negroes held by the Morris estate.

Veils Being Discarded in Turkey

The change that has come over Turkey may be appreciated by this photograph of a throng of women waiting in Constantinople to greet the Kemalists. Up to a short time ago not one of them would have dared to appear in public unless her face was covered with a veil, but the custom of centuries is being abandoned.

Siberia's Republic

Young Woman Bread Merchant of Siberia.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.) The passing of the Far Eastern republic of Siberia recalls that this picturesque government, which Moscow was willing to have exist as a buffer state toward the Japanese-occupied territory around Vladivostok, was supposed to be built on the model of the United States, but with certain radical "attachments." It is even probable that, though the country is federated with the Moscow government, its individualistic tendencies may continue; for the pioneer conditions of Siberia and the struggle against them have developed an individualism in the Siberians not unlike that which grew in our Westerners.

When the daylight is fading and the long shadows are stretching across the plains, one realizes the vastness of Siberia—panorama of a gently undulating, silent sea, green and brown, or unending white.

The area of the Far Eastern republic is 450,000 square miles, larger than Texas and California combined, yet it is only the southeast corner of Siberia, one-twentieth of the former Russian empire. From Vladivostok, on the coast, to Verkhne-Udinsk, on the republic's western boundary, is more than 1,700 miles by rail, and little more than one-third of Siberia has been crossed. Usually the train is the only sign of life. As far as the eye can see, the telegraph poles stand sentry along the winding railroad, fading away in the distance.

Everywhere now are the scars of war. It may be a locomotive, rusty and half covered with sand, lying in the ditch where it plunged with its human freight. It may be the skeleton of a train, deserted on a side track, burned except for the steel framework of cars and trucks. Twisted rails, wrecked bridges, or shattered fragments, where an ammunition train has blown up, vary the picture.

A peasant's wagon, with shaggy galloping ponies and the invariable dog trotting behind, is a sign that a village is near. The lamps on the station platform are gone and semaphores of the old days stand with broken arms, for this is now a moonbeam railroad, running without signals or headlights.

Railroad Still Running. The railroad is the most important public utility of the republic. Poverty and dilapidation have overwhelmed it, just as they have gripped the fallen gentry of the barakholka. It keeps running, which is about all. With the obstacles which must be overcome, the marvel is that even that is accomplished.

The passenger coaches are unheated in winter, windows dirty and broken, electric light fixtures wrenched out bodily, lavatories filled with dirt, rough boards where once were mirrors, doors nailed shut or broken off, and the floors splintered from being used as chopping blocks. The proletariat seems to relish a martyrdom to darkness and dirt.

The Far Eastern republic has 2,929 miles of railroad, exclusive of the 1,100 miles of the Chinese Eastern railroad, which also belongs to Russia. They are more of a liability than an asset.

As a part of the Transsiberian, the system of an empire straddling across two continents, these miles of road give access to the Pacific. They are more than the republic will need for many years to come. The 1,488 miles of the Amur road, along the river through tracts of virgin forest, a country rich in gold and silver but undeveloped. Geologists believe there is not a 150-mile stretch of this road where coal cannot be mined. It was constructed for military purposes, and when the war broke out, much of it had not been ballasted.

When one travels in Siberia these days, at regular intervals the train stops and the conductor plops along the side, shouting "Tovarischiya drovami!" It is the call for the "comrades" to pile out and carry sticks from the neighboring woodpiles to the locomotive. It is a crude study in communism.

Most of the passengers, women and girls as well as men, make their way leisurely across the fields. Some climb on the tender, and the fuel is loaded as by a bucket brigade at an old-time fire.

Propaganda is the gripping force of the government. Every employee or soldier gets a free newspaper, and a Russian newspaper is always more enthusiastic for its country and some particular local party than it is for news.

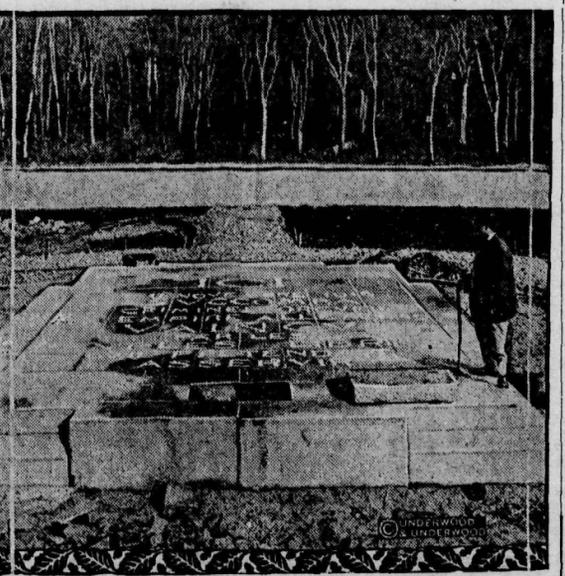

In each city is a reading room, and the demand for books on industry, electricity, mechanics, metallurgy, medicine, agriculture, and other useful sciences largely exceeds the limited number of well-thumbed copies.

Without constancy there is neither love, friendship, nor virtue in the world.—Addison.

Recipe for a Happy Life

Three ounces are necessary, first of patience, then of repose and peace; of conscience a pound entire is needful; of pastimes of all sorts, too, should be gathered as much as the hand can hold; of pleasant memory and of hope three good drachms there must be at least. But they should be moistened with a liquor made from true pleasures which rejoice the heart. Then of love's magic drops, a few—but use them sparingly, for they may bring a flame which naught but tears can drown. Grind the whole and mix therewith of merriment an ounce to even. Yet all this may not bring happiness except in your origins you lift your voice to Him who holds the gift of health.—Margaret, Queen of Navarre.

PLENTY OF FOX FURS IN ALASKA

to the mainland by the waters. Foxes have been known to try this, but not being strong swimmers have drowned. During the warm summer months the animals are left to rustle their own food, but in winter the ranchers stock feeding stations with dried salmon. About Christmas time the foxes are trapped, skinned and the pelts salted down and shipped to the fur markets of the United States.

ON THE GREAT BERKELEY CAMPUS

Scene Presented at University of California Has Been Likened to Musical Comedy.

On the University of California campus the sun blazes on a white campanile, on the white faces of huge new buildings, on the mountainous, smooth brown hills that climb up behind the campus, and far out through the haze, on the blue of San Francisco bay. Instead of sober New England elms, are altitudinous, half tropical eucalyptus, with rustling, gray green leaves and aromatic scent that somehow reminds one of Australia or Kipling's India and saddle horses and slightly arrogant "colonials" in riding clothes.

Terrific Force of Habit.

An illustration of the terrible force of habit, there is the story of the man who had been visiting at the home of a millionaire. When he returned to his boarding house he absent-mindedly left his shoes outside his door to be shined by the butler. When he looked for the shoes the next morning one of the other boarders had made away with them.

THAT was years ago when he packed a terrible grouch, a mighty irritable stomach and a liver that refused to do the things that all good livers should. No wonder his friends called him an "old pill" and stayed away.

But that was years ago—long before he discovered Becham's Pills and learned that two at bedtime can bring sunshine into a man's life. Today, he's an optimist, a hero to his wife, and a staunch believer in Becham's Pills.

"Ring Out the Old, Ring in the New!"

Laurentius Horatius, quem diuisti verum Fugit Euro citius tempus edax rerum.

Tempora mutantur et nos mutamur in illis

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN
 HE Latin has a terse and forceful way of putting things. Now, the first quotation above has been rendered in free-and-easy style:

Old Man Horace, sprigged with bay
 Truly thou dost say, sir
 Time speeds faster on its way
 Than the swiftest racer.

Clever, but the Latin says it more forcibly: Crowned-with-laurel Horace, what you say is true: Files than the southeast wind faster time the devourer of things.

And the second quotation above neatly supplements the first by saying: Times change and we are changed to them. All of which suggests most forcibly that time has destroyed the old-fashioned method of observing several of our American national holidays; that the times have changed and we in them.

Now, there's the Fourth of July, for example. The old-fashioned Fourth is so entirely gone that we don't quite know what to do with the day. In the old days we used to twist the Lion's tail when we didn't know what else to do, but since we fought side by side with the British in the Great War, that seems as out of place as do fire-crackers and the casualty list of small boys.

And it's just about the same with New Year's Day. About all that's left us is to listen to the whistles blowing at midnight and to make good resolutions. And what changes the day has seen since first Americans began its celebration!

America's celebration of New Year's Day owes nothing to Puritan New England. In the North New York, being Dutch, was the center of New Year's gaiety. The South, being English, but not Puritan, also celebrated enthusiastically. The custom of making calls probably is as old as civilized man; it is likely that it originated independently in almost every clime. Old-time European chieftains used to set "New Year's" apart as a day on which they would condescend to receive substantial tributes from their underlings. Queen Elizabeth received New Year's calls every year, and there was always much rivalry between her ambitious courtiers as to the quantity and value of the gifts they should bestow upon the virgin sovereign. It was on a New Year's Day that Sir Walter Raleigh gladdened the queen's heart with a memorable pair of silk stockings—the first ever made and worn in England.

In Holland the custom of making New Year's calls had been general long before the settlement of New Amsterdam, and the natives of the Netherlands who came to live in the New World brought the practice with them. And, of course, they had plenty to eat and drink—for who ever heard of Dutchmen who did not take good care of their stomachs? Up to the beginning of the Nineteenth century the typical New Year's observance was a neighborly custom. Then it became an observance decreed by fashion and was observed in every city of any size in the country. The younger women of such households as had daughters were the hostesses, and great was their rivalry, one with another, in respect of richly loaded refreshment tables and elegance of guards at the doors saw that none except those with credentials got in. During the last hour of the Old Year the people feasted, and at the first stroke of the New Year everybody in every restaurant arose, wine-glass in hand, and drank a health to the New Year. It was comparatively quiet indoors, but the people in the streets made noise enough to scare young 1906. Every sort of noise-making implement known to man except cannon and dynamite bombs was in active use.

"Get your horns and ticklers!" was the prayer roared by thousands of fakers all evening. Trucks and wagons were halted at the curb, loaded with tin horns and thin sticks with a bunch of hackle-feathers at the tip. If you were a real devilish New Year's humorist you proceeded like this: First, tickle some stranger under the chin with the feathers; then, as he turned to protest, you blew the horn in his face.

A universal custom of New Year's of those days was the carrier's New Year's address. This was often in rhyme if the carrier or any of his friends could string the jingling lines together or find an old carrier's address to copy. Such verses as these were popular:

This day devoted now to mirth,
 To open house and social hearth,
 New friendship mounts on airy wings,
 And gives her tuneful harp new strings.
 While plenty spreads a festive board,
 Of wine and food and ample hoard,
 In idleness and laughter say,
 To spend the hours this happy day,
 All save the carrier, whose snowy feet
 Still must pace up the snowy street.
 So give to him a moment's heed,
 Since he alone this comfort needs,
 And to your ample, jovial store
 Let him not find a closed door, etc., etc.

By 1914 there were strong indications of a saner celebration of New Year's. The feasting in restaurants New Year's Eve was still in full blast, with singing and dancing added. But most of the large cities had ordered the police to enforce a "sane" celebration on the streets. In consequence there was less noise and rowdiness out of doors. Chicago, for instance, forbade horns, confetti and ticklers.

Cleveland probably had the "sanest" New Year's Eve in 1914. That city gave the New Year a "community greeting," in keeping with the spirit of community Christmas celebrated a week before. Twelve bands, with 280 musicians, were massed in the public square. To an audience of thousands they played hymns and patriotic airs. Announcement by the police that the midnight closing law would be enforced rigidly cut hotel and restaurant festivities down markedly. In Cincinnati the police had the promise of every hotel, cafe and saloon keeper to close promptly at midnight. Similar conditions prevailed in Detroit and Indianapolis.

Then came the Great War. And then prohibition. So at present the celebration of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day is bewit and between.

What will it be ten years from now? And what a century hence?

"Saint Tammany."

St. Tammany, the tutelary genius of the famous Tammany Society of New York city, was a famous Indian chief, about whom many fancied legends have gathered. He is said to have been a native of Delaware. After attaining his majority, St. Tammany removed to the banks of the Ohio, where he became the great sachem of his tribe, and acquired a wide reputation for wisdom, firmness and moderation. According to tradition, he signed the treaty with William Penn, and was chosen by the troops of Washington as patron saint in place of St. George. His principal maxim was "Unite. In peace for mutual happiness; in war for mutual defense." For what reason he was called "Gaint" does not appear in any of the literature about him.

Every One Heard.
 Six-year-old Helen's father was a busy man and, for comfort, wore his clothing quite loose. He took Helen one night to a circus which was showing in the town.

When the huge elephants were brought into the ring for their stunts, she was uneasy and doubtful. But when the last big elephant passed her seat in making his exit, during a lull in the applause, she exclaimed in a very audible voice: "Oh, papa, his pants fit him just like yours do you."

A Matter of Form.
 George Cohen was talking at the Lamb club about a very popular song-bird of revue.

"Is she good?" a poet asked.
 "Well," said Mr. Cohen, "I have known more audacious church-goers."
 "Oh, you know what I mean. Is she good? Has she got a good voice?" persisted the poet.
 "Her voice is insured," said Mr. Cohen, "for $250. Her figure is insured for $300,000."

Point of View.
 He was a child of the rich and he was talking to a child of the poor in Lincoln park, Chicago.

"Say," said the child of the poor, "I know a slick bike ride to take."
 "Do you?" said the child of the rich. "Tell me where so I can sic one of the chauffeurs onto it."

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority. Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

As the Editor Sees It

The Next Year
 Here we are on the threshold of another year, with a heart firm in its conviction that there is still room for improvement in both ourselves and the conditions that surround us.
 Possibly there will be made by Tuckerton people the usual number of what we call "good resolutions." Others will be content to "let well enough alone." Some few will ignore entirely an opportunity to check up on their short-comings and will let slide by another chance to make life a little brighter both for themselves and those about them. Good resolutions are all right, and we believe in encouraging him. But always a good resolution should not be a selfish one—it should include our neighbors. Resolving to look more closely after the little things this year than you did last will be a sensible resolution. Dropping in for a moment to inquire about the condition of a sick friend, or to ask if you can be of service—that is one of the little things that makes other lives as well as your own brighter. Speaking a kindly word to the young man or woman who is starting out on life's long road; a smile for the aged and a friendly pat on the back for the man who is passing through a sorrow—you couldn't make a wiser resolution than to resolve that you will look more closely after these little things during the year 1923.
 Maybe everything won't be just as you would like to have it. Maybe things won't turn out exactly as you would like. So resolve now that if you do encounter obstacles you will use every honest effort to set them right, that you will be fair and honest with yourself and that you will not let discouragement sour you toward your neighbors or the world. Resolve to keep in mind that good old motto: "If at first you don't succeed"—and when something hits you a pretty hard jolt show your neighbor the kind of stuff you are made of by meeting it with a smile.
 Make but one resolution, if you wish, but make it good every day in the year. Make it a resolution that you will try and send a little sunshine every day into the heart of someone near you. For it is in that way that sunshine will come into your own life.
Christmas Business
 According to word reaching this office the Christmas shopping season was the best merchants have enjoyed for many years. The volume of business was larger and the buying of serviceable gifts was on a larger scale than at any previous time. Which shows two things—that the people are again getting hold of money and that they are learning how best to spend it.
 Farm prices, while still not what they should be, are partially offset by

The fact that there is a ready market for everything. Production in the factories of the nation is on a good basis, and the problem of unemployment is nothing like as serious as it was at this time last year. The man who can't find work isn't hunting very hard for a job.

His Shovel
 An Italian sailed from Boston for Italy recently, and in addition to a large sum of money he had earned through digging in the streets of Boston, he took with him his most prized possession—a common shovel. He is taking the shovel back with him for two reasons: because, he says, it is balanced and tempered exactly right, so he can wield it to greatest advantage and because he wants to show his family and friends at home the tool with which he earned the wealth he bestows upon them. Many a foreigner has come to this country believing that gold was to be found in the streets. This man has proved it. He goes back to tell his countrymen not the "America means wealth in idleness, but that in America there is a sure reward for the man who is willing to take off his coat, roll up his sleeves and work for it. And we believe that there is more than one citizen who can get a good lesson from the message the Italian is taking back across the sea to his fellow countrymen. At least it won't hurt them to think over it a little.

IF—BUT—
 The official figures show that T. Frank Appleby lost to Elmer Geran as a candidate for Congress in the Third District by 523 votes. Middlesex gave Geran 21,251 votes, to 21,153 for Appleby; Monmouth, 18,763 for Geran, 17,495 for Appleby. This Geran majority of 2366 in the two upper counties was cut to 523 by the vote in Ocean County—Geran 2315, Appleby 5161. There were between six and seven thousand registered voters in Ocean County who did not bother to vote.

If—Republicans had bothered to vote in this county, Appleby would have had a handsome majority; but—enough of them staid at home to elect a Democrat. And—if—the dregs in Ocean County had taken the trouble to vote the Third District would for the next two years be represented by a dry Congressman; but—they didn't bother, and now they are represented by a wet.—N. J. Courier.

Our idea of the most fortunate man in Tuckerton is the one whose wife's private opinion of him is as good as the opinion she expresses in public. Some fellows look far ahead. When the boys won't give them a raise in salary they go out and marry a girl who has a good job.

A good way to worry a man is to keep him waiting and a good way to worry a woman is to keep her guessing.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness. And when it's a boys ears it's next to impossible.

With the long skirts coming back into style about the only hope we have now is in a first-class wind-storm.

Stoves and furnaces are like some husbands—if you don't watch them closely they'll go out.

One thing about the man who used to drive a horse. Nobody ever got a chance to sell him a lot of accessories.

Now if the ex-Kaiser will go ahead and saw some more wood he may make a pretty good husband after all.

Another thing we've never been able to understand is why it is that when a man sows wild oats he raises a crop of Cain.

If there is a man in Tuckerton who isn't capable of governing himself it's up to him to get married.

And another thing, if all of us got everything we wanted for Christmas we'd never find room to put it away.

We see where they fixed the bail of a New York bootlegger at $100,000. That must have taken almost all of his spare change.

New Year's in Egypt

IF A group of people were shipwrecked or otherwise cast upon their own resources and were to lose track of the date they would have no easy means of finding it again. Our year is an artificial one, and so must be made by careful study in well equipped observatories. Without precise instruments it would be difficult to fix the day when the new year begins.

The ancient Egyptians experienced no such difficulty. Their year, from which ours is derived, had a perfectly natural beginning. It always commenced on the day when Sirius and the sun rose together.

The temples of Egypt were really observatories, built to face this or that star as it rose. They were more or less elaborate, but all had as their fundamental plan a long narrow passage down which the star's rays came, and a dark chamber at the far end where the priest made the observation and where the image was kept.

The beginning of the new year was an important event. We can picture the scene as the priests, followed by the scribes, lawyers, merchants, and the curious crowd, wind their way up to the temple in the first streaks of dawn, and take their appointed places.
 As daylight comes on the interest of everyone is centered on two groups.

The priests on the roof are straining their eyes for the first glimpse of the coming sun, while those down in the dark chamber are watching for Sirius. Soldiers are stationed around the temple to keep the crowd silent and to prevent stragglers from crossing the path of the star's rays in front of the temple door at the critical moment.

A shout bursts from those on the roof as the sun tops the horizon. The observers below watch their water clocks carefully now as the minutes are told off, and strain their eyes at the narrow opening where Sirius is to shine. In a few moments Sirius itself flashes into view, and the new year has begun.

The Egyptians discovered that the year has an extra quarter of a day in it. They did it by noting that on some years Sirius and the sun rose almost together, while on others there was an appreciable difference in time, and that these changes repeated themselves every five years. They found the length of the year to within 11 minutes of its true value, which was a remarkable thing to do with the primitive appliances they had at hand.

NEW YEAR'S THEN AND NOW.

As long as people can remember,
 there have been New Year parties.
 The old Romans gave theirs in honor of Janus, the two-faced god. One face looked back at the old, spent year, and one face looked forward to the new, fresh year. They gave presents to him and to each other with the hope that the new year would be good to them. Some of the people who lived long ago waited until the end of March to celebrate the New Year, since that was the time that the trees and grass began new life.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

"Are you making any good resolutions for New Year's Day?"
 "No, I haven't had time to break all my last New Year's ones yet."

A GOOD RESOLUTION.

A good resolution is the offspring of remorse and regret, who were wedded by experience.
 A steering wheel in the hands of a fool and a gun in the hands of a woman make life about as valuable as a German mark.

The New Year

THIS year that has just closed means something different to most everybody. To some it has brought a great joy; to others a great sorrow; to many, both grief and gladness in full measure. Many of us have gone along the regular, uneventful path, filled with the happiness of love and work and the joy of everyday things, which, after all, is the best happiness.

To youth the New Year means a long, pleasure-filled evening and the writing of a new date on their letters. They look neither forward nor back. They make resolutions because it seems the correct thing to them to do. They keep them sometimes and it helps make them better men and women, but it is not a serious matter with them—just as is natural for youth.

Older folks involuntarily look back a bit on the even of a new year—not systematically, but with a general sweeping glance that usually makes them a bit uncomfortable at things left undone or failures to make good as they had intended. Maybe there has been just one thing accomplished that gives them a little warm feeling round their hearts—maybe not.
 The great sorrow or great joy stands out with more meaning to them than to youth. 'Tis another milestone passed.

The New Year may not present very bright prospects to some, but these same older folks know that there is something better in store than what the immediate future seems to offer—know that unhappy things can't last—that they are pretty sure to lead to something greater and better—know that even if they can't understand the reason for sorrow and trouble that there is a reason—know it deep down within themselves, though outwardly they resent and rebel against fate. It is not blind faith or optimism that teaches this, but reason and knowledge of life.

Older folks know that the year is bound to bring happiness and relief to those who are now hearing sorrow and trouble.—Mrs. J. E.
 Leslie, in the Detroit News.

BLACK NEW YEAR PUDDING

Ingredients: One cupful black molasses; one cupful thick sour milk;
 one dessertspoonful soda; beat well.
 Add one teaspoonful salt; one grated nutmeg; one-eighth pound citron, chopped fine; one-fourth pound suet, chopped fine; four dry figs, chopped fine; one dozen almonds, minced fine; one cupful seeded raisins; three raw tart apples, chopped coarsely; three cupfuls flour. Mix all together, steam in a buttered mold for three hours and dry for 15 minutes in an oven. Serve with any good pudding sauce. This will serve 15 persons.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved: To save my money
 And lead a frugal life.
 Resolved: To do my duty
 And still abstain from strife.
 Resolved: To give up smoking
 And never touch a drop.
 Resolved: To heed the speed laws
 And ne'er offend a cop.
 Resolved: To quit complaining
 And smile whenever I can.
 Resolved: To cease from knocking
 And praise my fellow man.
 Resolved—but what's the use of
 My plunging in so deep?
 I've made more resolutions
 Than any man could keep.

CENTER PIECE HINT.

To launder heavy embroidered round or oval center pieces, wash and starch quite stiff. While wet, divide into fourths or eighths, place paper on rug and pin to floor, as you would stretch curtains on a stretcher. When dry remove pins, and you will have a center done up beautifully, without any ironing.

One thing about the present styles in women's clothes. It has relieved the strain on the clothes line.

One consolation about getting beaten for office is nobody ever wonders how much you spent.

Why is it that everybody knows how to cure a cold except the fellow who has got one?

We see where Charlie Chaplin is going to marry again. That fellow is always doing something funny.

We're getting so many autos around that it won't be long before the fellow who walks will need to carry a horn.

As the Editor Sees It

The Next Year
 Here we are on the threshold of another year, with a heart firm in its conviction that there is still room for improvement in both ourselves and the conditions that surround us.
 Possibly there will be made by Tuckerton people the usual number of what we call "good resolutions." Others will be content to "let well enough alone." Some few will ignore entirely an opportunity to check up on their short-comings and will let slide by another chance to make life a little brighter both for themselves and those about them. Good resolutions are all right, and we believe in encouraging him. But always a good resolution should not be a selfish one—it should include our neighbors. Resolving to look more closely after the little things this year than you did last will be a sensible resolution. Dropping in for a moment to inquire about the condition of a sick friend, or to ask if you can be of service—that is one of the little things that makes other lives as well as your own brighter. Speaking a kindly word to the young man or woman who is starting out on life's long road; a smile for the aged and a friendly pat on the back for the man who is passing through a sorrow—you couldn't make a wiser resolution than to resolve that you will look more closely after these little things during the year 1923.
 Maybe everything won't be just as you would like to have it. Maybe things won't turn out exactly as you would like. So resolve now that if you do encounter obstacles you will use every honest effort to set them right, that you will be fair and honest with yourself and that you will not let discouragement sour you toward your neighbors or the world. Resolve to keep in mind that good old motto: "If at first you don't succeed"—and when something hits you a pretty hard jolt show your neighbor the kind of stuff you are made of by meeting it with a smile.
 Make but one resolution, if you wish, but make it good every day in the year. Make it a resolution that you will try and send a little sunshine every day into the heart of someone near you. For it is in that way that sunshine will come into your own life.

Christmas Business
 According to word reaching this office the Christmas shopping season was the best merchants have enjoyed for many years. The volume of business was larger and the buying of serviceable gifts was on a larger scale than at any previous time. Which shows two things—that the people are again getting hold of money and that they are learning how best to spend it.
 Farm prices, while still not what they should be, are partially offset by the fact that there is a ready market for everything. Production in the factories of the nation is on a good basis, and the problem of unemployment is nothing like as serious as it was at this time last year. The man who can't find work isn't hunting very hard for a job.

His Shovel
 An Italian called from Boston for Italy recently, and in addition to a large sum of money he had earned through digging in the streets of Boston, he took with him his most prized possession—a common shovel. He is taking the shovel back with him for two reasons; because, he says, it is balanced and tempered exactly right, so he can wield it to greatest advantage and because he wants to show his family and friends at home the tool with which he earned the wealth he bestows upon them. Many a foreigner has come to this country believing that gold was to be found in the state. This man has proved it. He goes back to tell his countrymen that American means wealth in idleness, but that in America there is a sure reward for the man who is willing to take off his coat, roll up his sleeves and work for it. And we believe that there is more than one citizen who can get a good lesson from the message the Italian is taking back across the sea to his fellow countrymen. At least it won't hurt them to think over it a little.

IF—BUT—
 The official figures show that T. Frank Appleby lost to Elmer Geran as a candidate for Congress in the Third District by 523 votes. Middlesex gave Geran 21,251 votes, Middlesex for Appleby; Monmouth, 19,763 for Geran, 17,495 for Appleby. This Geran majority of 2366 in the two upper counties was cut to 523 by the vote in Ocean County—Geran 3315, Appleby 5161. There were between six and seven thousand registered voters in Ocean County who did not bother to vote.
 If—Republicans had bothered to vote in this county, Appleby would have had a handsome majority; but—enough of them staid at home to elect a Democrat. And—if—the drys in Ocean County had taken the trouble to vote the Third District would for the next two years be represented by a dry Congressman; but—they didn't bother, and now they are represented by a wet.—N. J. Courier.
 Our idea of the most fortunate man in Tuckerton is the one whose wife's private opinion of him is as good as the opinion she expresses in public.
 Some fellows look far ahead. When the boss won't give them a raise in salary they go out and marry a girl who has a good job.

 A good way to worry a man is to keep him waiting and a good way to worry a woman is to keep her guessing.
 Cleanliness is next to Godliness. And when it's a boys ears it's next to impossible.
 With the long skirts coming back into style about the only hope we have now is in a first-class wind-storm.
 Steves and furnaces are like some husbands—if you don't watch them closely they'll go out.
 One thing about the man who used to drive a horse. Nobody ever got a chance to sell him a lot of accessories.
 Now if the ex-Kaiser will go ahead and saw some more wood he may make a pretty good husband after all.
 Another thing we've never been able to understand is why it is that when a man sows wild oats he raises a crop of Cain.
 If there is a man in Tuckerton who isn't capable of governing himself it's up to him to get married.
 And another thing, if all of us got everything we wanted for Christmas we'd never find room to put it away.
 We see where they fixed the ball of a New York bootlegger at $100,000. That must have taken almost all of his spare change.

New Year's in Egypt

If a group of people were shipwrecked or otherwise cast upon their own resources and were to lose track of the date they would have no easy means of finding it again. Our year is an artificial one, and so must be made by careful study in well equipped observatories. Without precise instruments it would be difficult to fix the day when the new year begins.

The ancient Egyptians experienced no such difficulty. Their year, from which ours is derived, had a perfectly natural beginning. It always commenced on the day when Sirius and the sun rose together.

The temples of Egypt were really observatories, built to face this or that star as it rose. They were more or less elaborate, but all had as their fundamental plan a long narrow passage down which the star's rays came, and a dark chamber at the far end where the priest made the observation and where the image was kept.

The beginning of the new year was an important event. We can picture the scene as the priests, followed by the scribes, lawyers, merchants, and the curious crowd, wind their way up to the temple in the first streaks of dawn, and take their appointed places. As daylight comes on the interest of everyone is centered on two groups.

The priests on the roof are straining their eyes for the first glimpse of the coming sun, while those down in the dark chamber are watching for Sirius. Soldiers are stationed around the temple to keep the crowd silent and to prevent stragglers from crossing the path of the star's rays in front of the temple door at the critical moment.

A shout bursts from those on the roof as the sun tops the horizon. The observers below watch their water clocks carefully now as the minutes are told off, and strain their eyes at the narrow opening where Sirius is to shine. In a few moments Sirius itself flashes into view, and the new year has begun.

The Egyptians discovered that the year has an extra quarter of a day in it. They did it by noting that on some years Sirius and the sun rose almost together, while on others there was an appreciable difference in time, and that these changes repeated themselves every five years. They found the length of the year to within 11 minutes of its true value, which was a remarkable thing to do with the primitive appliances they had at hand.

NEW YEAR'S THEN AND NOW.
As long as people can remember, there have been New Year parties. The old Romans gave theirs in honor of Janus, the two-faced god. One face looked back at the old, spent year, and one face looked forward to the new, fresh year. They gave presents to him and to each other with the hope that the new year would be good to them. Some of the people who lived long ago waited until the end of March to celebrate the New Year, since that was the time that the trees and grass began new life.

"Are you making any good resolutions for New Year's day?"
"No, I haven't had time to break all my last New Year's ones yet."

A GOOD RESOLUTION.
A good resolution is the offspring of remorse and regret, who were wedded by experience.
A steering wheel in the hands of a fool and a gun in the hands of a woman make life about as valuable as a German mark.

The New Year

THE year that has just closed means something different to most everybody. To some it has brought a great joy; to others a great sorrow; to many, both grief and gladness in full measure. Many of us have gone along the regular, uneventful path, filled with the happiness of love and work and the joy of everyday things, which, after all, is the best happiness.

To youth the New Year means a long, pleasure-filled evening and the writing of a new date on their letters. They look neither forward nor back. They make resolutions because it seems the correct thing to them to do. They keep them sometimes and it helps make them better men and women, but it is not a serious matter with them—just as it is natural for youth. Older folks involuntarily look back a bit on the even of a new year—not systematically, but with a general sweeping glance that usually makes them a bit uncomfortable at things left undone or failures to make good as they had intended. Maybe there has been just one thing accomplished that gives them a little warm feeling round their hearts—maybe not. The great sorrow or great joy stands out with more meaning to them than to youth. 'Tis another milestone passed.

The New Year may not present very bright prospects to some, but these same older folks know that there is something better in store than what the immediate future seems to offer—know that unhappy things can't last—that they are pretty sure to lead to something greater and better—know that even if they can't understand the reason for sorrow and trouble that there is a reason—know it deep down within themselves, though outwardly they resent and rebel against fate. It is not blind faith or optimism that teaches this, but reason and knowledge of life.

Older folks know that the year is bound to bring happiness and relief to those who are now bearing sorrow and trouble.—Mrs. J. E. Leslie, in the Detroit News.

BLACK NEW YEAR PUDDING

Ingredients: One cupful black molasses; one cupful thick sour milk; one dessertspoonful soda; beat well. Add one teaspoonful salt; one grated nutmeg; one-eighth pound citron, chopped fine; one-fourth pound suet, chopped fine; four dry figs, chopped fine; one dozen almonds, minced fine; one cupful seeded raisins; three raw tart apples, chopped coarsely; three cupfuls flour. Mix all together, steam in a buttered mold for three hours and dry for 15 minutes in an oven. Serve with any good pudding sauce. This will serve 15 persons.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved: To save my money
And lead a frugal life.
Resolved: To do my duty
And still abstain from strife.
Resolved: To give up smoking
And never touch a drop.
Resolved: To head the speed laws
And never offend a cop.
Resolved: To quit complaining
And smile whenever I can.
Resolved: To cease from knocking
And praise my fellow man.
Resolved—but what's the use of
My plunging in so deep?
I've made more resolutions
Than any man could keep.

CENTER PIECE HINT.

To launder heavy embroidered round or oval center pieces, wash and starch stiff. While wet, divide into fourths or eighths, place paper on rug and pin to floor, as you would stretch curtains on a stretcher. When dry remove pins, and you will have a center done up beautifully, without any ironing.

One thing about the present styles in women's clothes. It has relieved the strain on the clothes line.

One consolation about getting beaten for office is nobody ever wonders how much you spent.

Why is it that everybody knows how to cure a cold except the fellow who has got one?

We see where Charlie Chaplain is going to marry again. That fellow is always doing something funny.

We're getting so many suits around that it won't be long before the fellow who walks will need to carry a horn.

Last Sunday there were twenty-four men in attendance at the Men's Bible Class at the M. E. Sunday School.

Last Sunday Mr. Stokes organized the Sunday School in the Wading River Church.

Milton Cramer spent Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Cramer.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Stokes and son took dinner with Miss Margaret Adams on Christmas day.

Mrs. Mary Jane Cramer is spending some time with relatives in Atlantic City.

The Evangelistic campaign at the Presbyterian Church here closed last Friday night and all were united in paying high tribute to the good work done by Rev. Wm. D. Laumaster, the visiting evangelist. He is a strong Biblical preacher, knowing both the Gospel and the men to whom he preaches. He left Saturday morning to spend Christmas with his wife at their home in Philadelphia.

Christmas Sunday was a day of rich privilege at the Presbyterian Church. At the morning service, Rev. Andrew Richards, the pastor preached the Christmas sermon, after which he received six persons into membership of the church on profession of faith, one adult and one child was baptized and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper observed. Many were moved to tears at this service which will long be remembered.

At the evening service the large chorus choir, under the efficient direction of Mrs. H. R. Linsley, rendered the Christmas cantata "At Bethlehem." Large congregations were present at both services.

At the Presbyterian Christmas entertainment held by the Sunday School an innovation was made—each teacher was responsible for her class and it was so successful that it will doubtless be continued. The climax of the program was the tableaux prepared by Mrs. Allen's Class. During the programme pins and certificates were awarded to the 16 members of the school who had completed the year without missing a single Sunday. The usual Christmas treat was provided for the members of the school.

Eugene H. Sears returned from Camden to spend Christmas at his home here.

Captain John H. Cramer returned from Manhattan on Christmas morning.

After being home for Christmas H. Carlton Mathis returned to Trenton on Monday night. He is employed in the first National Bank there.

The New Cetna Ministers will give their annual show in the Hall here next Saturday night for the benefit of the two local churches. The show this year is said to be bigger and better than ever before. Reserved seat tickets can be obtained at Howard Mathis' store.

The Cramer's had a fine family reunion at the home of Mrs. Winfield F. Allen on Christmas Day.

On Wednesday morning of last week, little Robert, the infant son of John and Olive Wiseman, died from acute indigestion. Funeral services were held from the home of the parents on Friday afternoon. Rev. Andrew Richards officiating. The sympathy of the townspeople goes out to the parents in the sad loss of such a fine child.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Lamson and Ferron returned from Camden on Sunday morning to spend Christmas in their own home.

Howard Mathis was host to several friends and neighbors at Christmas dinner in his home here. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John S. Mathis, H. Carlton Mathis, Miss Adeline Merre, Miss Minnie L. Mathis, Rev. and Mrs. Andrew Richards, Capt. John H. Cramer and Howard Mathis.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon M. Loveland of Atlantic City, were Christmas guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Loveland.

Edward Linsley returned from New York to spend Christmas with his parents.

Ernest Krupnick spent Christmas vacation in Hammonton and Philadelphia.

New Cetna public school closed December 22 for the holidays to re-open January 2, 1923. Rev. J. W. Stokes gave one of his interesting talks to the children on the meaning of Christmas, after which an attractive program was carried out by the pupils. Santa Claus was very generous both to teachers and pupils. It was voted the happiest Christmas we have ever had in school.

Cedar Run

Miss Charlotte Cramer is spending the Christmas week at Long Branch, with her aunt, Mrs. Stanley Cramer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Cramer and daughter Lorraine, also the Misses Viola and Leah Cramer, motor from Washington, D. C. to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cramer of Cedar Run and Barnegat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jiran of Oak Grove, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Passmore and Miss Lavinia Trust at dinner on Christmas day. A number of friends called in the evening.

Capt. and Mrs. Samuel Conkling's home was the scene of a happy Christmas gathering, their entire family having come home for the holidays.

Leonard Gibson, who has been spending some time in South Bethlehem, Pa., has been in Cedar Run for about a week. He and his father, Gideon Gibson, went to Moorestown for Christmas.

Mrs. Price of Parkertown, spent Christmas day with her daughter,
